FRANCE DROPS FRANC VALUE

PARIS — The French government today devalued the franc by 11.1 per cent.

The devaluation has come less than two months after the election of President Pompidou, succeeding General Charles de Gaulle, who had firmly refused to take the step.

The new gold equivalent of the French franc was set at 0.160 grams of fine gold, down from 0.180. This was the first devaluation since 1958.

The devaluation, which brings the value of the franc down to around 18 Canadian cents, compared with the previous rate of about 21.7 Canadian cents, is expected to place further pressure on West Germany to revalue the mark upwards.

In response to the news, the gold index at the Toronto Stock Exchange soared 29.2 points. The New York exchanges had closed before the announcement came. Details on Page 8.

Russians Likely Netting Salmon Says Davis

By PAT DUFOUR

Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said today there is a possibility that the large Russian fleet off Vancouver Island is taking a "considerable amount" of salmon.

Contacted in Vancouver, the minister said he has ordered more intensive studies of aerial pictures taken of the fleet Wednesday.

"We saw large piles of fish, separated in heaps, aboard the Russian vessels. My visual impression was that the largest piles were a brownish grey and were probably hake and dogfish.

"However, we saw considerable piles of silvery fish which could have been either salmon or black Alaska cod."

The minister said he has ordered more intensive studies of the pictures and has also asked for reruns in color in a bid for more positive identification.

He said his suspicions are bolstered by American officials who have managed to board some vessels "to talk to the captains, not to search the catches.

"Some captains have admitted having as many as 50 salmon in a drag, others have said about 10. At the top figures of 50, this amounts to quite a few salmon when you talk in terms of a 1,000 drags."

Russian Secrets Probed

Wednesday's aerials were taken from a Canadian armed forces Argus, based at Comox. Fisheries officials are working closely with armed forces personnal in an effort to probe the secret of the catches aboard the Russian draggers.

Davis said he has also asked for commercial pictures, taken at the same time, to be studied by his department.

He said that he saw "about 36 or 37 large vessels with a few scattered in the distance."

Davis added that most of them were "relatively modern," unlike the two battered side-draggers, the Kouzachin and Gherman Titov, which were intercepted by the fisheries patrol vessel Howay inside the 12-mile fishing boundary.

Wednesday's pictures were the latest in a series ordered by the minister.

"We took some last Friday, and earlier, we used a helicopter. But, to date, we have no positive identification."

Davis said the penalties for foreign vessels found fishing inside the 12-mile limit were no deterrant.

"In my view the penalties are inadequate. That's why we are changing" the Canadian Coastal Fisheries Protection Act.

Patrol Vessels Too Slow

Foreign skippers now found guilty of illegal fishing can be fined up to $5,000 and can have both ship and catch confiscated.

Canadian trollers have complained that the fisheries patrol vessels are too slow to catch the large Russian ships should the chase involve any distance.

The newest fisheries vessel Tanu is capable of 15 knots, the same speed as most of the foreign ships.

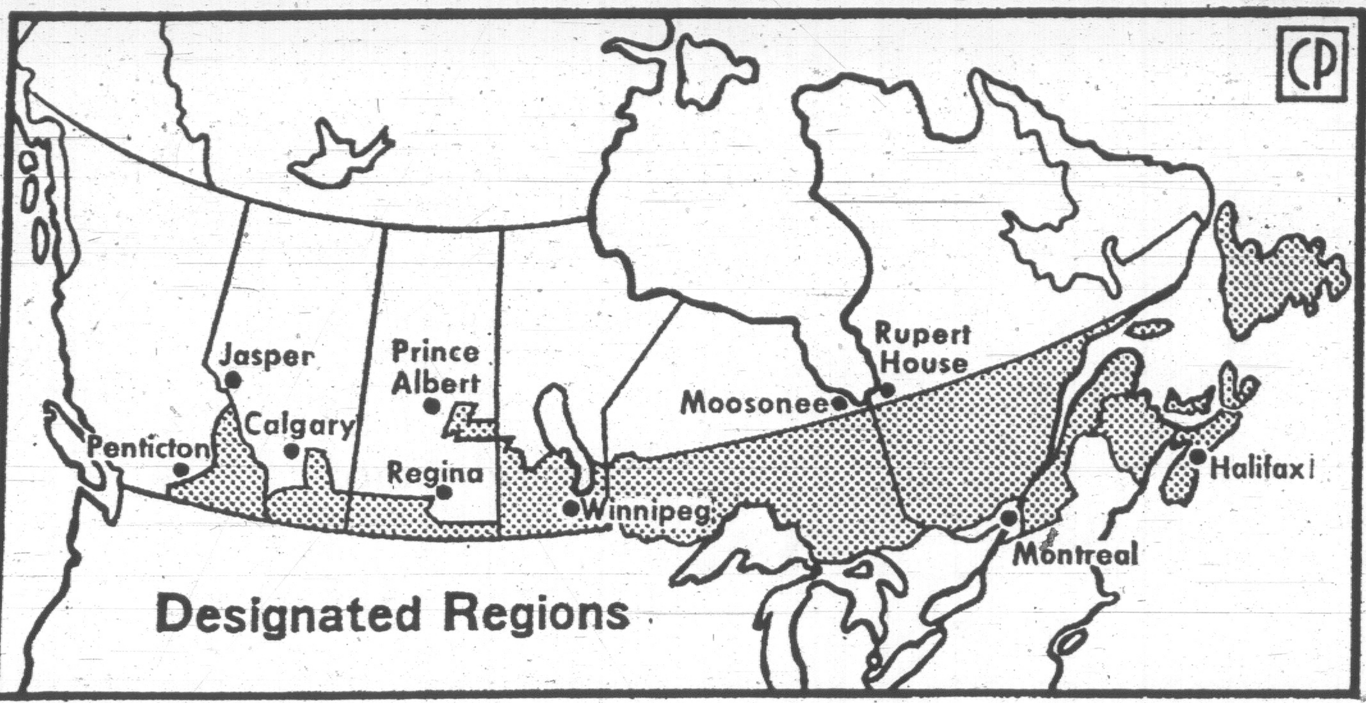
Questioned on this, Davis said that Tanu is the most modern fisheries craft in Canada and is equipped for other duties, including researfh, as well as interception.

He added that, in an emergency, surface vessels of the armed forces would be used as part of an over-all watch kept by the maritime command Pacific and the Rescue Co-ordination Centre in Vancouver.

"But," Davis said, "we don't have enough destroyer-escorts to completely patrol the whole area involved."

There are seven based at Esquimalt.

Industry, Cities Facing Tough Water Standards



SPECIAL ATTENTION to the tune of millions can go to developing industry locating in shaded areas of map designated by federal Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand. Under program, incentives for new plants can go as high as $12,000,000, the minister announced Thursday.

Only Small Area of B.C. Selected for Economic Aid

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has swept through large sections of Canada, from the Atlantic provinces to the British Columbia interior, in its selection of areas eligible for assistance to encourage industrial expansion.

Under a new program approved during the last session of Parliament, federal incentives for new plants in the designated areas can go as high as $12,000,000.

There is a formula providing up to 25 per cent of capital costs, plus up to $5,000 for each job created.

In the case of expanding or modernizing existing plants, the incentive is limited to 20 per cent of capital cost, with a $6,000,000 ceiling.

Announcing the new regions Thursday night, Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand said the plan was designed to promote economic growth in the widest area possible embracing all three Maritime provinces and the entire island of Newfoundland. Labrador is excluded.

The area then sweeps on through a large part of Quebec, along the St. Lawrence North Shore, the Gaspe, into Quebec City, through Trois-Rivieres and Sherbrooke, north to Rouyn-Noranda and Chibougamau.

Montreal and Ottawa are not included in the designated region which sweeps into Northern Ontario, including North Bay, Sudbury, Kapuskasing, the Lakehead, Kenora and Red Lake.

In Manitoba, the whole southern part of the province is included from a line near the centres of Lake Winnipeg and Winnipegosis.

The regions in Saskatchewan have been designated: a section in the northeast from the Manitoba border to such communities as Humboldt, Melfort and Tisdale; a band across the south of the province that includes Estevan, Weyburn, Moose Jaw and Swift Current.

The southern part of Alberta, including Medicine Hat and Lethbridge has also been designated, as has the eastern portion that juts north to Drumheller.

In British Columbia, a triangle in the southeast corner, including the Kootenays, Cranbrook, Golden, Revelstoke, Nelson, Trail and Grand Forks, has been selected.

Mr. Marchand's announcement said the regions — "those where there is a good chance that industrial incentives will help to make employment opportunities more adequate" — will be reviewed in 1972.

The new regions replace the substantially smaller areas that qualified for special economic assistance under the Area Development Agency.

ENDS EXISTENCE

The agency, providing maximum grants of $5,000,000 for industries, ceases to exist in January. Until then, both programs will function together.

ZOND STREAKS TO MOON DATE

MOSCOW (AP)—Less than a month after the United States manned lunar landing, the Soviet Union today launched an unmanned spaceship to the moon.

Zond VII, the new craft, was hurled into a parking orbit around earth by "a powerful Soviet carrier rocket," then launched toward the moon, Tass said.

Moscow has said the unmanned Zond series are part of Soviet efforts, now lagging behind the United States, to send a man to the moon.

The official Soviet news agency said Zond VII would study "the moon and near-lunar space," but Tass did not indicate if it would attempt a soft landing.

Bennett Will Follow Any Wage Guidelines

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett Thursday supported the federal Prices and Wages Commission's proposal for voluntary wage and price controls, but said Ottawa should set national guidelines.

"They don't have to make it compulsory, but simply say how much increases should be limited to in a given year," said the premier, here to launch the Lower Mainland end of his campaign for the Aug. 27 provincial election.

"You don't need to freeze prices and wages, just control them. The government should show leadership by setting guidelines. Public opinion will take care of it."

Asked who he would suggest as the first volunteer to follow such guidelines, Bennett said: "The world follows men. What people want is leadership."

"We can't give it in this field because we have no jurisdiction as a provincial government, but we will be the first to volunteer and we will co-operate fully."

The premier, who will speak tonight at a Social Credit rally in New Westminster, also commented on statements that a general economic slowdown is coming.

"It is in this period that the Social Credit government's policies will show up to the best advantage. We have been criticized for financing on a surplus basis, but we are now the only government in this position."

BUCK HOULE NAMED HOCKEY CANADA HEAD

HOULE
. . . replaces Emms

TORONTO (CP) — Alan (Buck) Houle, 52, head trouble shooter for Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, today was appointed general manager of Hockey Canada to succeed Hap Emms.

The appointment was announced by Charles Hay of Toronto, Hockey Canada president, about 24 hours after Emms announced his resignation from the organization that operates Canada's national hockey team.

Houle formerly was general manager of the defunct Victoria Maple Leafs' entry in the Western Hockey League.

Waste Dumping Affected

By JOHN MIKA

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark today released the provincial government's first comprehensive code of minimum water quality standards to protect British Columbia citizens.

In essence, it sets out the degree of "purity" that must be achieved — either by remedial treatment or preventive pollution control — for various water uses such as drinking, swimming and waste dumping.

The standards were to have been issued 11 months ago but Loffmark held them up during an intra-departmental battle over jurisdiction between his pollution control organization under Water Resources Minister Ray Williston.

DELAY NECESSARY

At the time, he said the delay was necessary to give his 25 provincial medical health officers time to evaluate all water standards set by other areas and devise the best system for B.C. because the MHOs would have to enforce the new regulations.

There was no immediate indication of how many communities and industries will have to take early action to bring themselves within the code by improving drinking water quality or reducing pollution through dumping wastes into fresh or salt water courses.

But the standards are tougher than those issued by the Pollution Control Board three years ago which allowed the Greater Victoria sanitary sewerage study to propose dumping of raw sewage through long outfalls into local salt water.

FOUR SETS OF RULES

The code divides water uses into four classes and provides a separate set of standards that must be met in each class across the province. But it would permit exceptions in some cases.

In a press release accompanying the code, Loffmark emphasized that those areas which currently have better water quality than demanded by the minimum standards will not be allowed to relax their efforts.

Those that have worse quality than required will have to make improvements at least to the minimum levels.

"The purpose of the new standards is to secure and maintain such water quality levels in the province, both for drinking waters and surface waters, as will give assured

Trudeau Has B.C. Date With What's-Her-Name

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau had a tete-a-tete with a redhead within two hours of arriving in Vancouver Thursday.

He took her for a ride on the Grouse Mountain skyride and for dinner at a luxury restaurant atop the mountain.

Mr. Trudeau identified his date later as "Miss Patterson."

However, the stunning redhead turned out to be Margaret Sinclair, 21, daughter of former federal fisheries minister James Sinclair.

Miss Sinclair said she had met the 49-year-old Liberal leader in Tahiti. She said she and the prime minister were "just friends" and that it was the first time they had dined together.

Trudeau was to fly to Abbotsford this afternoon to officially open the three-day air show at the community 50 miles east of Vancouver.

Later tonight, he'll table-hop at a $100-a-plate Liberal fund-raising dinner.

A 20-minute speech he is scheduled to make is described by officials with the prime minister as "significant," but no details have been released.

Meanwhile, Liberal Leader Pat McGeer returned to Vancouver after two weeks on the campaign trail in the B.C. Interior, and claimed his party will win more than the 20 seats he predicted earlier.

He said his tour showed that Liberal organizations in ridings virtually written off two weeks ago are now fighting to win.

"We are going to come back and hit very hard at these swing ridings," he said. "These seats are now so much in the fight I think we are going to win them."

He named Okanagan North, held by minister without portfolio Pat Jordan in the last House, and Shuswap, held by Social Credit's Willis Jefcoat, as two such ridings.

TRUDEAU AND DATE, Margaret Sinclair, daughter of former cabinet minister James Sinclair, step from Grouse Mountain Skylift gondola in North Vancouver Thursday night, shortly after the prime minister arrived for three-day coast visit. Trudeau reportedly was concerned he might be refused admission to mountaintop restaurant because he was wearing no tie. However, he was admitted without question.

Leaders Give Policy

Hospitals

PENTICTON (CP) — Progressive Conservative leader John de Wolf has called for politics to be removed from education, hospital planning and regional development.

He told a news conference here that there is uncertainty in the Okanagan over hospital planning. "The main problem is not the jealousy that is supposed to exist between Penticton, Vernon and Kelowna. It is the lack of provincial leadership."

"There should be intensive consultation with local authorities to devise the best plan. But local politics should be avoided and the final decisions made by Victoria."

Kelowna should be designated one of the six B.C. regional administration centres and Vernon should be the site of the four-year university, he said.

Industry

TERRACE (CP) — NDP leader Tom Berger said here Thursday that the main objective of an NDP government would be to increase the processing of raw materials in the province.

Outlining the first part of an NDP policy to develop secondary industry, Mr. Berger said he would ban the export of logs as long as B.C. mills and millworkers were not working to full capacity.

"We have had unemployment and under-employment because we have not developed a program for processing here. Last winter the provincial government was allowing the export of unmanufactured logs to Japan at a time when many B.C. sawmills were shut down because of a shortage of logs."

Few Testing Adoption Idea

Only three Victorians have taken advantage of a seven-month-old Family and Children's Service policy to allow single persons over 30 to adopt children.

And only one of the applicants has been approved, Mrs. Bernice Packford of the FCS reported Thursday.

Meanwhile, a child is still being sought for that person, who wants an older child. The child will have to be found through a Vancouver agency, Mrs. Packford said.

She said one reason for the scarcity of applications to adopt was the lack of publicity given to the new scheme, introduced in January.

Some people also think adopting a child is difficult.

●

"Our policy is helping people to adopt, not acting as a prohibitive barrier."

Induction of the new policy marked a radical departure for the Victoria agency although single parent adoption is approved in the Adoption Act and not uncommon among child welfare agencies.

"We want someone who is self-supporting and will take time to look after the child, and someone who will see he is looked after while the parent is at work."

The prospective parent meets adoption workers for a few months before the transaction is completed.

"It takes about four to six months to adopt a child. That isn't even as long a wait as if you have it yourself," she said.

. . . ECONOMIC AID

will apply to manufacturing and processings plants applying for government assistance, Mr. Marchand said.

The incentives will not apply to consumer services, construction, production of energy, merchandizing and transport, or to the primary industries of farming, fishing, logging and mining.

Nor do they apply to the initial processing of resource-based industries such as minerals, oil, gas and wood.

Mr. Marchand specified that the incentives are applicable to such operations as the processing of mineral concentrates in metal production, paper and paperboard production, chemical processes, fish processing, lumber operations and food processing.

The new regulations include:

1. A company qualifying for an incentive will receive a government statement of offer. The offer is to remain open two months and if the company accepts, a date will be set for the start of construction.

2. The minimum equity that the company must invest in the operation will be fixed when the offer is made and will not be changed if additional capital is needed.

3. The minimum equity will be based on 20 per cent of the projected capital cost of a new plant. In cases of expansion or modernization, it will be based on 20 per cent of the estimated capital cost plus book value of existing facilities.

4. There will be no requirement, as has been the case, that equipment for the plant be new.

5. When a plant begins production it will receive 80 per cent of the incentive, instead of 60 per cent as under the present program. The balance will be paid within 3 ½years to a new plant and within 2½ years to an expanded or modernized plant. The balance now is repaid in two years.

Requirements for qualifying for incentives:

1. Investment for a new plant must be at least $60,000; for expansion or modernization, it must total at least $30,000.

2. Applications for assistance must be made before the company has any contractual commitment to the project.

3. The company must give "reasonable opportunities" to Canadian manufacturers to bid on machinery and equipment for the project.

4. A firm starting a new plant must not close down similar operations in a designated region.

5. To qualify for the maximum $12,000,000, a firm must either be new or expanding to produce commodities that could not have been economically produced otherwise.

Pesticide Is Non-Toxic

Scientists at Simon Fraser University's pestology centre are experimenting with a natural pesticide that is both non-toxic and cheap: water.

"The theory is simple," said Dr. Brian Beirne, director of the centre. "You just spray a plant with a heavy stream of water and it knocks off the small insects and they drown on the ground."

He said he thought of the idea after noticing that a heavy rain will often kill pests such as young grasshoppers and caterpillars.

To test the theory student Bill Hudson is at work at the Canada Department of Agriculture research station, Summerland, spraying apple trees with water to wash off mites.

"It appears to be best to use a spray made up of large droplets which will hit as hard as possible instead of a mist," said Dr. Beirne.

He pointed out that the system could be used in conjunction with a normal irrigation system.

"In this way we would be killing two birds with one stone. We would be watering the plants and getting rid of some of the pests at the same time."

. . . WATER STANDARDS

protection for human health and safety," the press release said.

It added that "these standards have been drawn up in a form that will permit amendment and modification as new information becomes available.

"A period of experience and trial will serve to assess their usefulness and will indicate any desirable changes."

The standards incorporate recommendations from the B.C. Pollution Control Board, B.C. health department and the Pacific North West Pollution Control Council but their requirements for drinking waters virtually duplicate those recommended by the federal government's health department last year.

CONTROL POLLUTION

Because the B.C. health department's code will be the only comprehensive guide to water qualities, its standards likely will dictate most water pollution control requirements in the province rather than PCB directives.

The standards list immediate quality requirements and also identify long term objectives.

The four classes of water use are divided into Class A designating drinking water requiring mineral treatment; Class B designating drinking water with sophisticated treatment requirements; Class C identifying bathing, swimming and sports waters; and Class D reserved for sports and commercial shellfish propagation.

48 TESTS

The standards comprise scientific, technical and visual parameters, with the longest list of requirements — four tables of 48 different tests attached to drinking water quality.

For example: Class A and B requirements state there may be no more than .05 miligrams of arsenic per litre of drinking water of .01 mg-1 of nitrate; no algae at all; inoffensive taste and no warmer than 15 degrees Centigrade (59 F).

The long-term objectives are to require that no detectable amounts of arsenic or nitrate, no algae, no offensive taste and no warmer temperature than 10 degrees Centegrade (50 F) be allowed in B.C. drinking water anywhere.

The tables set out the immediate and eventual requirements in similiar fashion for the whole range of organic and inorganic elements, pesticides, herbicides, radioactive counts and other aspects included in the initial code.

The code says these standards "should be required for all public water works systems at the consumer's tap except where it can be shown to the satisfaction of the minister that:

"(a) It is not feasible to provide a water of the quality required otherwise; and

"(b) The residents or customers are accustomed to the type of water; and

"(c) The limitations of water supply are made known to the prospective users."

RATE OF TESTS

The code also sets out a schedule of the rate of testing that will be used in determining violations of the code.

Class C recreational waters do not distinguish between salt and fresh water beaches.

It confirms the present PCB biological testing level of 1,000 coliforms per 100 millilitres as a maximum permissible level in swimming areas where sewage is dumped.

But this standard has been toughened by adding that "no floating or submerged matter" may be introduced by man into those swimming waters and there must be no visible concentrations of wood fibre, oil sludge, sewage, scum, foam or other wastes interfering with swimming uses.

The code's text adds:

"Waters containing uncontrolled waste discharges above or continguous to these (swimming beach) points of use constitute an objectionable hazard."

It says swimmers could contract diseases in sewage-laden waters and confirms "treatment equivalent to secondary treatment is indicated for wastes discharged to waters in this use category."

In Class D requirements, the code sets the maximum levels for pollutant material or condition that will be allowed when wastes are discharged into bodies of water.

These levels are intended to protect the interests of downstream users of that water.

CHICHESTER-CLARK

N. Ireland Premier In London

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark of Northern Ireland took advantage of the lull in religious rioting in his capital of Belfast and flew here today for talks with the British government expected to cover the use of British troops.

Chichester-Clark met with Home Secretary James Callaghan, the British minister responsible for Northern Ireland's affairs.

Dredging Project Worth $2 Million

OTTAWA (CP) — Vancouver Pile Driving and Contracting Co. Ltd. Has been awarded a $2,889,370 federal contract for dredging the First Narrows channel at Vancouver, the Works Department said today.

The job involves deepening and widening the channel into Vancouver harbor for accommodation of bulk carriers of up to 100,000 tons.

Unionist Supports Price-Wage Curbing

A Victoria labor unionist thinks legislation will be necessary to restrain prices and wages to curb inflation in Canada.

Neil Hindle, business agent for the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers Local 191, was commenting on a suggestion by John Young, chairman of the federal prices and incomes commission, that voluntary restraints be discussed in a national conference.

"People talk about inflation and I just wonder whether this will be the continuing dialogue," Hindle said.

"I think legislation will have to be passed ultimately. There are aggressive people in both trade unions and management and to ask them to restrain themselves voluntarily is like asking for the moon.

"Perhaps there has been too much talk—not enough action," the spokesman said.

Murray Drew, president of Victoria Local 1-118 International Woodworkers of America, welcomed the idea of a national conference—"if they do a proper job without pressure groups, they will come out with some surprising information.

"For example, he said, "British Columbia is a province with a high level of labor organization and a high standard of living. Newfoundland, on the other end of the country and the other end of the scale, has relatively little organization and has a low living standard.."

Gordon Campbell, president of the area council of Public Service Alliance of Canada — composed of federal government employees — also was receptive:

"There is much merit in the council's proposal. The social and political effects of the perpetual drive for ever-increasing prices and profits and incomes needs much wider and more public investigation than it has yet received in this country."

Crux Trial Adjourned

NASSAU (CP) — Canada's courtroom battle to extradite Vancouver lawyer-financier A. G. Duncan Crux from the Bahamas was adjourned today to Oct. 1.

Magristrate John Baily decided on the eight-week break after both sides had made adjournment requests.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

On cold days, when the temperature of the air is lower than your body temperature, your body is constantly losing heat to the air. But in August, when the temperature of the air is high, you get more heat from the air than you can use. If you couldn't lose enough of it another way you would get sick.

So radiation comes to your rescue. Your body loses heat through radiation to cooler surfaces in the vicinity, and it doesn't have to be in contact with those surfaces to do it.

Evaporation is another way of getting rid of heat. It takes over when you body can't lose enough heat through radiation, and it depends on your sweat glands. You sweat and the moisture that comes out of your skin cools the surface of your body.

Primitive Life Only On Mars

By Times News Services

HOUSTON—The possibility of a primitive life cycle on Mars was advanced Thursday by one scientist in Pasadena while, in Houston, scientists said no organic material has shown up in moon rock tests.

But both groups stressed investigations are still far from complete and that the likelihood of extra-terrestrial life is remote.

The most encouraging discovery was made at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena where chemistry Prof. George Pimentel reported he detected from the Mariner Martian probes "the very exciting discovery of methane and ammonia" in the atmosphere of the mystery planet.

With this discovery, he told a news conference, "one cannot restrain the speculation that it may be of biological origin." If this was the case, he added, it would mean there was a primitive life cycle on Mars.

Biologist Norman Horowitz of the California Institute of Technology said all indications from Mariner VI and VII, he added, were that Mars is a hostile desert bombarded by destructive ultra-violet rays from the sun.

MICROBES

"Certainly there are no terrestrial species that could live on Mars," Horowitz said. "If there are inhabitants on Mars then those inhabitants must be microbes."

He warned there is no definite way of detecting small life forms from 2,000 miles—the closest the Mariner probes got to the Martian surface.

Pimentel, a University of California scientist, painted a picture of the Martian south polar rim as "hospitable," with an icy carbon dioxide cloud protecting a water ice polar rim and giving cover from ultra-violet rays for the formation of molecules.

But his assertion the polar rim was water ice was directly questioned by physicist Jerry Neugebauer, who is in charge of experiments testing the temperature of the planet's surface.

Neugebauer said he was fairly confident from temperature readings the cap was made up of frozen carbon dioxide, which is the commonest component of the Martian atmosphere.

"In our microscopic search so far," said Dr. William Schoff, a member of the preliminary experimental team at Houston's Lunar Receiving Laboratory, "we have found no living, dead or even fossilized organisms in the lunar material."

NO BUILDING BLOCKS

Going even further than that, a team of other scientists looking for life in the lunar rocks said they have not been able to identify anything in the material so far that could be called even a building block of life.

Dr. Klaus Bieman of Massachusetts Institute of Technology said his spectrographic analysis of the core samples brought back by Neil Armstrong and Edwin (Buzz) Aldrin showed no more organic matter than five parts per million, all of which appeared to be hydrocarbons like lubricating oils.

Dr. Bieman said these tiny traces of hydrocarbon were probably contaminants from the cabinets where the lunar samples are being handled inside the LRL.

Dr. Don Flory of the Manned Spacecraft Centre said he had checked Bieman's findings by running blank samples like ordinary sand or quartz into the sample cabinets and treating them in the same way regular moon dust was treated before subjecting it to spectographic analysis.

Lunar Samples Not Formed Same Way as Earth Rocks

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Most of the igneous lunar material returned by the Apollo 11 astronauts appears to have been created by mechanical rather than chemical processes, says one of the scientists who has examined the moon samples.

Dr. Ronald Fryzell, Washington State Universiy geologist and one of 11 men on the science and planning team, said preliminary studies conducted on the lunar samples indicate the "mechanical processes most likely were initiated by meteors striking the moon or by solar flares and wind."

Fryzell, who was at the Manned Space Centre in Houston, Tex., for nine days, said he spent most of his time examining two lunar core samples which were taken by Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin.

"The core samples were undoubtedly the most fascinating but I did spend some time studying rock samples returned in the two boxes," Fryzell said. "One of the most exciting and interesting things we found in the core sample tubes was a piece of material which was glassy and crystal-like in nature. The press reports described it as similar to sparkling pearls and that's not far from wrong."

Examination of the moon gem "showed it had been created by mechanical processes, most likely, and not chemical processes as are known here on earth," Fryzell said.

The core samples were to have been forced about 12 inches into the moon's crust by the astronauts but Fryzell said both tubes "were only about half full."

"They (the astronauts) had to pound on the tubes to get the samples. It's more than likely that they hit a rock just under the surface."

Black lunar dust "from the thin veneer that covers the moon" was the most common element found in the core samples, Fryzell said.

Missing Red Missile Ship At Martinique

WASHINGTON (WP) — A "lost" Soviet warship has turned up at the Caribbean resort island of Martinique, the Pentagon said Thursday.

But spokesmen for the governments of the United States, Soviet Union or France, which administers the island, would not say why the ship was there — if they knew.

The ship, a 500-foot long guided missile cruiser, is part of a small Russian fleet that has been operating in the Caribbean and off the Eastern U.S. coast for more than a month.

The U.S. Navy has kept the ships under surveillance but lost track of the cruiser briefly this week. Thursday it was spotted again, docked in the harbor of Fort de France, capital of Martinique.

"We have no idea" what the cruiser is doing there, a Pentagon spokesman said.

"I've checked around and nobody here even knew it was there," a spokesman for the French embassy said. Martinique is a French state and its 300,000 residents are French citizens.

"We do not receive such information from either the Russian version of the Pentagon or elsewhere, so we wouldn't know," a spokesman for the Russian embassy said.

Report Asks Standard Rules

QUEBEC (CP) — The provincial Parizeau commission today handed down its report whose recommendations, if approved, could revolutionize the structure and administration of Quebec's financial institutions.

The report, four years in the making, proposes that all financial institutions in the province be subject to uniform regulations defining their powers and responsibilities.

A special board would be empowered to hand out and suspend licences, lend money to companies seeking the necessary capital for licensing and borrow money from the federal government if needed.

The commission was established under economist Jacques Parizeau Dec. 22, 1965, by the former Liberal government with a mandate to examine the operations of certain provincially incorporated institutions.

Its work already has resulted in the creation of a department of financial institutions, companies and co-operatives now headed by Solicitor-General Armand Maltais.

A total of 82 recommendations were contained in the final 300-page report.

The government regulations covering all institutions would distinguish between three types of financial operations: banking, insurance and lending, the last including investments not covered in the normal banking operations.

Credit unions would need a capital of at least $500,000 to become licensed and they would come under the same set of regulations.

It also proposed that Quebec negotiate with Ontario and other provinces with the aim of establishing an intergovernmental body to oversee securities transactions.

This would lead to the dissolution of the Quebec Securities Commission.

The report called for the creation of a bureau whose main function is to protect individuals in financial transactions, especially in credit buying.

The bureau would see to it that terms of repayment and interest rates are clearly specified when the individual borrows on credit.

The report also touched on foreign control of Quebec financial institutions. It said "development in the public sector" should not be hindered for the simple reason that the money originates in the United States.

"We do not think a New York group should be treated any differently than one from Toronto or Winnipeg," the report said.

The Basic Cure

THE BASIC PROBLEM OF Canadian wheat farmers is that the present world and domestic markets cannot absorb their annual production. It is true that the "hunger market" of the world could use almost unlimited Canadian wheat to feed needy persons, but the "money market," which is the one that determines the size of purchases, has less expansive needs. Canadian wheat is thus piling up in storage—the Wheat Board has more than 500 million bushels on hand—and there is no prospect that all the carry-over and this year's crop will find buyers.

One answer to the farmers' problem is to adjust floor prices and government subsidies or loans so as to tide the producers over this period of glut. But the real answer is for farmers to cut back their production so that they do not grow wheat that cannot be sold. The huge sales to Russia and China of the past few years were fortunate, but they were isolated incidents and could in no way be counted upon for sustained demand. Thus farmers who increased their acreage — and there was federal government encouragement for this policy—now are badly over-extended.

In addition, there has been a notable increase in the grain yields of several countries which heretofore had been importers. Improved cultivation and seed have greatly augmented the annual crop, for instance, in India. This has served to decrease world demand for export wheat and the trend will become more evident in the immediate future.

Canadian farmers must therefore reduce their wheat production by switching to other crops. The interim period of adjustment will be difficult for many producers, and government assistance will be needed. But there is a limit, too, to the extent of federal financial aid at a time when the country is calling for a general retrenchment in government spending and Mr. Trudeau is committed to this policy as a weapon against inflation.

In anticipation of lower world market prices in prospect the government has decreased the initial wheat payment to growers from the usual $1.70 a bushel to $1.50. But it has felt it necessary to abandon Mr. Trudeau's earlier determination to avoid a two-price policy—one for domestic sales and one for export—and has adopted a floor price of $1.95½ for sales at home. This had also been the price agreed on through the International Wheat Agreement for export sales, but a buyers' market broke this arrangement as various countries accepted less. The Canadian consumer will thus pay more for his wheat than the foreign buyer. This is an artificial condition, both for the industry and the Canadian economy, and the government should view it as strictly a temporary expedient.

Voluntary Restraint

FEW THOUGHTFUL CANADIANS will dispute the desirability of voluntary restraint urged by the prices and incomes commission in all domestic areas in order to check inflation. Two obstacles, however, become immediately apparent. Inflation is not only an indigenous growth. It spreads across borders and is influenced by conditions in other lands. Secondly, Canadians, while warmly applauding self-restraint on the part of others, seldom show an inclination to impose it on themselves in their quest for the good life, even though they recognize that inflation, unchecked, must work hardship on everyone eventually.

Commission Chairman John Young has made the point that if voluntary agreement is reached to place effective limits "for a temporary period" on prices, wages and profits, the arrangement "appears to have a good chance of widespread public acceptance." His statement that the present situation is "very serious" should not be doubted. There is every reason why Canadians should accept whatever sacrifices are necessary, and work co-operatively to halt the ascending spiral. The warnings of danger have been broadcast for a long time.

The problem is not to get the public to recognize the danger on a national scale. That has largely been done. It is to induce the individual to see inflation as calling for personal restraint on his part. And no country seems yet to have achieved this effectively on a voluntary basis.

Red Tape in the Schoolhouse

NOT EVERYONE APPROVES of "free schools" or wants his children to attend one. Nevertheless, this is still a country of free choices and if that is what some parents want for their children they should be entitled to make that decision. The main concern of the community is that educational standards meet certain established requirements. To harass these schools on other grounds is wrong.

Such appears to be the case, however, in the current difficulties of the Saturna Island Free School. The question of the Metropolitan Board of Health's jurisdiction over the school apparently will be decided by the courts. In any case, some of the objections raised by the Board to the school's operation seem spurious. The recent references to two broken windows in the house, boxes of dirty laundry on the back porch and the lack of a central heating system do not raise basic issues.

The questions about the school's sewage disposal system are more serious but the school has installed a new system. There has been difficulty getting it approved. This is a matter that should be resolved quickly.

If the school can satisfy local regulations on this matter it should have a fair opportunity to carry on. Its director has shown himself to be a serious, devoted teacher who is trying out some new educational approaches that may very well find their way into the public school system some day. If his pupils have to sit around a space heater during their lessons, so be it. If they don't mind, neither should we.

Trashy Enough to Succeed

THE BOOK CREATED BY 25 newspapermen of Long Island as a hoax to see how much the public, and publishers, would accept in bad writing so long as it was saturated with sex, may become one of the important cathartics of present-day popular novel writing.

The idea for the joint effort was inspired by a columnist. Twenty-five fellow newspapermen took it from there, writing in a night one chapter each and taking pains to write as badly as they could. Some of the work required re-writing because it was considered too good. Acceptance and financial success greeted the effort.

It is too much to hope that the impact of the hoax will restore high literary standards to the earthy school of modern novel writing. It should at least, however, point out that standards still exist, and that when writing becomes a farce it is time for a change.

RESPONSE OF THE DEPRIVED

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Toronto, We Love and Envy You

THE saddest Canadian document of these times is not, as you might suppose, the pending White Paper on taxes. It is a yelp of mental anguish in Maclean's Magazine. There Mavor Moore, the eminent art critic, informs the nation that it has long mistreated, slandered and been beastly to his noble city of Toronto. With all our wealth this is a luxury which we cannot afford. As Mr. Moore warns us, the mighty metropolitan worm has begun to turn.

Hutchison

Surprisingly enough, a man as brilliant as Mr. Moore fails to see the inwardness and bitter irony of our oldest national phenomenon. Canadians outside the pale do not despise Toronto, as he imagines. They envy it. They hurl their little stones to disguise their passion. They laugh to hide their tears. They all want to live in Toronto and those exiled, second-class citizens who cannot must comfort themselves with a diet of sour grapes. Ah, the pity of it.

Everyone knows that Toronto is the gem and cultural masterpiece of our civilization. Mr. Moore didn't have to tell us. He generously admits, however, that Toronto may not be quite up to New York, London or Paris, for he is a great-hearted man, an impartial critic. But Canadians have always understood that next to the big three Toronto has no rivals in the contemporary world. The fact is obvious.

In a list of 13 items Mr. Moore explains, quite unnecessarily, that Toronto possesses all the nation's largest assets — the best orchestras, ballet companies, museums, universities, art galleries, restaurants, newspapers, night clubs, everything to make life wonderful.

Too Modest

Even this list is too modest. It does not include Pierre Berton, the great educator, George Hees, the great comedian, Walter Gordon, the great tragedian, Paul Hellyer, the great rebel, or Mr. Moore himself, the great apologist. No wonder the foreign immigrants and the natives move to Toronto if they can and no doubt they will all get there in the end to fulfill the nation's manifest destiny.

Meanwhile, it is a grim and regrettable fact that many people live elsewhere in squalid, uncultured places like Montreal, Vancouver and Winnipeg, because they have to, for the time being. Still worse, many inhabit even smaller towns and somehow manage to endure their brutal environment — a tough and dauntless breed.

Some, if the truth must be told, have never seen Toronto. Why, I once met an aged trapper up north who had not heard of Mr. Moore and thought that Mr. Berton was a mere journalist. Despite Toronto's attempt to cure it, we should not underestimate the ignorance of Canada. Beyond the pale we are a primitive and Unjust Society if you get right down to it.

But Toronto has no contempt for the savage hinterland, only compassion. It realizes that a majority of Canadians must get along without a single subway, a ballet troupe, a symphony orchestra, a Moore, a Berton or a Hees.

When they come home at night no luxurious apartment in a skyscraper waits the underprivileged classes, nor one of those million modern bungalows of identical design that have mercifully rescued the land around Toronto from orchards and farms to make it beautiful again.

When the ordinary Canadian has eaten his dismal supper in his old-fashioned kitchen he cannot visit a night club but must sit in his dismal garden and gossip with neighbors equally deprived. At best he can look at Toronto by television but that only inflames his jealousy.

Fun in Traffic

When he sets out on a country weekend all the fun and adventure of the metropolis are missing — no jolly traffic jams beside Lake Ontario, no thrilling bumper-to-bumper race up to North Bay and Muskoka — nothing, indeed but the empty wilderness, its silence happily penetrated now and then by the radio voice of Mr. Berton and the stock quotations from Bay Street. Cold comfort but it must serve until the exile finds a job in Toronto and achieves the ultimate state of Nirvana.

As Mr. Moore says, Toronto carries Canada's burdens, both cultural and economic. It produces the wealth, it manufactures the goods, it pays the taxes and lavishly distributes its profits among the unfortunate majority.

The Raw Outside

True enough, the wheat farmers of the West, the loggers, miners, and fishermen may produce something but like the nation's ideas, this raw material must be processed and refined in Toronto before it is any good. The nation's tariff and tax policies make sure of that. Without the skilled managers of Bay Street we would all soon go broke, and yet we often grudge them their inadequate rewards. Canadians are an ungrateful lot.

But Mr. Moore is mistaken if he thinks that we don't love Toronto. And the worst of all mistakes would be to destroy Toronto's ancient myth, the slander of selfish Hogtown, the great Canadian family joke that binds a disparate nation together in secret envy. That, I am afraid, is exactly what Mr. Moore is doing. He is spoiling the image by asserting the facts, which is always dangerous, as Pierre Trudeau could have told him.

Letters

Goldstream Spawning

There have been several comments in your paper recently concerning the loss of our sports fishing — particularly the shortage of coho. On Tuesday your columnist mentioned the solution — he states that "we need hatcheries and better spawning stream protection". But that is all he says. To achieve any results at all far more positive action is needed.

For many years the Amalgamated Conservation Society, which includes the membership of all fish and game clubs in the lower end of Vancouver Island have been endeavoring, without success, to persuade the federal fisheries to rehabilitate Goldstream, one of the best spawning streams for salmon on the lower end of the island. To date they have always been met with the same objection — lack of water, and the fact that the Greater Victoria Water Board will not guarantee an annual flow sufficient for spawning salmon and fry survival.

The water board has stated that only one-third of the Goldstream drainage area is retainable in storage, all at the very top of the watershed where the lakes are situated, and precipitation below these lakes falls on an area where dam and storage sites are not available, and where the water can only run to waste—often in very large quantities.

A letter was sent to The Honorable Jack Davis, Minister of Fisheries, in December of last year. We received a reply stating that the matter would be taken up with the director of federal fisheries on the west coast,— Mr. W. R. Hourston. Since then nothing has happened.

We believe that a system of control pools and spawning beds on the lower river would ensure the preservation of coho runs in Goldstream. But it will require the co-operation of provincial and federal governments to achieve success. Is this too much to expect to save a valuable natural resource?—Al Wright, president, Victoria Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association.

Swimming Pools

Before we go into the building of an ordinary regulation swimming pool, where only expert swimmers and those training for meets and competitions would be welcome, shouldn't we give some thought to the everyday citizen and our tourist friends?

We have several excellent beaches in the Greater Victoria area such as at Cadboro Bay, Willows and Gonzales (Foul Bay). At present these beaches are polluted, but polluted or not, the water is too cold to swim in anyway. So why not build large outside open air swimming pools near these beaches so as to accommodate a maximum number of persons? Then our everday citizens and tourists could disport themselves to their heart's content, and after their swim sun themselves on the nearby sands. These pools could be used the whole year round with the construction of removable, clear plastic domes.—Concerned.

FROM PARIS

By C. L. SULZBERGER

Renewed U.S. - French Amity

THERE has been notable improvement in Franco-American relations in the past year. This process began during the final months of General de Gaulle's presidency and has been accelerated under that of his successor. As a result it has now been agreed that President Pompidou will pay an official visit to the United States early next year although the precise date remains to be set.

Sulzberger

From France's viewpoint the reason for renewed amity is essentially dual. The changed attitude on Vietnam was one basic contributing factor. The other factor was confirmation by President Nixon, during his visit to de Gaulle last winter, that the U.S. now accepts France's position as a true ally but one not integrated into NATO.

Pompidou feels an easier relationship has been established, one consequence is that the United States and NATO can rest assured that, although it is now legally permissible to do so, France has no intention of denouncing the North Atlantic Treaty in the foreseeable future. Furthermore, France is prepared to better co-ordinate its military relationships with the alliance.

The French are today prepared to discuss joint strategic planning, joint nuclear targeting and a common understanding of how their small atomic force would be used in an emergency, to suit allied objectives.

This represents a distinct departure even from the latter-day Gaullist period when friendship had not yet moved this far. Paris, in fact, thinks it more logical that these problems should be regulated directly with Washington because, with the alliance's American commander, it sees NATO strategy as identical with U.S. strategy.

Although a pronouncedly warmer bias toward America is detectable, it would be erroneous to deduce from this fact any signal changes in France's European policy. Despite a less acerbic attitude toward London, there is not much more chance that Britain will enter the Common Market under Pompidou than under de Gaulle.

Paris insists that the Market's crucial agricultural policy must be fixed before the British application is even reconsidered. Thus the vital question of prices for farm products would be settled without London's participation. It is apparent that Pompidou simply doesn't think Britain can afford to pay the price of admission or that it will wish to.

Sceptics

The Pompidou regime professes open-mindedness on this and acknowledges that its analysis may prove wrong — but it doesn't think so. Therefore, discussion of a possible Anglo-French nuclear force to be placed at the service of the expanded European Community doesn't strike Paris as real. France doesn't think Britain genuinely wants such an arrangement and, anyway, it doesn't think Britain will finally join the European Community.

On the contrary, it is held probable here that the six-nation Common Market will continue. France is obsessed with Napoleonic memories this year, the two hundredth anniversary of the emperor's birth, and likes to recall that the Europe he dominated was almost identical with that of the Common Market, even to the point of a divided Germany.

Should Pompidou's calculations prove wrong — that is to say, should Britain persevere and join the Common Market — it is believed the European Community would be profoundly altered. It would then cease being a tightly disciplined structure and would, instead, become a large, loose, free trade area within which certain members made special agricultural agreements.

Were Britain admitted, other countries such as Ireland and Denmark would obviously join right away. Furthermore, new problems would be posed concerning the desire of neutral lands such as Sweden, Switzerland and Austria to become members.

Before this process ended there would be a massive economic bloc embracing more than 300 million people. The expanded Community would have such enormous commercial strength that this fact would unquestionably exasperate the United States.

Competition With Europe

America would then, for economic reasons, be forced to compete with Europe in a way that might strain trans-Atlantic relationships. Paris feels that already one can detect rivalry between the U.S. and the six-nation Market over European grain exports, which are creating a serious problem for America.

Nevertheless, the possibility outlined above is considered far too theoretical to be regarded here as a serious hypothesis — for the simple reason that Pompidou doesn't envision British entry into "Europe" as any more likely than de Gaulle thought. Under the circumstances one might say the basic thrust of the Pompidou foreign policy now being elaborated concentrates much more earnestly on improving American relationships than it does on reorganizing Europe.

Looking Back

From the Times, Aug. 8, 1909.

A loud explosion in the west end of the city and a column of smoke ascending alarmed citizens shortly after 8 o'clock last night. As it was plainly a heavy discharge of explosive, the reverberations being prolonged, there were many rumours of powder warehouses blowing up. The explosion was the setting off of a large charge in connection with the blasting operations in the channel leading to the Inner Harbor.

Non-returnable bottles are in the same category as tin cans or waxed cartons. The proper place for them is the garbage cans.

The bad habits of elders have been passed on to children. What is needed is not legislation, but education. It would be interesting to know how many parents caution children to leave the empty bottles at the place of purchase or bring them home for proper disposition. For that matter, how many parents observe these practices?

LONDON — Whether or not planeloads of pregnant Danes descend on London clinics seeking abortions is in itself relatively unimportant.

The planeloads are not arriving on anything like the suggested scale; and if they were it would merely prove — as the rumours of it are intended to — the superiority of British over Danish law.

But the process by which a mountain has been made out of this particular molehill is more interesting. It is a fine specimen of backlash thought, comparable to the motherly croonings of some columnists over Prince Charles, or the suggestion that this parliament has blotted the statute book with permissive legislation for which there was no popular mandate.

There will be many more examples in the next two or three years, and the phenomenon deserves serious study.

Common to all such outbursts is the proposition that liberals have recently had it all their own way.

'We have gone far enough," is a popular illiberal rallying cry, under which we are invited to observe, or even support, "an overdue swing of the pendulum," "a widespread desire to return to normality," or "a revolt of the much-oppressed squares." Chesterton may be pressed into service: "We are the people of England, who have not spoken yet."

When we do, it is further implied, we shall protest against the long-haired nonsense (divorce, abortion, dirty books, pop-groups, student protest, blasphemy, the absence of hanging or flogging) which has been rammed down our throats by arrogant, all-powerful, irresponsible mandarins.

Like Gaullists in power, the illiberal lobby has a romantic fantasy that it is really a resistance group.

Urged to Speak Up

Enoch Powell is congratulated for breaking "a conspiracy of silence." Mr. John Braine urges young right-wingers to speak up for their convictions although their careers will suffer for it.

If ill-wishes were horses, liberalism would ride roughshod all over the country.

In fact, it does nothing of the kind. There are two points that should be made against this ridiculous mythology of reaction.

The first is that even in the area of formal law there are far more tasks ahead than tasks completed, if this is to be in any serious sense an officially liberal country. The rights of women, libel laws, licensing laws, Sunday entertainment laws, religious education, bastardy: in these and many other areas our society is not even nominally permissive.

Some of them are trivial. But it is one of the most exasperating of conservative tenets to argue that a trivial abuse should remain, while a trivial reform is not worth the trouble. Whether a restrictive law is under discussion or already in existence, the onus of justification should always be on the restricters.

But the second point is more important: not de jure but de facto liberalism, not the formal provisions of laws but the spirit and manner in which laws are applied.

Not the Enforcers

It may by true that liberal consensus prevails among MPs, journalists and academics (though even here the unanimity is much exaggerated).

But these are not the enforcers of authority whom most people meet in their daily lives.

Is there a conspiracy of permissiveness among immigration officers, nurses, schoolmasters, policemen, social security clerks, traffic wardens, magistrates, local housing authorities, charity commissioners, prison officials and the like?

The remotest contact with them proves that there is not. It is not the liberal legislators but the critics of liberalism, the we-have-gone-too-far brigade, who are leading sheltered lives.

The great permissive revolution, like the great abolition of poverty, is a non-event dreamed up by its non-experiencers; a thing that never happened, denounced by those who never felt the need of it.

Going to the Dogs

It is a cardinal principle of such theorists that youth has got out of hand. The gathering in Hyde Park recently to commemorate Brian Jones, according to the prophets of doom, was a parade of the dogs we are going to.

But the alienation of young people from most institutions and organs of power suggests how little these institutions have changed.

One cannot simultaneously denounce the young and their values for taking over everything and for taking part in nothing.

The truth is that the pendulum has merely started to swing. It may swing back, if cowardice or privilege prevail.

But this is still a very static, traditional, hierarchical country, compared with what it could and should be.

The squares do not need to revolt; they are still in control. With luck, that control may pass into other hands; but the change is only just beginning.

U.S. 'Grass-Roots Jews' Turning to Violence

By LEROY F. AARONS

NEW YORK — One day recently a three-column ad appeared in a local newspaper showing six surly looking men in sunglasses, some of them with clubs and iron pipes in their hands. Above the photo was the headline: "Is this any way for nice Jewish boys to behave?"

The answer, in the text of the ad, was "Maybe. Maybe there are times when there is no other way to get across to the extremist that the Jew is not quite the patsy some think he is."

●

The six men in the photo were members of the Jewish Defence League, an armed, para-military organization formed last year. In the incident photographed they were taking their stand before Temple Emanu-El, a reform synagogue on Fifth Avenue, to resist a demand for reparations from black leader James Forman.

Forman never showed up, but the league felt it had dramatically illustrated its mission: "To defend Jewish rights and survival by any means necessary."

The league's slogan is remarkably similar to that of the Black Panthers, one of the "extremist" groups the league claims it is defending against. But league chairman Meir Kehane, an orthodox rabbi who is editor of the Jewish Press, a Jewish nationalist weekly, says there is a distinction.

"The fact that American bombers bombed Germany and Nazi planes bombed Coventry cannot be seen as the same thing," he said. "We don't put out hatred of black. We hate violence; it's a horrible thing. But it is not a Jewish tenet to turn the other cheek."

●

The league claims phenomenal growth since its modest founding last summer by Kehane, Morton Dolinsky, a public relations man, and Bertram Zweibon, a lawyer. It now claims 5,700 members from coast to coast, 80 per cent of whom live in the New York metropolitan area, and more than half of whom are students (although rarely more than 30 are seen at league demonstrations).

The league's program includes training in karate, field drill, rifle and pistol shooting as well as classes in political history, and political action, such as its campaign to defeat Mayor John V. Lindsay.

The league has been condemned by such groups as the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith as a "self-appointed group of vigilantes whose protection the Jewish communtiy does not need or want."

Kehane, a dark, brooding man of 36, smiles benevolently at such attacks by Jewish groups and a recent editorial in the New York Times in which league members were called "goons."

"We would have given the Times 1,000 dollars for that editorial," he said. "We'll get a couple of hundred members as a result. The grass roots Jew knows we're right. He's the one who joins us."

LINDSAY

The "grass roots Jew," added Kehane, the middle-class, white-collar Jew in Queens and Brooklyn, has become frightened by two things: the erosion of Jewish rights in both general and anti-semitic attacks; and the apathy of local, state and national government to that erosion process.

"It's of little comfort for us to have a Jewish merchant's store burned down and then have somebody say, 'You were burned not as a Jew but as a white man,'" said Kehane. "When anti-semitic teachers were allowed to continue teaching in the schools, when a teacher gave an assignment to a pupil to copy an anti-Jewish poem, when things like this happen and nothing is done, we begin to see a terrible apathy and indifference."

Kehane brushed aside any suggestion that these incidents may have been isolated ones, or that the causes may have lain elsewhere than "extremism."

"The point is that it is very easy to write protest letters, but that doesn't impress militants," said Kehane. "They understand one thing—it's a tragedy, but that's the way it is — they understand meeting force with greater force."

●

Up to now, league activities have been limited to a few minor skirmishes. In one case, a group of league members engaged in a fray with blacks on the City University campus during the disturbances there last May. In another incident chronicled by Kehane, league members gave police an ultimatum to rout students from a building they had occupied on the Brooklyn College campus by a certain time. If not, "we were going in." The raid never came, because the building was vacated by the students before the "deadline." for reasons other than the ultimatum.

The last incident illustrates another league tenet — that it has the right to take the law into its own hands when it believes the law enforcement agencies are not doing so.

●

"Law and order is a two-way street," said Kehane. "We expect it to be enforced; if it should be shown to us it is not being enforced, then we will look to it ourselves. If we see guns being used openly by certain groups, we will tell the police, 'either you people stop it, or we will have to use them also.'"

Kehane said his group possesses "a lot of weapons--pistols and rifles," but "all our weapons are legal and we warn our people against any illegal action."

Kehane debunked any implication that his group was racist, noting that it is just as strongly opposed to the radical right as the black extremist left. (League members tangled at a recent parade with American nazi youth.)

"But," he added, "it is the black extremist who at this moment poses to us a clear and present danger."

New MPs: Time to Produce

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

It's been a stock opinion in the past few months that the 60-plus Liberal MPs who joined the government caucus after the last election are generally very able.

We'd go further and say that in a good blend of education, experience, ambition and ideas this was the most talented input any one party has injected into a new Parliament.

It is necessary to draw a corollary to this, however, after the long first session.

★ ★ ★

A columnist touched on an aspect of it the other day when he emphasized that all this fresh talent and determination (which is especially manifest in private conversations) behaved like the normal claque in following through the government's ukase on closure and the time limitation rule.

Put another way, they're classy as can be in the dressing room but a pretty tame, traditional bunch of hangers-on out on the political field.

The explanation for the limp performance of the new Liberal backbench varies on whether one is for or against their party.

The outsiders believe that there is a surfeit of ambition and an allied stress on looking upward, particularly to the Prime Minister.

Too many bought the opinion that to get ahead a new MP nust be loyal and eager and subservient. This bent was supported by the over-reverence the new boys had for the Prime Minister, both as the immensely popular leader who swept them in and as a brilliant brain.

You can add to this criticism a view we've also heard that the talent is good, the ambition strong but the purpose weak; that is, the inordinate desire to do well is ill-matched in ideas of what they want to do. A great dearth of policy goals.

The insiders, including a number of the new men we've spoken to, have a different explanation.

★ ★ ★

They were green and starry-eyed and over-reverent through the early months. Now, they have found out how Parliament and the caucus and the cabinet work.

They were very conscious that the PM was developing a new structure for cabinet and his own office.

They've been influenced by the two legacies of the previous administrations: A big backlog of legislation that was a bit shipworn; and the imperative need for tight financial control and other anti-inflation moves which restrict grand designs.

★ ★ ★

The promise is: Wait until next session. The apprenticeship is over. They know now the PM is mortal and goof-prone and the cabinet fairly ordinary men too involved in detail and routine.

They know how to improve their role in House committees. They have undertakings from their chief that they'll have more say in policy matters before the content emerges as legislation.

We spot several indicators that the critical outsiders are on sound grounds in doubting that the brimming promise will lead to any major changes in either the stylized behavior of government backbenchers or the stock dominance by the Prime Minister and the bureaucracy.

First, there's been no coalescing of anything like a radical ginger group, nor can we find any minister in the cabinet who is the magnet for such radicalism or even for minor groupings around an enthusiasm for the subject areas of any minister or for a particular personality.

Secondly, most of the action types are English-speaking MPs.

In the old Grit tradition, the Quebec MPs of French stock are ciphers around the House, its committees and in the party caucus. The tradition holds, with a few exceptions such as Pierre de Bane (Matane) and Jacques Builbault (Saint-Jacques).

The most discouraging comment we get from Liberal MPs is so damnably defensive for a new group only in power for a year. It is: "Remember, we've three more years."

★ ★ ★

If the Givens, Dansons, Gillespies, Hogarths, Roberts, Andersons, MacGuigans and St. Pierres don't come on strongly, quickly, demonstrating their talents both as individuals and as a governing party that really wants to do things, we promise to stop telling you how good they are. It'll be a case of how good they seemed to be.

About Life on the Other Side

WASHINGTON — He was puffing pot at 11, experimenting with heroin at 13 (he never got hooked like his brother). The violent, drug-laden life of author Claude Brown was an exotic world to the house select committee on crime.

Committee members listened attentively. They asked respectful, interested questions.

But they were white and middle class and straight. And Brown came from a society that was black, poor and hip. He might have been describing the lunar landscape.

The committee was studying the relationship of drug abuse to crime. Its other witnesses were academic types—PhDs from California with carefully prepared texts and reams of research data.

★

Donald R. Cressey of Santa Barbara reported that drug pushers—crime syndicate street representatives—were the heroes of slum youth. Richard H. Blum of Stanford warned that use of "psychoactive" drugs was soaring among young people, and suggested means of dealing with the traffic.

Brown spoke without notes. His research had taken a lifetime.

He told of stealing, of stabbing, of reform schools, of proving himself a "big man" at age 11 to the streetcorner gangs who dominate juvenile life in Harlem.

His brother Henry told of heroin addiction. Arthur Dunmeyer, another ex-junkie, who now runs an Urban League rehabilitation clinic in Harlem, reported to the silent committee that he once squeezed out a live animal's eyes in a fit of unexplained violence.

Drugs? "You name it, I've tried it," said Claude Brown, author of "Manchild in the Promised Land".

He argued that drugs should be legalized, not because they are good or harmless, but because present laws discriminate against the poor and the black.

A middle class white businessman gets drunk when he's frustrated, Brown said. But ghetto people live in constant frustration, and "they have to have something more soothing than alcohol."

". . . There's not a more satisfying drug than heroin. It sort of picks you up and takes you out of your misery." (Or, as ghetto addicts put it, he said, "as long as there's dope, there's hope."

Rep. Albert Watson (R-S.C.), who had bristled before at proposals to legalize drugs, commented that "I don't sanction the illegal use of these drugs, regardless of race."

"I sort of gathered that was the consensus of the committee," the bearded author replied evenly. "Do you favor the use of alcohol and tobacco? . . . don't you think people have a right to judge what's good for them and not good for them?"

Nobody answered directly.

Dunmeyer, who said he "felt like a man for the first time" when he began helping rehabilitate addicts, backed Brown's argument about unequal treatment under law:

"The rich have laws to protect them . . . you can't kick down their doors and take all their pills out of their medicine cabinets."

★

Committee chairman Claude Pepper (D-Fla.) cleared his throat. "I'm sorry, we'll have to move on," he said.

Rep. Martha Griffiths (D-Mich.) asked hopefully whether ghetto people wouldn't give up drugs if they could enter the mainstream of American life. Brown said that was the point, but he wasn't optimistic.

Rep. Charles E. Wiggins (R-Calif.) didn't believe drug-taking was the result of oppression. He compared it to white youths trying alcohol and cigarettes at the urging of friends.

Brown looked as though California and Harlem never had been farther apart.

Hard Line Stand on Vietnam As Red Peace Talkers Dig In

PARIS (WP) — The Communist delegations to the Vietnam peace talks Thursday ridiculed President Nixon's "finest hours" pep talk in Saigon last week and said their proposed formula for a negotiated settlement was "the only correct solution."

After the 29th regular weekly session of the talks here, both sides agreed the meeting was unproductive. If anything, the prolonged deadlock seemed to have become more rigid.

Orchestrating Nixon's pledge in Saigon there would be no more Allied concessions at the talks, Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge told the meeting, "We have done all that we can do by ourselves to bring a negotiated peace to Vietnam. Now it is time for you to respond."

The Communists, however, appeared to be digging in their heels ever harder. Speaking for the Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) of South Vietnam, which represents the Viet Cong at the talks, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh said her delegation's 10-point peace plan represented "the only correct solution" to end the war.

The 10-point program, which was presented last May, calls for the total, unconditional withdrawal of American troops and the replacement of the Saigon regime with a "provisional coalition government" or "peace cabinet" to organize elections.

In the past, the PRG had shied away from labeling this plan "the only" formula for a settlement, although this was always the implication.

However, they had refused to clarify the point and never went beyond calling their plan "a correct and just one" or "the most reasonable and logical one."

The North Vietnamese delegation reaffirmed its "complete approval and unreserved support" for the PRG position.

Citing Nixon's remark that American efforts in Vietnam will be recorded as "the finest hours" of the United States, the North Vietnamese spokesman read what he said was a published letter by a young GI to his mother reporting how he had just shot three women under orders and watched as one of his buddies shot an infant in the head.

The spokesman said the letter was printed in a June edition of a California newspaper called "Freedom News."

Both the North Vietnamese and the PRG said that there had been no change in the American military strategy of "maximum pressure" in the war.

They said American statements there had been a change in tactics was merely aimed at deceiving public opinion.

Drunk Centre Sought

VANCOUVER (CP) — City coroner Glen McDonald made another plea Thursday for a city detoxication centre and more control over sale of bay rum, a cheap shaving lotion bought by skid road alcoholics. "I've watched the problem of crowded drunk tank facilities and bay rum sales grow worse and worse despite suggestions made by several coroners' juries," Dr. McDonald said during an inquest into the death of Henry Augustine Thomas, 66, an Indian totem pole carver, on July 30 in jail.

U.S. to Push for Peking Talks

CANBERRA (Reuters) — U.S. State Secretary William P. Rogers today said efforts should continue for a dialogue with Peking and accused North Vietnam of attacking Laos.

Both points were contained in a communique released by Rogers, External Affairs Minister Gordon Freeth of Australia and Prime Minister Keith Holyoake of New Zealand at the end of a one-day meeting of the Anzus Treaty Council.

The joint communique expressed concern over deterioration of the military situation in Laos and deplored North Vietnamese failure to honor obligations it assumed in the area under the 1954 and 1962 Geneva Accords.

Hanoi regrettably continued to be unwilling to end military attacks against Laos and stop using Laotian territory to support aggression against South Vietnam, the communique said.

No mention was made of the future of Australian and New Zealand troop commitments in Vietnam.

At a National Press Club luncheon in Canberra earlier today, Rogers told questioners that U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam adhered to a program made after consultation with its allies. But he said any decisions about non-U.S. forces were a matter for the allies to decide.

In answer to another query, Rogers said the U.S. would live up to its treaty obligations in the event of an external attack on Australian and New Zealand forces in Malaysia and Singapore. But he declined to discuss what he called "hypothetical questions."

Discussing China, Rogers said the U.S. would approach Peking soon about opening talks but said both sides were immovable in their attitudes toward Nationalist China.

"Their (the Chinese Communists) central position is that they will discuss nothing with us unless we first abandon support of our ally, the Republic of China. This we do not propose to do.

"We nonetheless look forward to a time when we can enter into a useful dialogue and reduction of tensions.

"We would welcome a renewal of the talks with Communist China, and we shall soon be making another approach to see if a dialogue with Peking can be resumed."

Ask-and-It-Shall-Be-Given-Days Gone for U.S. War Lords

By CHALMERS M. ROBERTS

WASHINGTON (WP) — Today's frustrations on the American scene lapped at the Senate door Wednesday and almost overran the chamber. As a result the administration won what looks like a Phyrric victory.

All the talking Wednesday, loosely called debate, didn't change a vote when the key rollcall was finally taken after weeks of discussion. Most of the talk concerned the administration's Anti-Ballistic Missile proposal, whether it would work or not and what effect passage or non-passage would have on the arms race with the Soviet Union.

But the meaning of those 49 votes against deployment now of the ABM system goes far beyond the narrow issue before the senate. The 49 votes were reflective of accumulated discontents ranging across the national spectrum.

In the first place, the 49 votes represented rebellion against the military's ability, almost without exception since the end of World War Two, to get what it wanted out of Congress.

●

As Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman J. William Fulbright (D—Ark.) put it Wednesday, "This is the first occasion this senate has ever seriously challenged on the floor a military appropriation." The men in the Pentagon, in and out of uniform, know it will never be the same again; the days of ask-and-it-shall-be-given are gone.

In the second place the 49 votes represented rebellion against the Pentagon's gargantuan appetite which consumes by far the largest share of the national budget in a period when too many citizens think taxes are taking too much of their substance. Future Pentagon and administration budgets will have to reflect the demand to scale down.

In the third place the 49 votes represented rebellion against the military budget because there are now so many other claimants on the national purse. The voices from the ghettos and from the campuses and elsewhere have not gone unheeded.

And finally those 49 votes represented rebellion by the Congress against administration fiat, against acceptance of administration reasoning especially at this moment when the United States and the Soviet Union are talking about an effort to control the arms race.

The ABM became a symbol of all these rebellions. In itself this probably was a misdirected effort since the far more critical new component of the arms race is the MIRV, the multiple-headed nuclear warheads now being developed, rather than the ABM protective system.

●

Yet the ABM became the symbol of all these frustrations and it produced the rebellion on the senate floor. Any coalition that can line up almost half the senate is not going to stop with this defeat.

Hence the victory for the administration is likely to be phyric, a victory in name only. Perhaps the ABM system will go forward, unless and until there is some Washington-Moscow agreement to limit both offensive and defensive missiles.

More likely the vote Wednesday will serve as a symbol, a warning, that the nation's priorities must be revamped. To the degree that President Nixon responds, the 49 votes will prove to have been a majority.

In international terms, the narrow approval of the ABM, it can and will be argued, will give Mr. Nixon an extra card at the arms control talks. But it is only one card expressive of national attitudes. There have been others lately, for all to see: the retreat from overpowering domination of Western European policy and the retreat from Asia as well as the Senate's earlier demand that presidents from now on ask for approval before they send American troops to fight abroad.

Perhaps not since the summer of 1941, when the House extended the peacetime draft by a margin of only one vote, 203 to 202, has there been such a thrilling rollcall as Wednesday's on a defence issue. But that was only a few months before Pearl Harbor and events soon vastly altered the then isolationist mood in America.

It could be, once again, that coming events will render Wednesday's ABM vote a simple footnote in history. But it also could be that the 49 votes will go down in the books as a key symbol of the changing tide in the United States after 24 exhausting years of America's world-wide involvement.

Wheat Price Co-operation Aussie Aim

SASKATOON (CP) — Australia and Canada should work together to combat wheat price-cutting by France and other members of the European Common Market, John Graves, assistant Australian government trade commissioner for western Canada, said this week.

Graves was here as part of a follow-up tour of the west after an Australian trade display last June in Vancouver.

"What we're worried about is that the big wheat producers are being beaten in some markets by Europeans who are so heavily subsidized by the government," he said.

"And if Britain joins the Common Market, we might both be cut out from her wheat purchase. Australia would like to work with Canada in this area."

Graves said he could not predict what the Australian government's next action would be in the face of a good wheat crop in that country.

"In our office in Vancouver, wheat is not something we concentrate on, because Canada is not a likely market for it. Our emphasis is on machinery, clothing, textiles and foodstuffs."

He said last year Canada sold twice as much to Australia as it had imported and that the Australian government was hoping to narrow the gap this year.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Mixed Trend Order of Day

Mixed trend with little change was the pattern today on both the Toronto and New York stock exchanges. Trading was moderate. OSF Industries and Seaway were both delayed at the opening but will resume trading Monday. Seaway closed Thursday at 9½, up 1⅛, and OSF closed at 21¼, up ¼. OSF said it intends to make a share-exchange offer to all Seaway shareholders on the basis of one common OSF share and one 10-year warrant for every two common Seaway shares.

AT TORONTO in industrials, Ainco jumped 2¾ to 14¼, Electrohome 2 to 29 and Falconbridge 1½ to 129½. Levy fell 2 to 28, Distillers Seagrams 1 to 48¾ and Home A 1 to 64½.

Dome Mines jumped 6 to 57, Campbell Red Lake 5⅜ to 25, New Quebec Raglan 1⅛ to 13¼ and Camflo 85 cents to $5.90.

Canadian Homestead was off 1⅛ to 21⅜, Asamera ½ to 26½. Canadian Superior Oil was up ¾ to 37¼.

AT NEW YORK after the close, it was reported that the French government had decided to devalue the franc. Some analysts said the action might have an initial bearish reaction on the market next week.

A 724,700 share block of Goodyear Tire and Rubber traded near the close. Goodyear closed off 1⅛ at 26¾.

Closing prices included Natomas, off 1⅜ at 81; Metromedia, up 1¼ at 20¼; and Pan American Sulphur, up ½ at 15⅞.

AT MONTREAL as all sectors but banks firmed, the market marked up a modest gain in light afternoon trading today. Industrials rose highest.

In banks, Canadienne Nationale rose ⅛ to 11¼ and Toronto-Dominion ¼ to 19 as ⅛-point losses chipped Royal to 19⅝, Montreal to 14 and Nova Scotia to 22. Commerce was unchanged at 19⅛.

Among industrials, Radio Engineering gained 1½ to 26½, Falconbridge 1 point to 129, Canadian Hydrocarbons ⅜ to 18 and Hunter Douglas ½ to 12½.

Freiman lost 2 to 5½, MacKinnon Structural Steel ¾ to 16½, Labatt ¾ to 25¼ and Distillers-Seagrams ½ to 49.

Great Lakes Paper was up 1 point to 24.

In senior mines and oils, Hudson Bay Mining declined 1 point to 76 and Pacific Pete ⅜ to 30⅝ while Noranda rose ⅜ to 31⅜, Imperial ⅝ to 18⅜ and Central Del Rio ½ to 13.

AT LONDON a distinctly easier trend developed on the stock market today as profit-taking pared some gains made earlier in the week.

Canadian oils showed small gains although Pacific Pete eased slightly. Canadian Pacific gave up Thursday's two-point gain at 178 and Inco lost one point at 88½.

Banks were firmer and golds showed little change.

AT VANCOUVER light trading and a soft market were the rule in morning trading today.

About 950,000 shares were traded to 11 a.m.

Oils and industrials were down.

In the mines, only Adanac, Magnum and Utica showed gains, each up by 10 cents. Heaviest loser was Brenda Mines, down 50 cents to $10.50. Buttle was down .30 to $5 and Silver Arrow dropped .20 to $3.

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybeans futures prices advanced on the Board of Trade today.

Most gains were fractional in moderate to brisk trading.

Corn suffered only brief setback in mid-morning when a private report forecast production at levels higher than expected. Prices quickly bounced back, however, and were fractionally higher near the close.

The forecast estimated corn production at about 4,400,000,000 bushels as against a government projection of 4,280,000,000 issued last month.

Lumber Prices Show Stability

The bottom of the B.C. retail lumber market appears to have been reached, local dealers say.

Building supply dealers agree levelling of prices in the past month shows the stability hoped for when prices slipped 20 per cent between spring and early summer.

But at the same time, a spokesman for the Council of Forest Industries of B.C. said forecasting lumber prices is difficult.

NO GUARANTEE

"There is no guarantee prices will drop or rise. If anyone knew what they are going to be, they'd be Solomon and Socrates rolled into one," the CFI man said.

He quoted cfi president Gordeon Draeseke as saying "there is no way you can predict. It's like predicting the stock market."

But CFI noted the lumber manufacturing industry had been hoping for a bottoming out and that the rate of decline in prices since the spring had slowed, at least in the railway market upon which coast yard prices are based.

"I can't see prices going any lower," said a Victoria dealer.

Another said he could foresee no marked price fluctuation at all for the rest of the year and through the winter.

It was during last year that lumber prices shot up with marked regularity, reaching a peak by the spring of this year of $175-$180 per thousand board feet.

This was the retail price to contractors of average construction grade dimension lumber, fir or hemlock.

Today the same grades are retailing for about $139 per thousand, which is about $115 at the mill, a marginal rise of a few dollars since the 20 per cent drop of about mid-June.

BECAUSE once he couldn't find a parking place Charles Bentley, of Los Angeles, is a millionaire. He is seen with one of the quick, economical — and portable — parking structures his firm builds. They can be assembled quickly on a temporarily unused downtown lot and dismantled in five days when the land is needed for a permanent building. Bentley estimates his company will gross $10 million by year's end. The structures are built of steel beams and pre-cast concrete slabs. They accommodate about 570 cars. (AP Wirephoto.)

ROTHMANS, BREWERIES IN SHAKEUP

TORONTO (CP) — Paul Jacobus Erasmus, former vice-president of Rothmans Pall Mall Canada Ltd., has been named president of Canadian Breweries Ltd. in a major shakeup of the executives of both Toronto-based companies.

Rothmans acquired a half-interest in the brewery earlier this year. Mr. Erasmus succeeds John G. Campbell, who retired recently.

Wilmat Tennyson, former vice-president of marketing for Rothmans, will succeed John Devlin as president of Rothmans, Mr. Devlin announced Thursday. Mr. Devlin remains chairman and chief executive officer of Canadian Breweries.

The announcement followed the resignatin earlier this week of nine memders of Canadian Breweries' board of directors.

Louis St. Laurent, former chairman of Rothmans, becomes honorary chairman and his director's seat is aken by his son, Renault. Mr. Devlin said Mr. St. Laurent, former Canadian prime minister, requested retirement as chairman because of age and ill health, but agreed to remain as honorary chairman.

Handley Page Seeks Backing By U.S. Firm

LONDON (Reuters) — Handley Page Ltd., Britain's oldest independent aircraft builders, today announced it has run out of money but is launching a big financial rescue operation with possible American backing.

The company, founded 60 years ago by British aircraft pioneer Frederick Handley Page, recently borrowed £6,000,000 ($15,600,000) from a British bank.

But it announced today that it does not have "the necessary resources available to carry on any longer in its present form."

A statement said it is negotiating with the American-based International Jetstream Corp. with a view to forming a new company.

The American company has an exclusive arrangement to market Handley Page turbo-prop Jet Stream executive aircraft and it was hoped International Jetstream would inject £4,500,000 into the new company.

Supply of Money Continues Tight

OTTAWA (CP) — The money supply remains tight, showing an increase of less than five per cent in the 12 months ended July 30, it was reported in Bank of Canada statistics released Thursday.

Currency in circulation and demand deposits in the chartered banks totalled $8,879,000,000 at July 30, only $283,000,000 more than a year earlier.

Including personal savings and the less readily-available term and notice deposits, the total money supply exclusive of federal government deposits totalled $27,432,000,000, up $1,345,000,000 for the year.

This gain of less than five per cent compared with an increase of 13.3 per cent in the year ended last Dec. 31. The Bank of Canada has been holding the growth of the money supply tightly since the first quarter of 1969 as an anti-inflation measure.

Money market interest rates eased slightly. Three-month treasury bills sold at Thursday's auction at prices giving investors an average yield of 7.61 per cent, compared with 7.62 last week and 7.67 a week earlier.

The bank's average of yields on seven long-term federal government bonds at market prices prevailing this week was 7.5 per cent, compared with 7.52 last week and 7.53 a week earlier.

Tough Committee Patrols Major German Business

By CLYDE H. FARNSWORTH

FRANKFURT, Germany (NYT) — It is putting pressure on Volkswagen to pay a bigger dividend. It probed the affairs of the Rheinestalh Steel Company and found the enterprise was masking losses by the sale of assets. It got a German beer company, Bavaria Saint Pauli of Hamburg, to reveal the breakdown of its production of alcoholic and nonalcoholic beverages.

The German Stockholders Protective Committee (Deutsche Schutzvereinigung Fuer Wertpapierbesitz) has become the sheriff of people's capitalism in Germany.

Its voice, usually that of Christian Will, its lawyer and bank-trained general manager, is heard at more than 500 annual meetings a year, and management generally takes notice.

The committee speaks for 10,000 members who pay at least $6 a year in dues, but its power base is more dispersed, lying in four million German stockholders whose rights have been strengthened over the years by tough company laws.

COURT ACTION

The committee went to court to force the Hamburg beer company to disclose its production figures. Under the law, the company had to prove that disclosure would be detrimental to its interests. It was unable to satisfy the court that it would be.

German companies had ways of providing extra compensation to directors by giving them special jobs to do. The committee fought this practice and finally got legislation in 1965 to make it illegal.

Lregely through the committee's activities, minority stockholders now get special compensation if they sell their shares.

Will, the boyish-looking general manager, said in a recent interview that full corporate disclosure was one of the committee's main objectives. Another goal, he said, was greater ownership of a company by its employees.

The high-powered organization is also active in the political arena. It is now ranged against German trade unions who want half the board of directors of All-German companies to be worker representatives.

Japanese Production Jumps 18.3%

TOKYO (Reuters) — Japan achieved a near-record economic growth of 14.3 per cent in real terms during the 1968 financial year, figures show.

Preliminary figures released by the government economic planning agency showed the gross national product in the year ended March 31, 1969, was just over 52 trillion yen, about $159 billion.

This was an increase of 18.3 per cent over 1967 nominally and of 14.3 per cent after price adjustment, the agency said. The rate of real growth was second only to the 14.4 per cent in the 1961 financial year.

The agency said it was certain Japan had passed West Germany in terms of its gross national product and now stood second to the United States.

It said the Japanese national income in 1968 was the equivalent of $1,233 a head.

Ashland Oil in Deal With British Firm

LONDON (CP)—A new prospectus issued by the $300,000,000 firm of S. Pearson and Son says the company has provisionally agreed to transfer most of its Canadian and United States oil-producing interests to the Ashland Oil and Refining Co. of America.

Under a deal now being completed, the interests would be exchanged for 508,800 of convertible preferred stock in Ashland, worth about $55,000,000.

If converted, this would give the British company a 4.8-per-cent holding in Ashland.

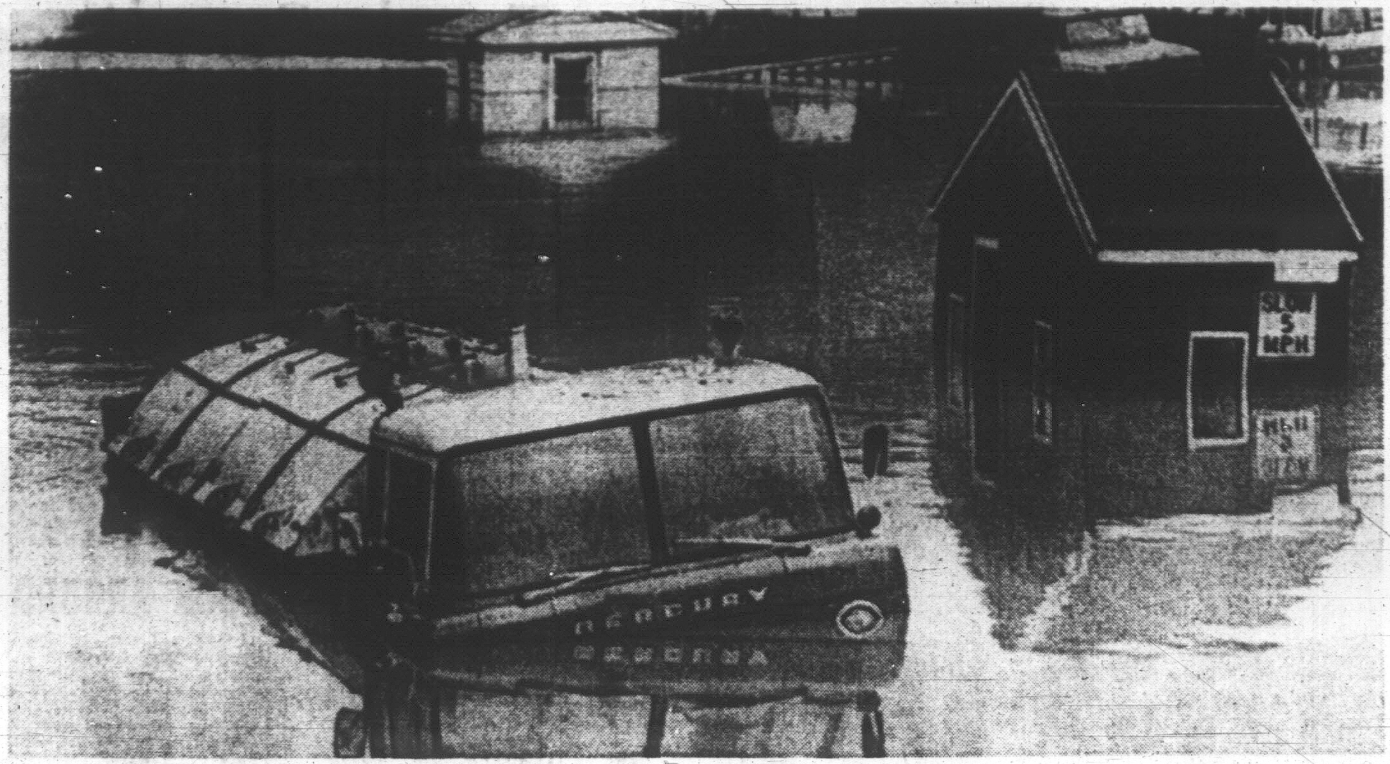
Hanoi Ends Rations

HANOI (AFP) — North Vietnam this week ended rationing of 22 consumer goods, including gasoline, soap and household fabrics, "the better to satisfy the needs of the population." Since Tuesday tickets have not been required for purchase of the 22 articles. A check indicated all are on free sale in ample quantities in this capital's stores.



GARBAGE GOT ITS OWN BACK on these Edmonton trucks when debris blocked storm drains in parking areas just as city was hit by heavy deluge. Water backed up to a depth of 20 feet in spots, and only a dozen of the 60 garbage trucks were able to move. (CP Wirephoto.)

His Highland Laments Funniest Case in Court

VANCOUVER (CP) — The judge said it was one of the funniest cases he's ever tried.

The courtroom spectators clapped when it was over.

And the accused, clad in a kilt and carrying exhibit A — a set of bagpipes — defended himself. He won the case, after explaining that "I wouldn't want to spend a considerable amount of money on a lawyer."

The defendant was Alan Hassan, Scottish-born former "hot line" radio broadcaster, known locally as "the hot Scot." He was charged with disturbing the peace by playing his pipes from the 16th floor balcony of an apartment building.

"It was one of the funniest cases I've had yet," chuckled provincial court Judge David Moffett Thursday in dismissing the charge after a full day of testimony.

"It was a dream case and I think everybody enjoyed themselves, including the defendant."

The judge heard testimony that Hassan started playing his bagpipes daily after being given his eviction notice by the apartment building in which he was living.

He coupled the Highland laments, court was told, with a sign that gave a countdown with the number of days left until he had to vacate the building on Aug. 30.

"It may be funny now but the noise wan't funny then," sighed building superintendent Raoul Blackburn.

Defected to West

BEIRUT (AP) — Frantisek August, a third secretary, has disappeared from the Czechoslovak Embassy. Police sources said Wednesday, "We believe he has defected to the West." The embassy told police August, his wife and two sons were found to have deserted their apartment.

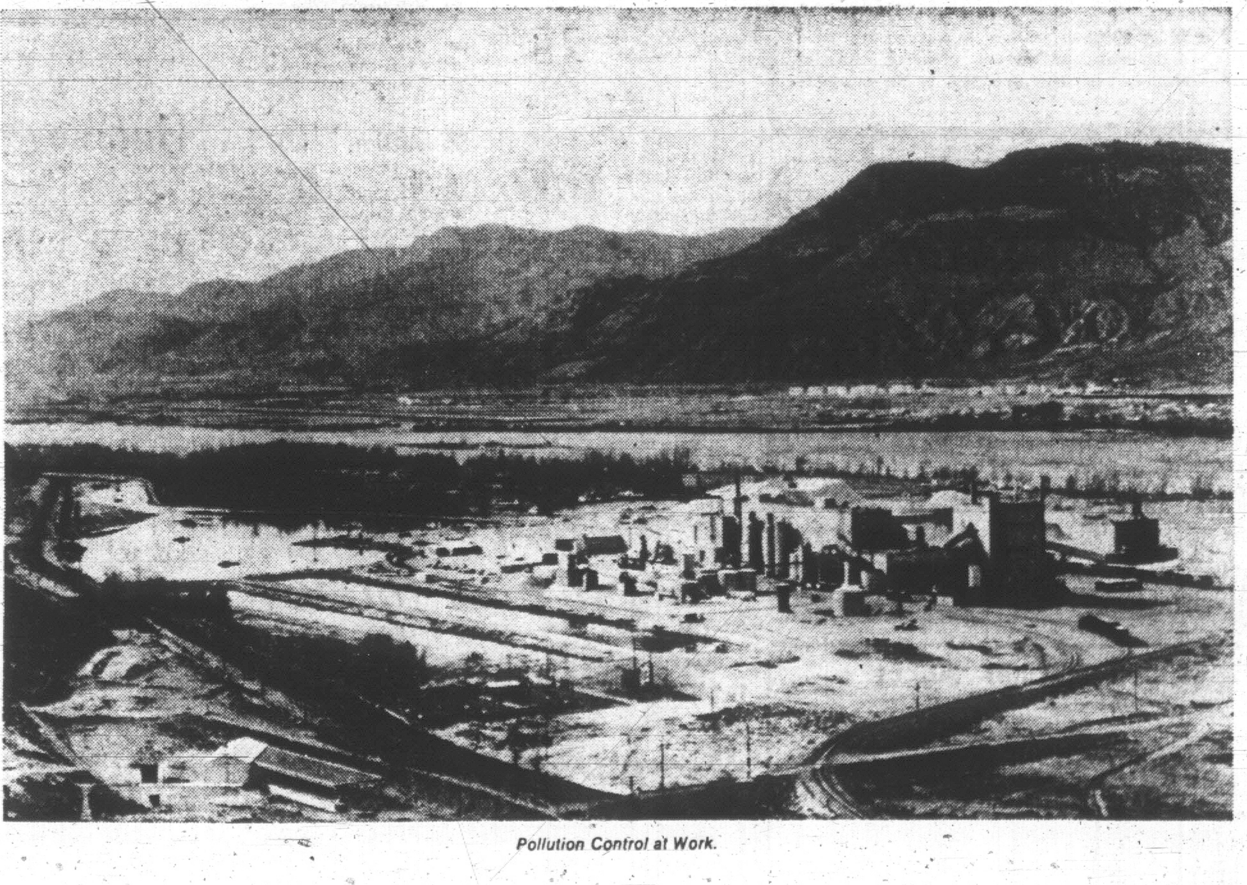
GOVERNMENT OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

PULP MILL EFFLUENT CONTROL



Pollution Control at Work.

The standards of effluent control set for recently constructed pulp mills under permit in British Columbia are recognized as containing among the highest requirements to be found anywhere. The objectives of these standards are to protect public health, recreational facilities, fisheries and wildlife.

Because these standards are unprecedented in their requirements, they have challenged the ability of manufacturers and engineers to design, construct and maintain unexcelled waste-control facilities. Some efforts have been more successful than others, but it is anticipated that at an early date every pulp mill under permit in British Columbia will meet the high effluent control standards on an uninterrupted basis.

The wealth of information obtained by continuous testing of various waste-control facilities in the past three years is proving to be a valuable asset in making precise assessments of facilities to be installed in future mills and in existing mills which are now being required to update their controls.

In recognition of their responsibilty to the people of this province, management and personnel at pulp mills throughout British Columbia are cooperating in their efforts to meet the Pollution Control Branch's stringent regulations governing effluent control, especially in cases where surveillance has shown a pulp mill's effluent treatment to be insufficient and when the Pollution Control Branch has required immediate remedial action.

Files Damage Suit

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP)—Thirty minutes after grand theft charges were dismissed against Ronald Dante, husband of actress Lana Turner, he filed a $7,000,000 damage suit alleging malicious prosecution against the now-defunct Marlin Boat Co. in a 1968 transaction involving the purchase of seven motorboats. Dante was arrested last June.

Orphanage Land Offered Free

MANHEIM, Pa. (AP) — An 80-year-old Amish farmer wants to give away 12 acres of land if somebody will build an orphanage on it. But so far he has no takers.

"I don't want any money out of this or any praise," says Noah Greiner of Manheim, Lancaster County. "I just want to help somebody, that's all."

Three years ago Greiner thought the site—high on a hill overlooking a lush valley—would be ideal for an old folk's home, "but the people took another area that had buildings on it."

"We're getting on in years and figure we don't have much time left," say the Greiners, who have five children, 10 grandchildren and a great-grandchild. "We just want to do something good while we still can."

Greiner says he has always had an interest in homeless children, recalling that in 1918 they took in an eight-year-old girl whose mother had died.

"We had been married for a couple of years and had one baby boy," he recalls. "We thought all children should have a home, so we went to the Lancaster Orphanage to pick out a girl. She's married now and a grandmother herself."

Greiner's farm covers 100 acres and he still rises with the roosters and helps milk the cows.

Bill WALKER

"City of champions."

Someone else said it first, but there's an old saying that qualifies its use here. And it goes like this:

"If the hat fits, wear it."

And Victoria and district this month finds itself in a fine position to wear that mantle proudly, and with distinction.

For this will be a "City of Champions" from now until the end of the month.

Yes, there is a lot ahead for the sports buff. The program is varied, the competitions are provincial or national, and it's all of the very best.

Ready?

Currently, there is the B.C. Pony League baseball championship, which ends this weekend.

Also there are the B.C. Open Tennis championships at the Racquet Club, ending Saturday, and,

The B.C. Senior A Men's softball playoffs at Central Park, ending Sunday.

But you don't like softball or tennis.

Next week there is the Canadian Little League baseball championship at Hampton Park.

And also, next week, there is the B.C. Open Golf championship at Uplands Golf Club.

But you don't like baseball or golf.

Well then, how about the Canadian lawn bowling championships, starting Aug. 25?

Or the Canadian national track and field senior championships, Aug. 30 and 31?

Surely you can fit one of them in.

●

The Pony Leaguers wind up Sunday with the local hope being that a city club can emulate the feat of last year's Carnarvon Park team which went all the way to the Pony League "world series" in Washington, Penn., and in that playoff represented the city with honor.

And then there is the Little League playdown which starts Tuesday night, and runs through until Friday or Saturday — depending on the results and the weather — and marking the first time that a double-knockout competition has been held to decide a LL champion.

And it does seem reasonable, and makes good sense, that a club, coming from as far as Halifax or thereabouts, can get a second chance. One game and you're out is passe in this era.

But just one word of advice. Come early, and avoid the rush. This one is the biggest weeks in the lives of several little guys.

And the B.C. Golf torunament at Uplands, the same week, but ending on Sunday, is ranked as the best ever for talent in recent history.

The complete list of entries isn't out but the names that dot the list are such that a fellow like Bill McColl, who fired a 64 at Uplands a while ago, can't get in.

Suffice to say that Wayne Vollmer, Dick Munn, Al Mengert, Bob Cox, and many of the pros who make up the Canadian tour, are among those who will be here and firing.

●

Lawn bowling may not be your particular forte, but I'll tell you this: there's much more involved than meets the eye in a cursory glance. So drop by and play a shot or two over again with the buffs in the crowd.

The competitors will be champions all, and you may get a pleasant surprise at the quality of strategy and shotmaking displayed.

And again to the top.

The Canadian track and field senior championships put a fine cap on a fine month.

The entries are as yet undecided because the top events which will dictate the class of the competition, the eastern and western Canadian outdoor championships will not be held until this weekend.

Victorians will get their chance at Vancouver, with Bob McLaren and Anne Langdale previously qualified because of championship performances last season.

The others with a good chance are Dave Weicker, Penny May, Lindsay Jack and perhaps a surprise or two.

And here's another "come early and avoid the rush sign."

The best seats are at the finish line and are being presold. And with the Jaycees engaged in a joining of hands with the Victoria Track Association on this one, the success of the meet is assured. But the tickets may be hard to come by at meet time. They should sell that well.

●

And so but for the minute details, and one small speck on the cinder track facility, everything appears to be in hand.

The one problem still bugging meet director Ron Bowker is the conversion of the track to 400 metres from 440 yards, and resurfacing the existing track before the championships.

Ron feels it should be done and has earmarked the recent grant of $7,500 from the provincial government for this project and also toward the improvement of other facilities.

The cost of all this is estimated at between $15,000 and $18,000 and therein lies the largest of those minute details.

Ron's thought is, "as this is the best there is in Canada, we should provide the best in return.

"After all, we've never had it before, and may want it again."

"City of champions."

You should believe it, and support it.

Marathon Battle Produces Upset

Three of the favorites in the men's singles chase stroked their way to semi-final berths Thursday in the British Columbia Open tennis championships at the Racquet Club.

Breaking the pattern was Pierce Kelly, a Miami Beach swinger who didn't mind overtime work. Ranked fifth in singles, Kelly produced a mild upset when he finally triumphed over thrd-seeded Chris Chapin, 4-6, 14-12, 6-4, in a marathon battle.

MUENCH ADVANCES

Fourth-seed Lew Grinnan of Dallas, Texas, downed Bruce Kellock 4-6, 9-7, 6-4 and second-ranked Tom Muench from San Francisco gained another berth with a 6-2, 6-4 win over seventh-seeded Jim Watson.

The other berth was filled by Craig Hardy, who defeated another unseeded player, Ed Bell, 6-3, 6-4.

Hardy was scheduled to meet Grinnan and Kelley to face Muench today to decide Saturday's finalists.

A mother-and-daughter team of Joanne and Mary Struthers of La Jolla, Calif., advanced to the distaff doubles final by downing Dodo Cheney and Helen McDowell, 6-2, 6-1.

Mrs. Cheney advanced the final in another event by scoring a 6-1, 6-1 victory over Ruth Trelawny in a veterans' semi-final.

HIGH-STEPPING SCHOOLBOY

Leaping winger Peter Fletcher (left) of Manchester, has eyes on ball but scoring effort is thwarted by Victoria goalie Wayne O'Malley (white sweater) during international schoolboys' soccer exhibition Thursday at Royal Athletic Park. Theil Van Der Bergh (13), who scored the Victoria goal in 1-1 draw, provides backup support for his goaltender. It was third straight draw for Manchester. (See story on Page 13.)

There's Price to Pay In Ignoring Old Adage

By The Canadian Press

There's an old baseball belief that if you walk the pitcher he'll kill you; let him hit a home run and you don't deserve to win.

San Diego Padres and Pittsburgh Pirates paid no heed Thursday, but they paid the price in the only two National League games played.

San Diego lost 2-1 to St. Louis Cardinals and the winning run was scored after Cardinals' pitcher Mike Torrez had drawn a walk.

Los Angeles Dodgers thumped the Pirates 6-0 and pitcher Claude Osteen clouted a home run.

BROCK HELPS

The Padres and Cardinals were tied 1-1 when Mike Shannon opened the fifth inning with a single. He advanced to second on an infield out and reached third on a wild pitch.

Then Torrez walked and Lou Brock followed with the sacrifice fly that gave the Cardinals their deciding run.

Osteen won his 15th game with a five-hitter and hurled his fifth shutout of the season. The Dodgers' left-hander rapped his fourth career homer and drove in another run with a single.

The two teams with the best records in the American League begin a three-game series tonight — but it's crucial only to one of them.

TIGERS TAME TWINS

Baltimore Orioles, runaway leaders by 15 games in the Eastern Division after thrashing Kansas City Royals 10-2 Thursday, play Minnesota Twins, whose lead over Oakland Athletics in the Western Division was sliced to two games when they lost 6-4 to Detroit Tigers Thursday.

Elsewhere in the AL, Oakland blanked Cleveland Indians 3-0 and Boston Red Sox rallied to edge Seattle Pilots 5-4. California, Chicago, New York and Washington were not scheduled.

The big men for the Orioles were Boog Powell, who drove in four runs with his 30th homer and a single to tie Minnesota's Harmon Killebrew for the major league runs-batter-in lead at 101, and Dave McNally, who hurled a five-hitter and belted a two-run homer. Brooks Robinson also homered and Ellie Hendricks knocked in three Baltimore runs.

Rookie George Lauzerique pitched hitless ball for the first six innings in hurling Oakland past Cleveland. He finally allowed three hits and needed relief help from Roland Fingers in the eighth. Dave Nelson's leadoff single in the seventh inning broke up Lauzerique's no-hit bid.

Reggie Smith's two-out, two-run single sparked a three-run rally in the ninth inning that lifted Boston past Seattle.

Once a Card Loser, Townsend a Leader

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Peter Townsend, an English professional golfer, who once lost his approved player card because of poor play, isn't concerned with that problem any longer.

"I figure that if they pick up my player's card, then they'll have to pick another 150," Townsend, 22, said Thursday after shooting a five-under-par 67 to take the first-round lead in the $100,000 Greater Milwaukee Open golf tournament.

"I've been playing pretty well for the last few months," Townsend said. "I'm about 98th on the money list and there are about 250 or 300 players on the tour."

Rookie pro John Miller was second with a 68, followed by Mike Nugent, Steve Opperman and South African Allan Henning, all at 69. At 70 were Jim Wiechers, Larry Ziegler and Bob Lunn.

Arnold Palmer came in with a 76, four over par on the 7,075-yard course. Defending champion Dave Stockton had a 77. Bert Greene, second in last week's Westchester Classic, scored 75 and Gary Player had a 73.

BELLIES OVERPOWER . . . . . . SHAMROCK BUZZERS

Sad Night for the Irish

NEW WESTMINSTER — It was fun while it lasted for Victoria Shamrocks.

Launching a last-ditch battle to overhaul Vancouver Carlings for the third and last playoff berth in the Western Lacrosse Association, the Rocks had a happy time on their home floor Wednesday as they turned on a fast-running, sharp-passing attack and drubbed the Carls 17-4.

They were hoping the same buzzing tactics would also subdue the second-place Salmonbellies here Thursday night, but it was a vastly different story against the burly Bellies.

Getting big dividends from their greater experience and crunching the lighter Rocks with heavy checking, the Salmonbellies made it a sad night for the Irish. They overpowered the Victorians 20-7 to keep the Shamrocks six points behind the Carls.

Brothers Wayne and Ed Goss formed a two-man wrecking crew for Westminster. Each fired five goals and Ed added five assists while Wayne, the circuit's leading goal scorer with 52 tallies, contributed five assists.

Dennis Somner fired two goals for the Rocks, who got single markers from Ranjit Dillon, Muzz Bryant, Nirmal Dillon, Les Glover and Charn Dhillon.

Balding Treats Birdie Watchers

Cox Bags Eagle To Share Lead

VANCOUVER—Bob Cox shot the eagle, but veteran Al Balding, of Toronto, had the gallery watching the birdies Thursday to go into the second round of the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship tied with the Richmond, B.C., rookie at 6-under-par 66.

Cox, who was only 15 when Balding became the first Canadian to win a tournament on the United States money tour in 1955, reeled off four birdies and an eagle. Balding had seven birdies in his round.

15 BREAK PAR

In second place is Neil Green of Calgary, who was virtually unknown going into the 72-hole championship. He had a 68, two off the pace.

Balding, 45, canned a 30-foot putt on the seventh hole and a 25-footer on the par-four, 392-yard 14th, but missed from three feet on the fourth to go one-over. He said the greens were bumpy.

A total of 15 players, including George Knudson of Toronto, seeking his third straight title and the $5,000 in prize money that goes with it, managed to break par over the 6,754-yard Point Grey Golf and Country Club course.

Knudson had his putter turn sour on the slow greens and carded a 70, one stroke behind Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont.

WITHOUT DRIVER

Meanwhile, Balding had to throw away his driver after the third hole because of a faulty shaft and go the rest of the way with a three wood.

"I was out at the factory all morning trying to get them to replace the shaft, but it still didn't work," he said.

"Hell, the way I was going, I may use a three wood all week."

Bill Wakeham led a Vancouver Island contingent with a one-under-par 71. Annoyed with his "poor putting," earlier in the week, Wakeham came in with a 34 after going out in 37.

Three other Island favorites were in a group at 73. They included ex-Victorian Dick Munn, th host pro at Point Grey, Victoria Club's Vaughan Trapp and Doug Boden of Cowichan.

Volatile Allen Scalps Another

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Richie Allen, controversial slugger for Philadelphia Phillies, now has the scalps of two managers to his credit.

Bob Skinner, grim-faced and his voice cracking at times, resigned Thursday after 14 months at the club's helm because of what he called lack of front office support in dealing with the moody Allen.

Coach George Myatt, 54, in his sixth year with the Phillies, was named temporary manager.

Gene Mauch, now with Montreal Expos and whom Skinner had succeeded in June, 1968, was fired after benching Allen.

"Now I know what Gene Mauch went through," Skinner said, biting off each word as the club's bosses—owner Bob Carpenter and general manager John Quinn—stood silently to one side at a news conference.

Skinner, visibly shaken, also revealed he had learned that a fine he had imposed on Allen for missing two games in New York in June had been remitted by Carpenter.

Allen could not be reached for comment.

The first baseman, who earns a reported $80,000 a year, did not show up later Thursday night in Reading for an exhibition game between the Phillies and their Eastern League farm team.

DEVOTED TO BASEBALL

Skinner, 37, a tall, dedicated man who believes in giving 100 per cent to the game he loves, said "a few days ago Allen came to me and told me the front office told him he didn't have to go to Reading with the team for tonight's game."

Quinn said Allen did not have permission to miss the game, however. He said Allen would be fined.

The Phillies are deep in fifth place in the National League's six-team Eastern Division, 24½ games out of first.

Skinner made it clear he didn't want to quit, that he liked the job and thought he was doing well.

"But I have too much pride," he said. "I am a winner, and I want to be with a winner, and you can't win this way."

Carnarvons Win Pony Duel

Carnarvon All-Stars received sharp pitching and timely hitting at Carnarvon Park Thursday to win their first start in the British Columbia Pony League baseball championship tournament, downing North Coquitlam 3-1.

In Thursday's other game of the six-team, double-loss-elimination tourney, Terrace again came from behind and collected a 4-3 victory over Little Mountain. Both of these teams won opening games of the tourney Wednesday in come-from-behhind fashion.

Frank Dalziel paced the Carnarvon win by pitching a one hitter, but he received ample assistance from the hitting of Wayne Simpson.

Dalziel struck out nine batters and was deprived of a no-hitter when Stan Carter connected for a two-out single in the sixth inning. He lost a shutout in the fifth when his mates committed two errors and he bobbled once, letting in a run.

Simpson had a batting hand in all Carnarvon scoring.

LASHED HOME RUN

He doubled in the first run during the fourth inning, scored the second mintues later on a single by Craig Rowley, then lashed a base-empty sixth-inning homer to score an insurance run.

OUTDOOR REPORT

Angling Hopes Bright

By STEWART LANG

It's beginning to look as if the shortage of salmon returns in both local and up-Island waters is coming to an end.

Saanich Inlet is producing springs in the lunker class and coho ranging from three and one-half to seven pounds. Largest catch of the week was the 39½-pounder landed by Bruce Colegrave near McCurdy Point on Wednesday. He was using a Dodge-R-Lure flasher and Minnow Teaser along with one pound of weight.

Henderson Point, Coles Bay marker and the Pat Bay bouy vicinities have been producing well, as has the opposite shore from the Mill Bay ferry marker to Whisky Point.

Small grilse remain a problem in these areas. Fishermen are reminded that salmon, must be at least 12 inches from the tip of the nose to the "V" of the tail.

* * *

The lower end of the Inlet is producing in Misery Bay and near Chesterfield Rock. Jack Newham boated 10½-pound coho in the latter location earlier this week, using a Tom Mack spoon, no flasher, four ounces of weight and about sixty-five feet of line.

A few fish are also reported to be moving through near Sidney Island.

Oak Bay waters are yielding springs up to 20 pounds and the odd coho near the Gap, Trial Island,, and to a lesser degree, south of the Chain Islands.

* * *

Waters from Pedder Bay to Sooke have also been producing well.

Larger coho such as the 12½-pounder caught by Henry Rollins outside of Pedder, or the 13-pounder landed by Charley Roth near Beechey Head, have been weighed in.

Pinks, sockeye and spring salmon are all showing up in returns along the kelp bed in Pedder and the absence of strong winds the past few days have made many a fishermen's day complete.

Cowichan Bay is spotty and the best returns seem to be coming in from the outside waters, including the south end of Salt Spring Island up through the Narrows as far as Bold Bluff.

* * *

Near the mid-Island area, Five-Fingers and Northwest Bay have been reported as excellent choices with 1 to 3 p.m. the best time to land one of the bigger catches.

Coho up to nine pounds are spicing action for fishermen near Bamfield while larger tyee-type salmon are moving up into the Alberni Inlet. A 41.6-pounder and a 33-pounder were caught recently in the Franklin River area by 12-year-old Maureen Morriss of Port Alberni.

Coho are scattered in waters from Courtenay to Campbell River with the best areas off Chrome Island and in the Willow-to-Shelter Point vicinity.

Tyee catches are starting to come in near Campbell River with a certain Mr. Fish (believe it or not) of Vancouver landing the largest — a 50-pounder.

Dunbar Takes One-Hit Win

WHALLEY, B.C. (CP) — Art Lilly pitched a one-hitter in leading Vancouver Dunbar to a 4-0 victory over Cloverdale Thursday night in the losers' bracket at the British Columbia Little League playoffs.

Dunbar plays North Vancouver tonight to determine who plays Vancouver Collingwood, the top team in the winners' bracket, for the championship of the seven-team, double-knockout affair.

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

Never to Quit Trying Is Cliff's Way to Play

TORONTO (CP)—"I never give up," says Cliff Richey, the 22-year-old tennis veteran who faces Canada's Mike Belkin Saturday in what fans are hoping will be a grudge match.

"There's only one way I can play and that's never to quit trying."

Richey is scheduled to meet Belkin in the semi-finals of the Canadian open tennis championships. He is second seed, while Belkin is seventh.

The match also means another skirmish in the see-saw rivalry between the two. Each has defeated the other in tournament play.

Belkin beat Richey, who is from San Angelo, Tex., a month ago in an invitational tournament in Washington, D.C., but Richey came back to beat Belkin two weeks ago at the western championships in Cincinnati.

This is Richey's sixth year touring on the circuit.

"You come up against the same guys again and again," he said Thursday. "I've played Dick Crealey three out of four weeks since Wimbledon. This is the second time I've played Ray."

He meant Ray Moore of South Africa, whom he defeated 4-6, 4-5, 6-4, 6-0, 6-2 Thursday in the quarter-finals of the men's singles.

Belkin advanced to the semi-finals Thursday with a 4-6, 6-3, 7-5, 6-2 victory over Lester Sack of Clarksdale, Miss.

RAIN HALTS MATCHES

Rain interrupted the other semi-final and forced postponement of several first-and second-round doubles matches.

Top-seeded John Newcombe of Australia and sixth-seeded Pancho Guzman of Ecuador were to resume play today with Newcombe leading 4-1 and 15-30 on Guzman's serve in the first set.

Third-seeded Butch Bucholz of St. Louis, Mo., and eight-seeded Dick Crealey of Australia were interrupted by the rain in a match tied at two sets.

Fireworks Start Early

The B.C. senior "A" men's softball championships aren't scheduled to get under way until this evening, but a Victoria executive ignited some early fireworks Thursday.

The 11-team, double-knockout tournament at Central Park starts tonight at 6:45 with a meeting between Victoria rivals Red Lion Inn and Luckies. Play continues Saturday, starting at 8 a.m., and is scheduled to wrap up Sunday.

Originally, 12 teams were to start. However, Eldorados of Vancouver withdrew Thursday to reduce the field by one.

Off-the-field action sizzled when John Oster, president of the city's Major Men's League, charged the B.C. Softball Association director Jack Kinna of Vancouver with tampering with the original draw. In the orginal draw, Trail and Vancouver Johnstons lined up third and fourth, respectively, in the draw. Eldorados and Nanaimo O'Keefes were next.

The Eldorado-Nanaimo game subsequently was shifted ahead, into the third-versus-fourth bracket.

"The B.C. Softball Association constitution is one of the finest I've ever read," said Oster. "But the administration of that constitution is something else.

"That's one of the reasons why this is my last season in softball."

Oster contends the draw was altered to "suit Vancouver." With Nanaimo drawing a bye as the result of Eldorados' withdrawal, it means four of the five Vancouver Island entries are lodged in the top quarter of the draw.

The winner of tonight's Red Lion-Luckies game is scheduled to play Victoria Bates in the second round.

"On top of that," adds Oster, "here we have an 11-team tournament and the draw is such that five teams have drawn first-round byes.

"It's ridiculous."

New Zealand Opens With 231 for Six

NOTTINGHAM, England (CP) — Bev Congdon and Brian Hastings put on 150 runs together for New Zealand Thursday in the second cricket Test match against England.

New Zealand had scored 231 for 6 at the end of the first day.

The New Zealanders have never beaten England.

Graham Dowling and Bruce Murray laid the foundation with an opening stand of 47. Two wickets were down for 53, but then Congdon and Hastings began a steady partnership that lasted nearly 3½ hours.

England's captain, off-spinner Ray Illingworth, eventually dismissed both batsmen in the same over. He had Congdon caught by Alan Knott for 66. Then Hastings was brilliantly snapped up by Phil Sharpe for 83.

Essex 191 and 67 for 2; Warwickshire 355.

Sussex 159 and 107 for 1; Hampshire 346.

Surrey 370 for 6 declared; Scotland 107 and 79 for 4.

Somerset 347 for 9 declared and 57 for 1; Worcestershire 207.

Derbyshire 197 and 90 for 5; Lancashire 225.

Northamptonshire 289 and 118 for 1; Glamorgan 292 for 8 declared.

Nottinghamshire 341 and 106 for 2; Yorkshire 290 for 9 declared.

Kent 208; Leicestershire 327 for 6.

Clear-Cut Victory For Minor Soccer

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Manchester Schoolboys and Victoria Selects squared off in a 1-1 draw Thursday, but the international soccer affair at Royal Athletic Park could hardly be considered as a "no-decision" contest.

It must rate as a victory for the calibre and potential of Victoria's extremely active minor soccer program.

It was the third game and third straight draw for the touring Manchester lads. They opened their North American tour by playing to a 3-3 draw with a Vancouver side last weekend and tied Nanaimo 1-1 on Tuesday.

'JUST RESULT'

The latest draw was welcomed as "a just result" by Laurie Cassidy, the Manchester team's manager.

He also saw "tremendous potential" in the Victoria lineup.

"I was impressed," said Cassidy. "Of the three teams we have played, your (Victoria) is the one that tried to play football. They didn't give it the kick-and-run game as much as the other teams did."

Victoria manager Frank Grealy was another delighted customer among the 1,580 on hand.

"I was delighted with the team's performance," he said. "It speaks well for Victoria's minor program."

STARTED STRONGLY

Enjoying a slight edge in size and a year's edge in age the Victorians started strongly. They held a slight edge in play during the first 40-minute half, conceded some territory to Manchester's 15-and-under side in the second half.

The Victorians lost some of the rhythm from their attack just before the half, but held fast with a strong defence.

The quick start provided Victoria with a 1-0 lead at the 21-minute mark. Theil Van Der Bergh, a lanky centre forward, first-timed Bob Duncan's cross for a well-taken goal.

Manchester equalized two minutes before the half on a play started by schoolboy international Paul Smith. The centre half, the game's standout, made a brilliant solo move to test Victoria goalie Wayne O'Malley from close in.

SMITH A SPARKLER

O'Malley was just as brilliant in thwarting Smith, but the ball bounced clear and inside left Peter Fletcher was Johnny-on-the-spot to bang home the rebound.

Smith, without doubt, controlled the play for Manchester. Winger Stephen Davidson also played a strong game for the tourists, as did captain Michael Buckley, another international.

Right back Bob Bolitho, normally a winger, played an outstanding game on defence for Victoria along with centre half Danny Lomas.

Both goaltenders, O'Malley and Manchester's Michael Finn, also played exceedingly well.

All in all, it was delightful entertainment and, more important, produced excellent soccer.

Visiting Drivers Spice Strawberry Cup Dish

Three highly-rated visiting drivers are almost certain to spice the sixth annual running of the 50-lap Strawberry Cup race for modifieds Saturday night at Western Speedway.

Two Seattle drivers, Vern Church and Jerry Hagerstrom, both of whom gave outstanding accounts of themselves during the last modified appearance here July 19, will return to try for the cup.

Brian Green of Prince George, another Canadian-American Modified Racing Association driver, has confirmed his entry with Speedway officials.

Al Smith will head the list of local entries.

In the super-stock section of a split program, Gary Kershaw, who just about won everything in sight at Nanaimo last weekend, will return in an attempt to stretch his skein of four main event wins in six races.

Molsons Take League Title

Victoria Molsons Vicettes loosed a 20-hit barrage to collect a 14-8 victory over Carlings Thursday at Bullen Park, winning the best-of-three Senior Women's Softball League playoff final in straight games.

Hillary Bitten and Dodie Skaife combined to hold Carlings to six hits.

Colleen McGill of Cantins was presented with the Sports Club trophy as the league's most valuable player during a pregame ceremony.

Pat Gallagher of Tillicums, received the Wally Yeamans Perpetual Trophy for the most sportsmanlike player.

Non-Title Battle

LONDON (Reuters) — European heavyweight champion Henry Cooper of England will take a crack at the World Boxing Association champion, Jimmy Ellis of Louisville, Ky., next month, but it will still not be billed as a world title fight, said British promoter Harry Levene. The fight will be held at Wembley Stadium in London Sept. 27.

Glen Muffles Drywall Bats

Jim Morgan and Tim Goudie combined batting talents and Glen Bullen provided the pitching skill at Central Park Thursday night to guide Molsons to a 4-3 Major Men's Softball League triumph over Langford Drywall.

Morgan opened the sixth inning with a triple and rode home on Goudie's sacrifice fly to produce the winning run for Bullen, who blanked Langford with a no-hit effort after relieving starter Rod Turner in the second.

REGATTA AT KINGSTON... ...ATTRACTS OLYMPIC MEDALLISTS

Big Test for Canuck Skippers

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

Some of the Pacific Northwest's top skippers will shortly travel eastward to compete against leading Canadian and—in some cases—top world helmsmen in two late summer regattas.

In particular, Olympic medallists are expected to participate in a new, annual international open race week at Kingston, Ontario, from August 25-30.

Sponsored jointly by the Canadian Yachting Association and Kingston Yacht Club, "CORK" (Canadian Olympic-training Regatta, Kingston), has several objectives.

The first is to attract top notch sailors, to give Canadian competitors experience in Olympic-calibre competition under racing conditions similar to those expected for the 1972 Olympics at Kiel, Germany.

In this open regatta, anyone may enter in any of the seven classes as long as they and their boats meet the racing and measurement requirements.

Mind you, "anyone" will probably include Olympic gold medallists Rodney Pattison (Flying Dutchman, England); Valentin Mankin (Finn class, Russia) and U.S.A.'s Peter Barrett, crew on the Gold Medal Star boat, who will also be sailing a Finn. Also expected to participate are Sweden's Ib Anderson, three-time winner of the world O.K. Dinghy championship.

As well, seven Canadian and-or North American championships are on the line for OK's, International 14s, Snipes, Finns, Flying Dutchmen, Solings, and Dragons.

From Victoria, Royal Vic's Norman Marcus will compete in the O.K. Dinghy class.

Vancouver will be represented by Royal Van's Stephen Tupper, sailing a Dragon, and B.C. Yachting Association president Jack Balmer, who will enter in the Soling class.

Seattle's Dick Rose (last year's Area H representative to Mallory Cup competition) and Stuart Walker will represent the West in the International 14s.

Racing conditions are usually very predictable in August, with prevailing winds from the southwest between 15 and 25 m.p.h. expected.

The preceeding week, Halifax hosts a Summer Games and regatta, which is closed, with the competitors being chosen in sail-offs last spring, one representative to each province

All B.C. entries are Vancouverites: Don Martin in the Flying Dutchman; Dean Ellis in the O.K. Dinghies, and Tec Jones in the Solings. Another well-known Vancouver helmsman, Peter Bryne, was chosen by the CYA to travel to Naples, Italy, for the recent Flying Dutchman world championships.

SHORT TACKS: Resail of the Lipton Cup will go this Sunday, starting at 11 a.m. for CCA rated cruising boats. Course will be roughly the same as last spring, which means good viewing for spectators lining the Dallas Road around Clover Point area .... Last Friday's Long Distance Race from Cattle Point to Esquimalt Harbor was won on corrected time by John Boorman's Short Circuit, which also took the Class Trophy for first Cal 20 to finish ... Royal Vic's John Readshaw placed third in last weekend's Western Canadian junior sail-offs, raced in Signets at Powell River ... After "several" years of building on the banks of the Gorge, Bob Dalloway's traditional Atkins-designed cutter, complete with bowsprit, lies at anchor in the Gorge Channel.

Surgery for Knoop

CHICAGO (AP) — Second baseman Bobby Knoop of the Chicago White Sox underwent surgery for correction of a fracture of the rim of his right eye socket this week and will be sidelined from three to four weeks.

Knoop received the injury at Baltimore July 27.

HOCKEY CANADA LOOKING... ...FOR NEW MANAGER

Hap Drops Heavy Load

TORONTO (CP) — Hockey Canada is looking for a general manager to take over from Hap Emms and at least two other former professional coaches have denied they are in line for the job.

Emms, 64, quit the post Thursday, claiming too much time was involved in running Canada's national hockey team. Punch Imlach and Toe Blake, two former National Hockey League coaches, ruled themselves out as Emm's successor.

"There's no cotton-picking way I'd ever go and work for Smythe or Eagleson," Imlach said Thursday as he returned from a vacation in the United States. "I just somehow can't see myself taking orders from those two."

Imlach, former manager-coach of the NHL's Toronto Maple Leafs, was fired by Stafford Smythe last spring moments after the Maple Leafs were eliminated from the Stanley Cup playoffs by Boston Bruins. Smythe and Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHL Player's Association, both are Hockey Canada directors.

Blake, who retired as Montreal Canadiens' coach after the 1967-68 season, said in Montreal Thursday he had not been approached by Hockey Canada and he would not be interested in the job if it were offered.

Emms made his resignation known Thursday at a regular meeting of Hockey Canada. "I found the load too heavy at my age," the former Boston Bruins' general manager said.

"I would have been all right if the team was in Toronto. I've been to Winnipeg twice, to Sweden, to Ottawa three or four times, Montreal two or three times and meetings here every month. It will get worse from now on."

Emms said the national teams need strengthening.

"The Russians pushed our kids around in the corner and walked out with the puck," he said. "With experienced pros, this won't happen.

"The team needs experience, at least nine good hockey players."

Charles Hay of Toronto, who retired Wednesday as president of Gulf Oil Co. of Canada to devote more time to his post as Hockey Canada president, is keeping quiet about a possible successor to Emms.

"We have several people in mind, but we must get in touch with them before we can release any names."

Jackie McLeod, who has coached the national team for the last five years, has been given the immediate task of organizing the team's early training camp sessions, which open Aug. 14 at Winnipeg.

MOXIE LAUNCHES YOUTH WEEK

By PETER LAWSON

Moxie has been given the honor of starting Victoria Youth Council's third annual youth week Saturday, Aug. 16, playing for a benefit dance.

Proceeds from the dance will go into the Coo-Aid Youth Council fund for its work among young people on the Island. The dance is being held at the First United Church Fellowship Hall at the corner of Quadra and Balmoral at 8 p.m.

Admission is $1 per person.

On Wednesday, Aug. 20 the Blue Room will play a free concert from 7:30 to 9 p.m. in Centennial Square. This, too is in conjunction with Youth Week.

●

Tonight and Saturday evening As Sheriff is playing down at the White Lighthouse, 1037 View Street (below the Club Tango).

The White Lighthouse is a new club which opened last weekend and met favorable response. The one drawback seems to be that the dancefloor is too small and dancers must cope with crowds of patrons that prefer to listen.

●

Moxie is playing at the A Go Go Sunday night from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. Considering that it's a local group, it must be rewarding to be asked back to a club after previous dates.

Usually appreciation of local groups is hit or miss.

Interesting to note: Moxie plays blues-rock, a fad which was apparently dying out in Victoria. It is also interesting to note that local groups which tried to establish themselves as soul bands have not been heard from lately.

●

The Old Forge is continuing its Wednesday night talent contests.

Still no word on AJ's, the nightclub that closed its doors two months ago. Apparently a new manager has yet to be found. It is unfortunate that what was once the most professionally run nightclub in town has to suffer because of lack of support both internally and from customers.

No Decision On Sawmill

An application to establish a small electric sawmill in Kersey Road, off West Saanich Road near Brentwood, has been referred by Central Saanich council to its zoning committee.

It would mean rezoning land from farming to light industrial.

Applicant P. R. Tyson, in a letter to council, said Central Saanich had insufficient land zoned for light industrial use.

(The municipality has about 300 acres, mostly situated along Keating Crossroad.)

Actors Aren't Just Puppets

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Is an actor a mere puppet?

Not in the opinion of Burt Lancaster, the film star millionaire who started his career as a $3-a-week circus acrobat.

"Some American actors think acting is unmanly," he said. "I felt that way myself for years—that I should be doing something else. I don't know. I've found acting is a way to be myself.

"I don't think of myself as an actor in the traditional, conventional sense. Acting has become to me a way of saying what I want to say."

Lancaster, who once aspired to be an opera singer, has been saying pretty much what he wanted to say since the age of three when, while appearing in a church nativity play, he saw a piece of gum on his shoe and startled the audience by exclaiming, "What the hell is that piece of gum doing there?"

Son of a postal clerk, Burt likes to recall the years when he and five brothers and sisters were reared in an east Harlem walkup.

"I came from a family poor in terms of money but not in terms of courage and affection," he said.

"My childhood was a happy one. There was a lot of laughter, joy and love in my family."

LIKES THE UNDERDOG

Those early years, and later years when he worked around the U.S. in menial jobs ranging from boiler stoker to road gang worker, left Lancaster with a strong sympathy for underdogs—the downtrodden and overlooked people of the earth.

"To me life is a commitment," he said. "You have to get involved."

Lancaster, who won an Oscar for Elmer Gantry, likes to make films that carry a powerful social impact. His latest—and 41st—is Castle Keep, a surrealistic war picture detailing the experiences of a group of American soldiers during the Battle of the Bulge in Belgium.

Some years ago, already laden with honors and loot, Burt thought of quitting the industry, trying a new field. But now, still ruggedly trim at 55, he has shelved that idea.

"All I want to do is to go on as long as I can making films that touch people emotionally and express what I feel about life," he said. "You can't just quit because you are ahead."

When he isn't on location abroad, Burt, who shuns all forms of ostentation, lives quietly in Bel Air, Calif. He and his wife, Norma, a former entertainer he met while he was in the army, were divorced in June. They have five children.

Western Film to Show True Side of Indian

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A new look at the Old West will be offered by Arthur Penn, the man who directed Bonnie and Clyde. The movie western may never be the same.

Penn's Bonnie and Clyde proved the most influential film in recent times, helping to popularize startling camera effects and bringing freshness to the ancient cops-and-robbers tale. Now he's at work on Little Big Man, which Stuart Millar is producing for CBS's movie subsidiary, Cinema Centre Films.

"I'm not trying any different techniques with this picture," Penn says. "The story is being told in a rather straightforward manner. I think it would be folly to try to improve on techniques of the western; too many masters have already had a go at it."

The script, written by Calder Willingham from Thomas Berger's novel, is something else again. It is related by the 121-year-old Jack Crabb (Dustin Hoffman) who claims to have been the only white survivor of the Battle of Little Big Horn. His other adventures include being reared by Indians after his capture at 14, hunting buffalo with Bill Cody, witnessing the murder of Wild Bill Hickock and so on.

SHOW INDIAN SIDE

"I don't think of this picture as a western," says Penn. "It's more of a picaresque tale of one man's life on the frontier, told from an ironic point of view.

"One thing this film will do is show the Indian's side in the West. There has been so much nonsense about the Indian in westerns that it's time someone showed how he was wronged by history. Custer's last stand offers a good opportunity."

Intermission Best; Comedy Lauded

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, Ont. (CP) — Critics disagreed today on the merits of Ferenc Molnar's comedy The Guardsman as presented at the Shaw Festival here.

William Glover of The Associated Press said in his review that the best part of the play were the intermissions.

Herbert Whittaker of the Toronto Globe and Mail said the comedy "makes a very welcome addition to the season here, crowning it, in fact."

Whittaker lauded the performances of Lida Kedrova as the wife who has raised the suspicions of her husband — suspicions only too well founded—and of Paxton Whitehead as the husband.

"This constant display of histrionic talent, which Molnar knew so thoroughly, almost but not quite distracts us from the excellence of Stephen Porter's direction, the beauty of the decor and the vitality of the supporting cast."

Space Ace Given Command Of Apollo 13 Moon Flight

HOUSTON (AP) — The first American in space and the man who has spent the most time there will command moon-landing flights in 1970, the space agency says.

Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr., who has more space hours than any other astronaut, will command the Apollo 13 flight to the moon scheduled for next March, the agency announced here.

Navy Capt. Alan B. Shepard Jr., who put the United States into space with a 15-minute flight in 1961 and hasn't flown since, will command the Apollo 14 moon landing scheduled for next July.

Space rookies fill in the balance of both crews.

Navy Lt.-Cmdr. Thomas P. Mattingly II, 33, and civilian Fred W. Haise Jr., 35, will fly with Lovell on Apollo 13.

With Shepard on Apollo 14 will be Air Force Capt. Stuart A. Roosa, 35, and Navy Cmdr. Edgar D. Mitchell, 38.

The Apollo 12 crew already has been named. All navy, it is commanded by Capt. Charles Conrad and includes Cmdrs. Richard L. Gordon and Alan L. Bean. Apollo 12 is scheduled for November.

Lovell's flight will be to the mysterious lunar highlands area called Fra Mauro, just south of the moon's equator. This will be the first attempt to land in the mountains of the moon.

Shepard and his crew are scheduled to land in Censoriunus, a crater just east of the Sea of Tranquillity landing site of Apollo 11.

Apollo 12's destination is the Ocean of Storms, in the western part of the moon.

Shepard's selection climaxes a battle to overcome an ear ailment that threatened to ground him permanently.

The 45-year-old astronaut flew into space for 15 minutes in 1961, riding a Mercury capsule atop a Redstone rocket 116 miles over the Atlantic.

Just as the Gemini program was beginning, he was beset by an inner ear ailment that caused nausea and dizziness.

He underwent surgery last May. It was a success and Shepard was cleared to fly.

Lovell, 41, flew 14 days with astronaut Frank Borman on Gemini 7 in 1965. Last December, he, Borman and Air Force Maj. William A. Anders became the first men to orbit the moon on the eight-day flight of Apollo 8. Lovell also was commander of the four-day Gemini 12 flight in 1966 with Edwin A. Aldrin Jr.

No Cages At New Toronto Zoo

TORONTO (CP) — There will be no cages in Toronto's new zoo due to open July 1, 1973.

"There'll be total containment," says Brad Johnson, 32, of Toronto, whose firm of landscape architects is in charge of the $23,000,000 animal kingdom, "but it will be invisible.

"We'll use moats and there'll be a lot of camouflage over electric wiring. And we'll use viewing platforms above the animals to serve as shade and shelter for them in bad weather. We'll stock a valley with birds and then throw a camouflaged net over it."

The 1,250-acre zoo will make New York's famed Bronx zoo with its 252 acres look like a nice place for pigeons.

It will have valleys and hillsides. The 4,000 kinds of animals and birds will be located by continent rather than by species.

There will even be a minirail to carry the public across a valley.

"There's no guarantee they'll see anything because the animals will have a lot of room to roam and there'll be trees and brushland in profusion," Mr. Johnson says.

"But they'll get a good ride."

His associates in this project of the Toronto parks board and the Toronto Zoological Society are Philip Weinstein, 35, of Toronto, and Hans Sustronk, 35, of Amsterdam, The Netherlands.

But completion depends on the city fathers providing the money. In April, 1967, they approved $750,000 for preliminary work but the crunch will come when construction starts.

The curious eye Russian trawlers being held at Ogden Point pending trial of their captains.

The Tourists Are Coming to the Russians

By PAT DUFOUR

While their skippers awaited a second appearance in provincial court, the crews of Soviet trawlers Gherman Titov and Kouzachin seemed delighted Thursday night at having become Victoria's number one tourist attraction.

The trawler captains, Boris Rolenko and John Morozov, were to appear this afternoon before Judge William Ostler on charges of illegally fishing within Canada's 12-mile limit.

In the three days the Soviet vessels have been in Victoria, their crews have made a dint in the language barrier. When they docked none of them spoke English.

Thursday evening, the duty officer on Gherman Titov was all smiles as he said "Good afternoon" to his visitors. One of the visitors brought him up to date. From then on it was "Good evening."

●

A self-appointed, volunteer "diplomatic corps," mostly new Canadians from Yugoslavia and other parts of Europe, acted as interpreters in the well-worn wardroom.

Ambassador-in-chief appeared to be a bald-headed seaman, sporting one gold earring, who said he was Greek and had served two years in the fisheries patrol vessel Howay as second engineer.

With a flourish he introduced newcomers to the chief officer, who sat smiling, at a table centred with a large enamel pot and a plate of thickly sliced bread.

●

The pot contained what the interpreters described as compote, a drink made from dried fruit cooked in water aboard the ship.

Young women took pictures, and posed for others with their hosts. Like sailors everywhere, the Russians willingly obliged. They also asked for addresses — to get prints.

While the chief officer and his main ambassador served the compote in thick enamel mugs, others of the crew calmly went on with a game of chess, unperturbed by the stream of visitors jostling their elbows.

One of them asked when the Russians would be leaving.

Bringing out a well-thumbed Russian-English dictionary from a drawer, pungent with the garlic cloves that accompany most of the Russians' meals, the engineer said Friday — perhaps.

In one corner, another of the officers brought out boxes of matches which he handed out as the stream of visitors wended through the wardroom.

In another corner, one of the local interpreters pressed people to stay "and see a Russian movie" while another, gesticulating wildly, tried to rewind a reel of film.

●

After winding madly for 15 minutes, he still wasn't ready and a helper discovered the film was not Russian but Canadian.

Guests, left to tour the rest of the ship. Finally, they disembarked their last glimpse being the chief officer, at the gangway, holding a hydrangea presented him by one of the women.

Walking up the dock they passed a Russian seaman, returning from shore leave toting paper bags jammed with purchases.

Two Martinis One Too Many To Drive

By DERYK THOMPSON

When new federal legislation affecting drinking drivers comes into effect, a person who takes two martinis with lunch and drives back to work will be breaking the law.

So will the person who has three beers. Or the person who drinks half a bottle of wine with a meal and then drives away.

In May, the House of Commons amended the Criminal Code to make it an offence to have more than a .08 blood-alcohol reading.

City breathalyzer expert Sgt. Richard Ward says a .08 reading is equivalent to four ounces of hard liquor, 2.8 bottles of beer or 11 ounces of wine.

70 EXPERTS

Although the legislation making the breathalyzer tests compulsory for suspected impaired drivers has yet to come into effect, area police forces are prepared to enforce it.

There are four breathalyzer machines in Greater Victoria and nearly 70 trained operators and experts among five police forces.

Justice Minister John Turner has said the amendments will come into effect only after the necessary breath-testing equipment is available everywhere.

CHRISTMAS PRESENT

"We feel we're going to get it as a Christmas present," a spokesman from the Colwood RCMP detachment said today.

Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Colwood have breathalyzers but Esquimalt doesn't.

Chief Earl Sarsiat said today there wasn't much need for his force to buy one since all their prisoners are locked up in the city jail and could be tested on the city machine.

Saanich Deputy Police Chief Bob Peterson said he thinks the new amendments represent forceful legislation.

"But with our experience on the highways I think it's the only answer," he said.

"Persons will be more conscious of their responsibilities in motoring."

NEW SECTIONS

Included in the amendments is repeal of the section of the code dealing with "intoxicated driving" by which the court had to impose a jail sentence even on a first offence.

The charge of impaired driving has been left unchanged in the new Code but two new sections are added.

They make it an offence to drive with a blood-alcohol reading of more than .08 on the breathalyzer and an offence to refuse to give a police officer a breath sample. Both are punishable by fines ranging from $50 to $1,000, or up to six months in jail or both.

PHYSICAL SYMPTOMS

Now police departments generally press impaired charges following a breath reading of .12 or above. However, suspected drivers must also show physical symptoms of impairment to be convicted.

Breathalyzer readings of .20 or more usually lead to an intoxicated driving charge.

Under the new legislation, the court must find that an accused with a .08 reading or more guilty of "an offence." Conceivably he could also be charged with impaired driving.

Soaring Voter Numbers Add Campaign Mystery

A whopping increase in eligible voters in the Victoria area has added an element of mystery to the Aug. 27 provincial election.

Official figures show an increase of 23,343 registered voters in the four area ridings since the 1966 election — an increase of almost 25 per cent.

The mystery is expressed in two questions:

Who are the new voters? How will they vote?

In Oak Bay, Saanich and the Islands and Esquimalt, the number of new voters is greater than the margin of victory in the 1966 provincial election. It is slightly less than the margins in Victoria's two-member riding.

MARGINS DWARFED

Even larger increases are reported in north Island ridings, dwarfing victory margins there.

The Greater Victoria constituencies and their increases are:

● Esquimalt, up 35 per cent to 24,117, an increase of 6,716. Victory margin for Socred Herb Bruch in the 1966 election was 2,580.

● Saanich and the Islands, up 29 per cent to 26,021, an increase of 5,914. Victory margin for Socred John Tisdalle was 3,416 in 1966.

● Oak Bay, up 20 per cent to 23,992, an increase of 4,356. (Margin of victory for Liberal Allan Cox in July, 1968 by-election was 3,214. Margin for Liberal Alan Macfarlane in 1966 general election was 3,416.)

● Victoria, up 19 per cent to 41,955, an increase of 6,357. Margin of victory for Socred W. N. Chant was 7,764 and for Socred Waldo Skillings, 6,852 in the two-member riding in 1966.

Registration of voters produced almost 8,000 new voters in Comox and almost 7,000 in Alberni for 50 per cent increases. Both ridings were won by relatively narrow margins by Socreds in 1966.

Nanaimo shows 6,500 new voters, a 43 per cent increase. That riding was won by a handful of votes by Dave Stupich of the NDP in 1966.

Figures are not yet available for Cowichan-Malahat, but a healthy increase is expected in keeping with the experience all over the province. Former NDP leader Robert Strachan won the riding by 1,200 votes out of a total eligible 14,700 in 1966.

The total provincial voting figure is not yet available but will shoot well beyond the level of 875,000 which has remained steady since 1960, the time of the last enumeration. A 25 per cent increase would bring the total close to one million.

POPULATION GREW

Part of the big increase in voters is a result of the enumeration carried out by the province this year, but officials said population growth in the past three years should not be underestimated in attempts to account for the thousands of new voters.

Officials stressed that a high-pressure campaign to encourage voters to register and to explain redistributed ridings was carried out in 1966, although there was no enumeration.

Ask the Times

Q. Can you please tell me if there is a crematorium in Victoria and if possible the charge for cremating a body?—J.B.

A. Victoria's crematorium is located at Royal Oak Cemetery. The charge for cremating a body as set by the Public Utilities Commission is $40

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Victorians Get First Nod For Housing

The Rose-Blanshard urban renewal scheme area will be officially named Blanshard Court when the 184 new housing units are completed.

And the residents of the "court" will — "all things being equal" — all come from the city of Victoria.

City manager Dennis Young reported that 126 applications already are on file for accommodation in the new housing zone.

"Of these, 14 at least are elderly persons who are known to have resided in the city for many years prior to moving to neighboring municipalities," Young said.

He recommended that for the initial period the B.C. Housing Management Commission, the authority on who gets housing and who doesn't "be asked to give priority to applications from persons residing in the city and in future, where all circumstances are equal, that preference be given to city residents."

The first housing units are expected to be ready for occupancy before year end.

Pool Construction To Start in 1970

Aldermen Vote 5-3 In Favor

Construction of Victoria's replacement for the Crystal Garden is expected to start early in 1970.

The $1.6 million swimming complex to be built in Central Park was approved Thursday afternoon by a 5-3 vote at a special council meeting.

But two of the aldermen voting in favor, Ian Stewart and Lily Wilson, said they wanted a firm promise that the parkland taken up would be replaced at some future time.

"Whatever we take we must replace," said Stewart. "Not necessarily in this same area, but in some other part of the city where high-rise apartment dwellers are desperately short of green space."

NEED GREEN SPACE

Wilson's approval of the project followed a similar line.

"We must have green spaces," she said. "I shall support this proposal but I must have the assurance of replacement of the parkland."

Stewart said he failed to see the argument of the critics contending the small soccer pitch to be eliminated by the pool provided a better recreation facility than the proposed pool would.

Ald. Cecil Parrott told council suggestions that money could be sent to save the Crystal were out of place.

"The Crystal can't be saved," he said. "We could put on a new roof, re-plumb and re-wire the building but we would still finish up with an old pool with a new face. The actual pool in the Crystal is sinking in the mud and there isn't anything anyone can do about that."

FAVOR PROJECT

Voting in favor of the project were aldermen Stewart, Parrott, Wilson, Frampton and Olafson. Mayor Hugh Stephen did not vote but is known to support the pool replacement proposal.

Voting against were aldermen Clyde Savage, Tom Christie and Robert Baird.

All three launched a strong rear-guard action to try and force delay and a new location.

Savage said that while the John Di Castri design was "wonderful" the pool as proposed would not begin to serve the needs of the community.

He said he would also like to see some estimate of operating costs before supporting the project.

He was told that operating costs would be less than the costs of the Crystal.

Funds for construction of the pool will come mainly from the T. S. McPherson Estate which, together with interest, now stands at $1.4 million. The balance will come from the tax sale land fund.

$1M WASTED?

Black 'Ignored' Link-Up Pleas

Silent and unco-operative, the provincial government and its local MLAs watched while the City of Victoria built a "million-dollar white elephant."

This was the charge today from Alderman Ian Stewart, Liberal candidate in Victoria in the Aug. 27 provincial election, elaborating on city efforts to obtain provincial co-operation in a Pat Bay Highway link-up with the six-lane Rose Street extension built by the city.

At one point Highways Minister Wesley Black was "begged" to buy land near the Town and Country shopping centre to provide a connection with the $1 million Rose Street extension in keeping with an earlier city-province "technical" agreement on the need for such a link-up, Stewart said.

PARTISAN REACTION

Mayor Hugh Stephen sought help on behalf of the city, from Trade and Industry Minister Waldo Skillings, a Victoria MLA, and was met with a partisan political reaction, Stewart said.

Property needed for the link-up near the Town and Country centre was the subject of Opposition concern about land speculation during the past legislative session.

Stewart said the city is left in "a very awkward position" over the Rose Street extension which now ends behind the Mayfair shopping centre at Tolmie.

"We have a highway that

'NO INKLING'

Black was begged to buy the land for a link-up after it became known that Saanich Council was considering a request to rezone some of the property.

It was pointed out that acquiring the land for a road before construction of high-rise buildings would save $1 million in public funds.

No action resulted from the meeting with Black but "no inkling" of a change in provincial plans away from a Rose-Pat Bay tie-in was given at the time, Stewart said.

Black has been out of touch with his Victoria office for several days and was unavailable for comment today.

Stewart said the attitude of the province and local Socred MLAs made a mockery of the regional government concept, promoted by the government.

'COMPLETE REBUFF'

"This is an area where two people in cabinet positions (Skillings and Works Minister W. N. Chant) could have represented the interests of their city," said Stewart.

The "complete rebuff" of the mayor by Skillings indicated the lack of provincial involvement in local planning — an involvement vital for proper local planning, he said.

Stewart said the technical agreement on the desirablity of a Rose Street extension-Pat Bay hook-up was made during 1962-63 negotiations between the city and the department of highways.

All that remained was that political decisions be made by both levels of government to complete the agreement.

The city subsequently made that decision but the government withheld any announcement of its intentions. It was assumed that provincial highway priorities in other areas of the province were the reason for the delay on the Pat Bay highway program.

Announcement by Premier Bennett last fall that improvements would be made to the existing Pat Bay highway threw city officials into confusion with the province still refusing to make its long-range plans clear.

Work is under way on some of the improvements which will bring the 16-mile highway to four-lane standards except for a 1½-mile stretch near Elk Lake which will be three lanes.

POST SERVICE TO EXPAND

Major changes are in the offing for the Victoria Post Office, including a terminal sorting station in Saanich.

In five years, it is expected that postal operations will have outgrown the main building on Government Street.

It will then be necessary, possibly around 1975, to establish the new terminal to handle all preliminary mail.

The central office will be used for the main city and business routes, wicket and money order business, and boxes. Mail will go to the terminal station for sorting to main and sub-postal stations.

Expansion of subpostal stations is also expected to take place. So far, there are two such stations—at Oak Bay junction and Saanich Road.

New sites likely will include Colwood, Esquimalt, North Shelbourne and Royal Oak.

Postal officials made it clear that some of the plans are only in the preliminary stage, some years away from implementation.

Arthur Mayse . . .

ONE BLACK WINTER night in the middle thirties, I set out from Campbell River with a Forest Service officer to call on a couple who lived beyond the town.

We hadn't been invited, but my companion assured me that wouldn't matter.

It didn't, as Roderick Haig-Brown and his wife, Ann, made plain.

That was a visit to remember. We talked about books and fishing, and I came away from the farmhouse by the growling Campbell both pleased and impressed.

★

It was several years before I met our host of that pleasant evening again.

Then, one morning of wind and rain, a lean, black-haired man put in at the Vancouver Daily Province newsroom. I didn't recognize him until the copy boy who doubled as receptionist fetched him in among the desks.

It was Haig-Brown, in a drenched raincoat that had seen better years. He carried a corded parcel under his arm.

★

Months earlier, I'd reported in my outdoors column on some hit-or-miss experiments with the floating fly on sea-run cutthroat trout. By letter, Haig-Brown had supplemented my guesswork with useful information. It was not lost on me that he did so with a grace that spared my ignorance.

A busy newsroom is no place to talk fishing, or books. We went down to the restaurant next door for coffee. While we were on our second cup, Haig-Brown freed two handsome books from their brown-paper wrappings.

They were his personal copies of what is still the definitive work on British Columbia game fish and fishing, "The Western Angler." The publisher had sent them out a week or so earlier. Would I care to read and review the two-volume set?

As well ask a hungry man if he would like an outsize filet mignon. Haig-Brown's Western Angler cost me much lost sleep in the next few nights. It also convinced me that here was a writer who would make a very solid name for himself.

★

Seven years later, he enhanced his reputation with "A River Never Sleeps." That book, a classic now, is my favorite of the many he has written.

The second World War, in which he served overseas with the Canadian Army, was not long past when Haig-Brown added that title to a lengthening list.

Those were busy years, and I can't place the next of our very few meetings with any accuracy.

★

It was in late summer or early fall, on Haig-Brown's turf, and we hadn't meant to stay.

But stay we did, to feast on corn fresh off the stalk, and discuss those two inevitables—books and fishing.

I left with a gift copy of Haig-Brown's latest, which I gulped down with no more delay than need be.

It's called "Saltwater Summer," and as a juvenile with a difference, it more than deserved the Governor-General's Citation it received.

We've met once more since then. Haig-Brown, with more books written, showed me a parabolic fly-rod that set my fingers itching. His status as a conservationist had paced his reputation as an author.

No Canadian has fought so long and so faithfully against spoilage and for a wiser handling of natural resources.

Roderick L. Haig-Brown is still by the Campbell—an honored Canadian, but one not yet listened to as he should be.

★

Last night I made a random choice from the shelf where his Four Seasons books are crowded among others he has written.

It was "Fisherman's Summer," and it read as well as it did on the first go-round.

Return to Reality Is Hard on Lisa

By PENNY SAVER

"The trouble with honeymoons," said Lisa despondently, "is that they come to an end.

"It isn't fair. For two weeks I have lived in bliss; nothing to worry about but keeping my newly-acquired spouse content. Now, like a shower of ice-cubes, my duties impose.

"We came home last night to a house arranged by the moving men and my mother-in-law. It's going to take me weeks to find things and my leave of absence ends in two."

"Then why are you sitting here drinking coffee?" asked Jayne, as if she didn't know the answer. "I've caught up with my housework, so I could help you."

"I'm not caught up," I admitted, "but I wasn't going to work today anyway. Let's go!"

Houses that have been arranged by moving men and mothers-in-law can be pretty dismal.

Besides that, there was two weeks of dust everywhere — no wonder Lisa didn't want to face it alone.

Once we had everything clean and the heavy furniture in place, we turned to the problem of little things.

"What does one do with trays?" Lisa had a formidable pile of them in her arms.

"Some of these are beautifully painted or inlaid and would be as good as pictures for the wall, but hanging them would ruin them as far as their intended purpose was concerned."

"Not necessarily," said Jayne. "I'll buy you some tray hangers as a wedding gift. (Bet you didn't even notice I didn't send you one.) You can come with me and pick out your favorite colors."

Tray hangers are made in Sweden and cost $3.95 each.

Loops of Woven Cloth

They are very simple things, made of a ring of laminated wood to which are attached two loops of woven cloth.

The tray, or trays, rest in these loops which can be spread to adjust to the size of most round or oblong trays.

The woven loops are decorative in themselves since they come in a variety of colors and use attractive Scandinavian belt-weaving patterns.

Lisa liked the tray holders and decided to maintain the Scandinavian flavor they would give her room by buying some cushion covers in similar patterns.

There are several different kinds of these covers. Some, at $5.25 each, are about a foot and a half square. These are banded with Scandinavian patterns and have tassels on each corner made with the various colors used in the cushion.

For $4.95 there are striped cushions, one and a half feet by two feet in size.

These have patterned stripes and are fringed on the two narrow ends. Again these come in a wide selection of colors.

These cushion covers are all made of fairly bulky cloth and are open at one side so a regular cushion can be slipped in.

Pattern Warms Kitchen

Here is a kitchen, by designer Jeanette Coppes, that fairly sings with color and pattern. And, the newsworthy feature is the abundance of patterns, each different, but all relating, to attain total harmony.

In analysis, you will see that the crewel design on the walls has the same emphasis on curves and florals as the vinyl floor, although in no way do they match. The fact that they are widely separated by cabinets and counters helps, of course, and color tones are the same. Rather than plain cabinets forming a stark band amid all this opulence, they, too, have a pattern, formed by dark molding that creates panels. Although on the small drawers, the molding has square corners, the larger drawers and cabinet doors feature molding with concave corners, again tying in with the curves.

For contrast, small unglazed ceramic mosaic tiles cover counters, splash and the wall behind the stove. Their geometric precision provides a pleasing foil for the exuberant florals, and keeps the room in balance. The dark ceiling beams also contribute to this end.

Purists who feel that kitchens should be utilitarian, with design sublimated to function, would be uncomfortable in this setting. Instead, it is for a Provincial styled home, or one that is traditional rather than contemporary, where decoration plays a large part in creating a warm, home-like atmosphere.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Sleeps in Medals

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I think there is something wrong with my husband. He was a Marine in World War II and was always very proud of that, but lately he has been sleeping in his uniform, with all his medals, cap and even his sword.

Should I watch him for other signs of peculiarness? He's not old enough to be getting senile. — Worried in Cleveland

DEAR WORRIED: Don't try to diagnose your husband's case. He needs professional help. Get him to a doctor. In or out of uniform.

DEAR ABBY: A couple my husband and I have known for many years suddenly up and got a divorce. All their friends were shocked at the news because no one suspected they weren't getting along and there was certainly no hint of divorce. It still doesn't make much sense as there seems to be nobody else in the picture and this couple have married children.

Well, they are living apart now which creates some sticky problems for their friends. Would it be proper to invite them both to the same party — but individually?

If not, and a choice is made, should the hostess ask the invited one to bring his (or her) own date? Or is it proper to pair up a not-yet-divorced person with another single person at the party?

This couple did a lot of entertaining when they were together and it doesn't seem right to ignore them now, but it's so awkward making a choice, and could be worse having them together.

Abby, you could make a fortune if you wrote a new book on divorce etiquette. There is so much of it today and nobody knows exactly what to do. — Stumped in Palo Alto.

DEAR STUMPED: When couples split up, unless their friends know positively that there would be no embarrassment or strain, it's best not to invite them to the same party. If one is invited without the other, it's better to pair him up with a single partner at the party, but don't suggest a not-yet-divorced person bring his own date.

Indian Women in Training For Teacher Aide Posts

More than 30 Indian women from across Canada are taking a three-week course at Scarborough's Centennial College in Ontario that will train them to be teachers' aides.

At completion of the course, the women will return to their reserves to assist kindergarten teachers at annual salaries ranging from $3,300 to $4,600.

The course is sponsored by the department of Indian affairs and northern development which pays the students' tuition, board and provides them with about $8 a week spending money each.

NONE FROM B.C.

"If any have gone from here, it was without our knowledge," said Mr. A. Friesen of the B.C. Regional office, Department of Indian Affairs, when asked about the Scarborough teacher aide course.

"We have projects all across Canada. I would guess this is one in Ontario. They may have taken in the odd one from other provinces, perhaps the Maritimes, though I doubt there would be any from the west.

"Basically, our policy is to work within each province to work out solutions to problems within that province. Each province, you see, has its own regulations with regard to teacher training."

Are there any similar programs in British Columbia?

"There are Indian women taking regular courses then going back to work with Indian children on their reserve, opening kindergartens and nurseries.

"We feel it is better to work with existing universities and school boards, rather than competing with them.

"If we think there is a lack, we go and talk it over with them; tell them what we think should be done. If, in fact, there is no lack, we stand corrected.

"Only if we can't talk them into providing a service do we set one up on our own and this is happening less and less. It is only recently that the province became interested in Indian education problems, but they have given us every co-operation.

"We throw the problem of language and culture out to the Indians themselves. Only the Indians can teach that.

"Many bands do have such programs started. Others are waiting and thinking about it, but I think they too will become involved soon."

Participants in the Ontario program are enthusiastic.

"This is one of the best moves the Indian affairs department has made," said Janet Big Canoe, 25, whose husband, Andrew is chief of the Georgina Island band. "Without this the children on our reserves wouldn't have a kindergarten."

Most of the women taking the course are between 15 and 45 and were selected by band councils and local school authorities.

Hilda Labillois, 27-year-old mother of four from the Restigouche reserve in Quebec near the New Brunswick border, said she hopes to become a full-time teacher eventually and the course is a step in that direction.

Anne King, from St. Regis reserve near Cornwall, Ont., said many Indian children find it difficult to communicate with white teachers, and she hopes to bridge this communication gap.

Log Cabin Couple Deliver Own Baby

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A Portland tree surgeon and his wife delivered their baby at home recently to avoid "the hospital assembly line."

Warren and Susan Huppi read all the obstetrics books they could find.

Then, as the day approached, they scrubbed and sterilized the bedroom of their log home.

Little Melissa Huppi was born six days ago in the four-poster bed Susan had carved with her wood sculpting chain saw.

"We had no problems during labor and delivery," said Warren. "Except, I got awfully nervous."

"Having a baby is a wonderful thing," said Susan. "Warren and I didn't want to go through the hospital assembly line where the father has nothing to do when the biggest thing in life is happening."

The Huppis—he's 31, she's 25—say they'll use the money they saved—approximately $375—toward their tuition at Portland Community College this fall.

Corns Pared, Hair Dressed, in Shop No. 1

By NANCY L. ROSS

MOSCOW — A babushka—that familiar Russian grandmother figure in a headscarf—sweeps up shorn locks with a fagot broom. A stooped street vendor walks among the rows of dryers, hawking newspapers. Aside from one hairdresser, he is the only male among a hundred or so women squeezed into seven small rooms.

Under the glare of neon lights and a portrait or an unsmiling Lenin, a manicurist works deftly, quickly. The tally sheet beside her indicates she has done about 35 manicures that day.

After each beauty service, the client presents the technician's sheet to the cashier—who sits in the middle of the room with her abacus and register—and then waits to be called to the next room.

These are a visitor's impressions of beauty, Soviet style as practiced at Parik Makherskaya literally, Hairdresser Shop No. 1 on Gorky Street, Moscow's Fifth Avenue. A newer salon with the more alluring name of Charodeika (enchantress) opened two years ago in the modern Kalinin district.

EIGHT RUBLES

However, Hairdresser Shop No. 1 is still considered the best place in Moscow for a complete beauty treatment.

A shampoo and set, manicure, pedicure, facial and make-up costs 8 rubles, 50 kopecks ($9.35 at the official exchange rate, but less than one fourth that amount at the current free rate).

To the average Russian woman who earns perhaps 80-90 rubles a month, but who offers herself the luxury of a 60-rubles dress from Japan, such a treatment is still expensive, services being much cheaper than goods in the USSR.

Few Americans are seen at Hairdresser Shop No. 1. Americans living here follow the common practice of Muscovites of having beauticians come to their homes. Visitors are expected to patronize hotel hairdressers. Even though my guide was not permitted by the Soviet tourist agency to remain to interpret, I nevertheless managed to spend an afternoon there.

Muscovites line up as early as 6 a.m. outside beauty shops and the stream continues until well after 9 p.m. Inside Hairdresser Shop No. 1, up a flight of stairs from the men's section, organized chaos prevails.

LACKS LUXURY

There is no luxurious relaxation in soothing pink stillness. Instead women sit on hard benches in the aisles or stand for lack of chairs against the marble and gray painted walls, waiting for an attendant, a dryer, a comb-out, etc. Old and young, ugly and pretty, fat peasants in scarves and chic well-dressed girls (even one in a miniskirt, a rarity in Moscow) all wait their turn.

Behind the curtainless, frosted windows, four matronly pedicurists in white coats and caps were digging away at the corns of corpulent women, their varicose-veined legs raised in stirrups. They were shaving the soles of the feet with a safety razor, throwing used blades on the floor. Such practices are the functions of a podiatrist in the United States and are not permitted in beauty salons.

TIP WITH KOPECKS

Though tipping by tourists is discouraged as a bourgeois custom in the Soviet Union, a client of Hairdresser Shop No. 1 is expected to drop a few kopecks into the pocket of each beautician. A cosmetician asked this American visitor to give her instead of money her own (used) lipstick.

Long delays between operations are the norm, yet preferential treatment was shown after the guide hinted her charge was a VIP. The salon's director, wearing a yellow smock with the initials CCCP (Russian for USSR) shepherded the visitor through without waiting.

Even the efficient, impersonal Soviet system is subject to personal whim at times. When a woman walked into the pedicure room bearing a large carton stamped Hungaria, all work stopped. The non-nonsense technicians quickly became eager housewives, whipped out their purses and selected a few pork chops for dinner before returning to their calloused customers.

NO FALSE LASHES

A facial consists of a cream massage, followed by muscle toning with an electric stimulator resembling a fourth of July sparkler. In keeping with the natural look favored by Russian women, no make-up foundation is used. Only a light pink liquid rouge is applied to the cheeks, followed by a little pale powder.

Eyebrows are usually left unpenciled, but lashes are beaded with cake mascara. Current Moscow fashion calls for thick blackliner on the lids. False eyelashes do not exist, nor apparently does colored shadow.

Cosmetics used at Hairdresser Shop No. 1 are dispensed from large bottles with a cotton swab. Pearlized white nail polish seems the most popular color this season. One shade (surprisingly enough, a common American brand) is used for all pedicures; a choice of about six shades is offered by the manicurist.

To an American the equipment appears antiquated: beer from a bottle used as a waveset, hairspray from a bulb syringe, bone-shaped wooden and metal curlers fastened with rubber bands and stored on circular bands like giant keyrings.

Tepid-air dryers increase drying time by about 50 per cent over U.S. standards. For lack of wigstands, one hairdresser held a fall, obviously washed, in her fingers while another rolled it. Nevertheless, the results are often surprisingly good.

Tattoo Technique Covers Birthmarks

OTTAWA — New hope for persons disfigured by the "port-wine-stain" birthmark is found in an instrument developed by engineers of the Nation Research Council in Ottawa.

A panel of doctors is assessing the results of experimental treatment involving 70 children and 13 adults in Toronto.

The procedure of treatment is to inject color-changing pigment by a group of tattooing needles operating at 20,000 to 22,000 jabs per minute. Engineers working under S. H. G. Connock, head of the instruments section of NRC's Division of Mechanical Engineering, have developed the instrument, based on work by Dr. H. G. Thomson of Toronto.

Dr. Thomson began his research in 1960 after a technique pioneered by a New York City surgeon, Dr. Herbert Conway, in the 1940s, had been virtually abandoned.

Matches Colors

Dr. Thomson refined the technique, beginning with the original cable-driven dermajector, and continuing with a regular tattoo artist's machine. He worked with a medical artist to determine the best way to achieve color matching.

The Toronto surgeon found that small punctures rather than large ones allow more pigment to be inserted with less burning, skin loss and pigment loss. He also discovered that the higher the frequency of the injection, the greater was the amount of pigment inserted, giving the advantage of being able to inject a large amount of pigment before profuse bleeding began.

He adapted a high-speed turbine motor to provide the high frequency of puncture, but the initial designs were plagued with troubles. In 1967 the project was turned over to the NRC engineers.

The cause of the port-wine-stain birthmark is a mystery, although physicians say the reddish-purple discolorations are the result of an accumulation of blood vessels in the skin of the face or neck. Sometimes the discoloration is as small as a 25-cent coin and is called a strawberry mark. Sometimes it covers most of the face.

According to Dr. Thomson, plastic surgeons have found that any treatment other than changing the color adds both a shade and texture variation in the skin, thus creating a secondary problem greater than the primary one.

Cosmetics have long been used to provide a temporary color match with normal skin. The injection of colors into the skin, if successful, would provide a more permanent solution.

Seven Blood Tests Within 20 Seconds

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

You might call it computerized medicine.

It's a machine that makes seven separate tests of one sample of blood in 20 seconds and then punches out a typed report.

It first makes four tests of the blood sample submitted, then bases three more on the results.

The Coulter Counter, worth $36,000, now does about 70 per cent of blood analysis that used to be done manually by laboratory technicians.

It's one of three similar machines in British Columbia, and part of $150,000 worth of modern equipment installed in the hospital's new biochemistry and hematology laboratory.

"It is the most up-to-date equipment of its kind," said Dr. Kenneth Thornton, laboratory director.

In November, Dr. Thornton spoke of the desperate need for a comprehensive laboratory to house thousands of dollars of new equipment and eliminate the need for critically-timed chemical tests being taken from one building to another.

"Much of our equipment is stored in poky little rooms," he complained.

NOW A REALITY

Dr. Thornton's wish is now a reality, thanks largely to the hospital's junior women's auxiliary, which contributed two-thirds of the cost of major equipment to the government's one-third.

"The money was raised by volunteers at our annual bazaar, our gift shop in the hospital and our thrift shop on Johnson Street," said Mrs. W. D. Dickinson, president.

Mrs. Dickinson and Courtney Haddock, president of the hospital's board of directors, inspected the new laobratory facilities Thursday afternoon.

There's a biochemistry laboratory for the analysis of diseases and a hematology laboratory for the analysis of blood disease.

This is the first phase of a three-part program to be completed in 1970.

"Royal Jubilee is a poison control hospital," Dr. Thornton said, "and this equipment is vital to our operation. We believe a hospital is only as good as its laboratory, which backs up the doctors by giving them vital information."

The biochemistry laboratory is equipped with a $4,000 blood analyser which makes 12 separate measurements of a small sample of blood and then issues a biochemical report.

"It could serve the needs of all Vancouver Island," Dr. Thornton said.

TWO-STAGE TESTS

The biochemistry laboratory is also equipped with a machine that can automatically, and in pairs, do two-stage blood tests which doctors would normally have to do individually.

Highly valued is an apparatus called the SP 800 ultra-violet spectrophotometer, which cost $12,000. It is used to measure enzyme, barbituarite and carbon monoxide levels and can also measure the level of jaundice in new-born infants.

"It can measure and make graphs of lights of all wavelengths in the color spectrum," said Dr. Rennie Chong Kit, who demonstrated the machine.

Dr. Chong Kit, 31, came to Canada five years ago from Jamaica and is a highly-rated specialist on the laboratory staff.

Dr. George Anderson, associate pathologist, demonstrated equipment that is used for patients who have suffered heart attacks.

He said the hematology laboratory contains a blood bank which can keep blood samples at just above freezing point for three weeks before they are made into blood plasma.

Each sample is subject to compatibility tests to make sure the blood can be safely given to a particular patient.

First phase of the new laboratory occupies 8,000 square feet. In December, a surgical pathology laboratory will occupy a further 8,000 square feet. By 1970, the old laboratory will have been renovated and a total of 22,000 square feet of laboratory space will be in use.

Dr. Thornton estimated the cost of the new equipment at $150,000 and the entire laboratory set-up at about $625,000.

"It will supply first-class medical care for all the people of Victoria," he said.

VANCOUVER (CP)—An East German optical company will give the Vancouver Planetarium a six-inch reflector telescope as a gift. It represents the start of the planetarium's plan to establish a public observatory. The company sold other equipment to the planetarium.

How to Please The Teacher Comes First!

By BOB MITCHELL

Why force a child to learn to read, write and count before puberty?

Why force him to go to school at all?

There is no reason, says Tom Durrie of the Saturna Island Free School.

In fact, he told an audience at the University of Victoria Thursday, if we quit forcing children to go to school, there would be a revolution in education.

"Children have within them a far more efficient method of study than is contained in text books, timetables or curricula," he said.

"So what if Jane doesn't learn how to divide fractions—who needs to know how to divide fractions?

"So what if Johnny doesn't learn to read at age six? Very few six-year-olds need to read anyway.

INTERESTING ONLY

"It's like teaching monkeys how to operate slot machines—it's very interesting from the point of view of a behavorial psychologist, but it doesn't do much for the monkeys."

Durrie said children in public schools should get more freedom and responsibility, simply by making school non-compulsory.

"If this one requirement was deleted from the Public Schools Act there would be a revolution in education overnight."

Durrie, who taught for 10 years in public schools in California and B.C. prior to 1967, was critical of the system imposing what is to be learned on children.

DESIRE TO LEARN

"We are trying to create the desire to learn, we're trying to elicit a response, and the whole situation becomes confused.

"The kids spend a lot of time trying to find out how to get a favorable response from the teacher. The idea of learning to read and count goes by the board, and is replaced by the idea of how to please the teacher."

Durrie equated literacy to being a good driver:

"Passing the test is no guarantee you will be a safe driver.

"Likewise, being able to read does not make you literate. Literacy has not increased as a result of our educational system."

He described the Saturna Island school as one in which the pressure is off the students.

The 34-acre farm on which the school is located has waterfront, fields and cliffs. The $1,275 tuition barely covers expenses, and the six teachers do not receive a salary.

"We don't regard ourselves as isolationist—I just prefer to live in the country.

"One advantage is that it gives you a chance to stand aside for a while, free of the polluted air and the traffic.

"I don't expect the students at our school will become farmers. But I do think they will be able to live more effectively in the city."

Before the Judge

Robert J. Renouf, 25, of Merritt, was fined $250 in provincial court Thursday after he pleaded guilty to driving while his licence was under suspension.

Court was told he was arrested Thursday morning while his licence was under a 24-hour suspension.

Renouf explained that he had no money to call a cab, and had to be at his job or he might lose it.

John Pilatzke, 22, of the Churchill Hotel, was sentenced to ten days in prison after he pleaded guilty to driving while his licence was under suspension.

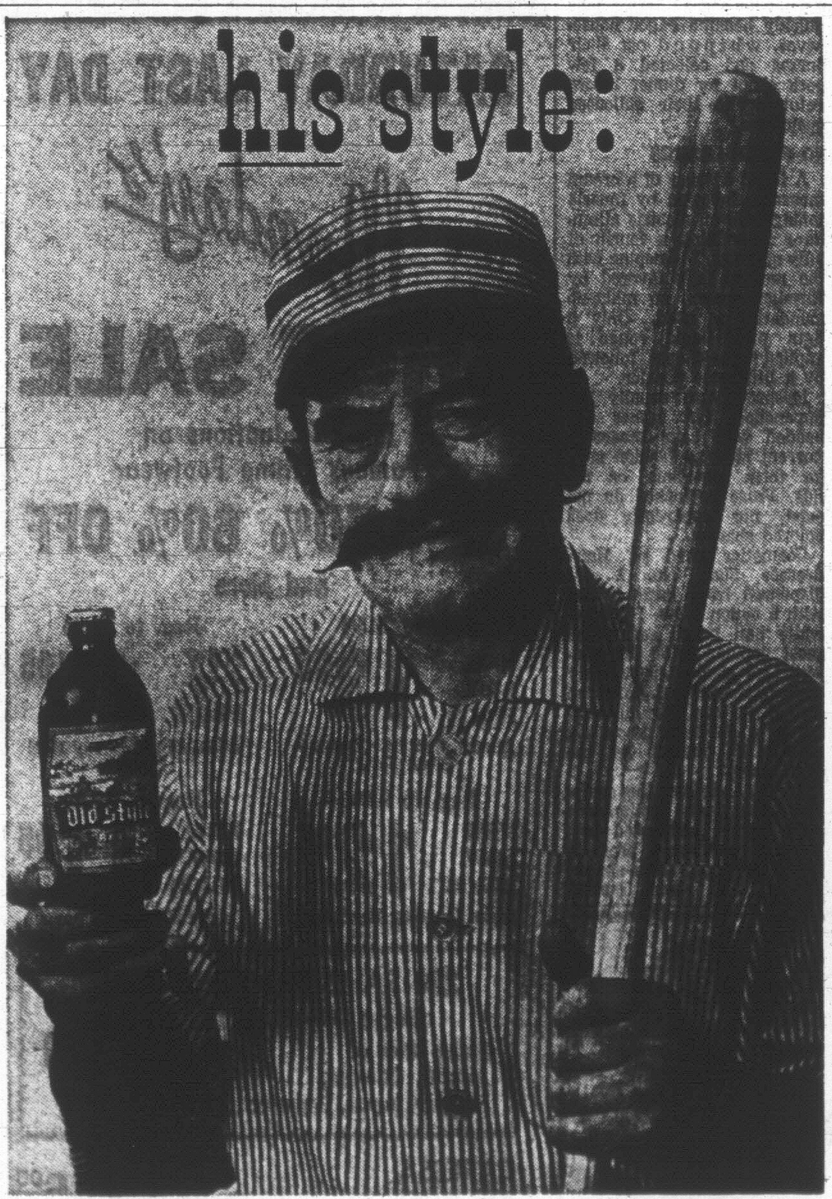
William J. Hewitt, 2552 Vancouver, was fined $25 for a violation of the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Judge William Ostler said he was giving a relatively small fine because Hewitt had simply overlooked an appointment with an inspector who was to check his books. Hewitt had brought the books to court with him, and Judge Ostler ordered him to turn them over to the inspector at that time.

Anthony N. Soulsby, 27, of 1309 Pembroke, was fined $500 for impaired driving.

Jailed for Sideburns

TUCUMAN, Argentina (Reuters) — Long sideburns have landed Police Inspector Alberto Ponce of Tucuman in jail. Deputy Police Chief Florencia Montilla did not like the looks of his hairy subordinate, ordered Ponce to shave the sideburns off and gave him a 10-day sentence for his vanity.



With all these new-style rules and regulations, the early heroes of Cap Stadium wouldn't recognize the old ball game today. But, they'd still appreciate one style: Old Style. It's still brewed with natural ingredients and plenty of time. Still brewed in B.C. for Old Style flavour.

Council Seat To Be Filled In Byelection

LADYSMITH — A byelection will be held here to replace Ald. Jim Moore who will resign Sept. 1 because of a job transfer to Port Alberni.

Because Moore is serving the first of a two-year term, the Municipal Act requires a byelection to select an alderman for the balance of the term. Other civic elections take place in December.

No definite date has been set, but Mayor Kay Grouhel said the date of the byelection would probably be between Sept. 30 and Oct. 15.

Mrs. Grouhel said Moore's resignation was accepted with regret because "I don't think the town has ever had a harder-working alderman."

Moore has been employed as senior scaler for MacMillan-Bloedel in the Nanaimo area and the east coast of Vancouver Island. At Port Alberni he will be supervisor of log sorting.

A byelection will also be held in North Cowichan on Sept. 6 to fill a vacancy on council created when Ald. Daryl Moraes resigned. Moraes, also being transferred, was not present for most of the eight months he was on council.

N. Saanich Plans To Fix Beach Access

Six beach access roads in North Saanich will be developed and improved as soon as funds and working crews are available, council has decided.

Development of the accesses was recommended by Ald. George Cumpston who earlier this year conducted a survey of public roads and paths to beaches.

Easements selected for early development were:

Inverness Avenue to Cole Bay; West Saanich Road south to Patricia Bay; west end of Tatlow Road to Deep Cove; north end of West Saanich Road; Fernie Wynd east to high water; extension of Amity Drive to Dencross Terrace.

Ten other locations were earmarked as particularly suitable for development in the near future.

Little League To Relocate

The Little League of Langford will relocate on land adjacent to the Centennial Swimming Pool and belonging to the recreation commission.

Confronted with the need to find new quarters, the league was granted an adequate parcel of land from the pool commission.

The land is being cleared, under the auspices of the Victoria Lions Club for construction of new bleachers and a diamond.

Earl Pallister, Langford member of the pool board of directors, emphasized that the board "is most approachable to overtures from other groups" who wish to utilize some of the vacant land.

The dry unsightly grass, a potential fire hazard and eyesore, is being removed from the pool area in a preliminary phase of landscaping. Limited funds are available for this work, Pallister said.

MORE HOPE HERE

Half U.S. Sea Otters Die

Fourteen of the 29 sea otters transplanted last week from Alaska to the Washington coast have died, U.S. game officials announced today.

But B.C. fish and wildlife officials are hopeful that the 29 sea otters that were transferred in the same shipment to Vancouver Island's west coast will fare better.

U.S. officials blamed the shock of the otters' capture and the long trip from Alaska for the high mortality rate. They said otters are "not physically strong . . . and go into shock pretty easily."

●

Donald J. Robinson, assistant director of the B.C. fish and wildlife branch, said an aircraft left today to check the number of sea otters established off Bunsby Island, about 200 miles north west of Victoria.

"We probably have suffered some losses, but the chances are not as many, because our habitat is superior," he said.

He said the Bunsby habitat was composed of islets, reefs and rocky shelves. These provide the sea mammals with shelter and resting places to groom their fur.

"They have to continually groom their pellage," he said. "They are very sensitive to cold and their fur has to be kept in top shape."

●

Off the Washington Coast, near Hoquiam, he said, there were few reefs and islets to permit the sea otters to rest.

"However, while we may have a superior habitat, I don't rule out the possibility of some losses," he said.

The rare marine mammals are being re-established on the Pacific Northwest by the B.C. Department of Recreation and the Washington state game department.

They once existed in large numbers off the coast, but were wiped out by fur hunters during the 19th century.

Buttle Pollution Report Said Deliberately Held

By MORGAN MacGREGOR

CAMPBELL RIVER — Ald. Wallace Baikie, water board chairman here, has accused the pollution control board of deliberately suppressing Buttle Lake sampling results.

He has been trying to get a report on the pollution test for eight months.

"One can only assume that the results of the testing look so bad that the pollution control board conveniently lost the report for this period rather than alarm the public," he said.

Baikie said he still has not received a letter from F. S. McKinnon of the pollution control board sent two weeks ago requesting up-to-date results on Campbell River's domestic water source.

Western Mines Ltd. uses a bay 20 miles north of domestic water intake lines to dump its mine tailings into the lake.

Baikie contacted Municipal Affairs Minister and local MLA Dan Campbell this week.

"Campbell states that results of tests are held up due to delay in receiving information from the federal lab in Calgary, while Mr. McKinnon states the lab in Vancocouver General Hospital is holding up results due to a pile-up of work.

"They keep telling me that they send their results of testing to the PCB in Victoria and that our water board can get its results from PCB.

"I have been sending samples to Calgary for a year and a half now and not once have I received results."

"McKinnon states that due to the freeze-up no results are available for the first four months of this year. During the freeze-up there were considerable spills of tailings and also a snow slide that interrputed the disposal of the tailings in the regular way.

YOUTH LOST IN SINKING OF PACKER

MASSET, B.C. (CP) — A youth was missing and presumed drowned and three men were rescued when the 40-foot fish packer Satellite II sank near Rose Spit on the northeast tip of the Queen Charlotte Islands Thursday.

The missing youth was identified as Patrick Bennett, 16, of Masset.

The rescue co-ordination centre in Vancouver said it received a Mayday call at 4:58 p.m. and dispatched several fishing boats to the area. Three unidentified crew members were picked up and taken to Masset.

The packer, owned by Nelson Brothers Ltd., was operating out of Prince Rupert.

No Decision On Dumped Transformers

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal anti-dumping tribunal today declined to make a decision on whether the dumping of a particular range of British and Japanese power transformers on the Canadian market caused injury to domestic transformer producers.

Instead it asked the revenue department to expand the scope of its investigation into the dumping of the transformers on the ground that the department's preliminary determination setting out the range of transformers judged to have been dumped was too narrow.

The tribunal held hearings throughout July on whether the dumping of such transformers injured the Canadian industry. Under new anti-dumping legislation injury must be shown, or provisional dumping duties applied at the time of the determination discontinued.

The tribunal found the department's determination vague because it referred to the dumping of power transformers—a term "susceptible of more than one meaning."

Oak Bay Election Corner

Dr. G. Scott Wallace

With responsibility for the health and welfare of the people an ever increasing function of Provincial government, it seems reasonable to assume that professional people, trained in the medical and allied fields, should be willing to offer substantial help to the politicians. Because of the rational, factual, scientific education of the professional however, it is equally obvious that few such men relish facing the uncertain, emotional vagaries of the political arena. Nevertheless, in Oak Bay, the pre-eminent problem today is the provision of sufficient hospital beds at reasonable expense to the taxpayer. Both the incumbent Liberal and this Social Credit challenger are agreed on this point. As a taxpayer, who also happens to be a physician with fourteen years' experience of hospital affairs, I am sufficiently concerned, that I am now offering myself for political office, in the role of experienced physician and political Babe in the Wood. I cannot over emphasise the fact that I am first and foremost a doctor, with deep concern for the medical needs of people, but now of necessity a would-be politician in order to contribute towards the rapid creation of the necessary and appropriate beds, at a realistic cost. It will be for the electors to decide if this combination of determined physician and greenhorn politician could work for the greater good of the residents of Oak Bay.

HOME GARDEN

Time for Sowing Cabbage Seed

By HILDA BEASTALL

Sowings made now in the vegetable garden can mean savings of dollars later, plus that added freshness which is beyond price. It is during winter and in April and early May, that we Canadians seem to crave green foods. If they can be grown in our gardens, why should we not indulge?

Hilda

Small, pointed head cabbage for eating raw or cooked can be obtained in April and May by sowing seed this weekend. The name of the variety is Flower of Spring. Sometimes young plants are available at garden shops later this month, so if you miss the sowing there is still a chance of success.

Sow the seed thinly in an inch-deep drill, trying for one seed at each inch spacing. After germination, thin to three inches apart and leave that way to allow for winter casualties.

A dusting of lime is always to be advised in soil for cabbages, whether seeding or transplanting.

If hot sunshine returns this month, provide a little shade until the seedlings are established.

A hard winter would frustrate this scheme, but in sheltered gardens we heard of these cabbages coming through the unusual weather of last January and growing into nice little reads by early May.

Another useful sowing which can be started now and made successively every two weeks until the end of October is Lamb's-lettuce or Italian Corn-salad.

The seed is listed locally, and it certainly should be more used. The thick, tender leaves can be eaten raw in salads or cooked like spinach.

If this is sown in a sunny border near a firm path the plants can be pulled up as needed without getting the feet full of mud in wet weather.

A rich soil is needed for this quick growing green salad crop. Adding compost to the soil will be fine but the border must be well drained in winter.

Sow part of the border first; say, one third. Then try two other sowings of one third each. One sowing may be a partial failure for some climatic reason, but the overall result should prove worth while.

The only thinning needed is complete removal of the plants as they reach a usuable size. The first can be in October.

A row of onions sown now and not thinned out will give early green onions, and some for transplanting in March.

This kind of vegetable sowing is the bonus of a home garden plot — the cream available for the gardener who cares.

Hope for Person With Severe Little Stroke

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Many people who have had a "severe little stroke" — perhaps a frightening dizzy spell or a fall out of a chair followed by a few days of a little difficulty in talking and walking, and perhaps sleeping, also a defect in memory, and an inability to do any work — are so hopeless that when I can, I like to give them hope of some recovery.

I will never forget a man with a good-sized business who came to me in April, 1955. Because he was so mentally dulled by a stroke, his wife had to give the history, and she told me that for four months he had not been able even to go to his place of business. Interestingly, he had just come from a great clinic where he had been given a thorough and complete examination. He had been told there was "nothing the matter" with him. Curiously, the physician who saw him had not noticed his dull face, his dull speech, and his complete inability to work.

★ ★ ★

To make the diagnosis all I had to do, as usual in these cases, was to ask the wife, "Did this terrible change in him come suddenly?" And she said, "Sure: it came New Year's Eve, as he was taking down the Christmas tree. He fell to the floor, and I had to drag him to the davenport. In a half hour he got up, and though dizzy, he got up to the bed. But since then he has been completely changed — he has been as you see him; unable to read and unable to go to work."

I gave him a drug called lipoidine, which occasionally works a miracle in these cases, and in three weeks, he was bright and went back to work. He was able to keep at work for many years, until at last he got a big stroke, and died.

What made me think of this problem was a letter I just received from the wife of a friend of mine, who used to be a very able university professor. One day some 10 years ago, while travelling in the Orient, he woke one morning with a little stroke which interfered with his talking, and for a few hours caused his right arm and hand to be weak. Then these troubles cleared away, but he, who had always been able to go to sleep as soon as he went to bed, no longer could sleep, and would have to lie awake almost all night.

Unfortunately, his physician, like quite a few of us today, would not give him a sleeping pill; he had the weird idea that such pills are commonly addictive. The result was that when my friend got home and came to see me, he was haggard, terribly fatigued, and suicidal. I gave him all the barbiturate that he needed, and after three nights of sleep he went back to his office to work half-time. He had a few signs left of his little stroke. After a few years he had two or three more little strokes that made him irritable and for a while somewhat changed his character. He was then in his late 70s. He recovered from these little strokes, married a lovely woman, and was happy and well.

A few years later he had another little stroke which again interfered with his speech and made him weepy. He spent some months utterly miserable in bed. Then he began to recover remarkably, and now his wife writes me that he is pretty much his old good-natured, able and healthy self.

★ ★ ★

I regret that as yet I do not know of any medicine that will surely help these people back to health.

"Those are their three ages, aren't they?" Len asked, holding up a sheet of paper. "One year apart?"

Harry looked. "Sure, like three consecutive numbers," he replied. "Why?"

Len pointed. "Look' The sum of their squares is a number that ends with 789, our house number."

A stronge coincidence. But what were those three ages?

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Two Famed Giants Born in Maritimes

By BOB BOWMAN

Thursday's story was about some big men in politics who came from the Maritimes. The same provinces also produced some men and women who were extraordinarily big in stature. In fact they were called giants.

When Abraham Gesner, the inventor of kerosene, was doing some geological work in Prince Edward Island he discovered a mass grave near Savage Harbor. The bones of the skeletons were much larger than normal and led to the theory that the area had been invaded by a tribe of giant Indians who were trapped by the tide there, and killed.

Another mass grave of large bones was discovered near Homeville, Cape Breton, and may have been the relics of Vikings who lived there about 1000 A.D.

There was no need to speculate about the two Nova Scotians, of more modern times. Angus McAskill of Cape Breton grew to be seven feet nine inches tall and probably weighed more than 600 pounds. He was a gentle giant but was once tackled by a 300 pound wrestler when McAskill refused to fight.

McAskill picked him up with one hand, twirled him around his head, and threw him over a woodpile 10 feet high. P. J. Barnum, the American showman, took him on tour, and Tom Thumb used to dance on his hand. When the dance ended, McAskill would throw Tom Thumb into the pocket of his overcoat. The giant died on August 9, 1863, from the effects of an injury caused by picking up an anchor weighing 2,000 pounds and throwing it. One of the flukes of the anchor struck his shoulder.

The other Nova Scotian of huge stature was a giantess, Anna Swan. She was born in Colchester County and grew to be seven feet six inches tall and weighed 350 pounds. She also went on tour for Barnum and became a favorite of Queen Victoria who gave her a diamond ring. Anna Swan married a giant from Kentucky in 1871 and it took more than 100 yards of satin and lace to make her wedding gown. They had two children but they died as infants.

Other events on August 8:

1619—Jens Munck, Danish explorer, held first Lutheran service in Canada at Hudson Bay.

1686—Pierre Le Moyne d'Iberville captured Fort Albany, Hudson Bay.

1774—Spanish explorer Hernandez discovered Nootka Sound, B.C.

1782—French admiral La Perouse captured Fort Prince of Wales, Hudson Bay.

1918—Canadian Corps cut through German lines near Amiens as the beginning of an advance that ended World War I.

1934—L. Reid and J. R. Ayling made first airplane flight from Canada to Britain, from Georgian Bay to London.

1963—Canada signed atomic agreement with Britain, U.S.A. and U.S.S.R.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

In some avenues of endeavor, the expression, "don't change horses in midstream," may serve judiciously as a way of life. But during one's day-to-day living at the bridge table, the application of this philosophy can frequently be ruinous. As evidence, observe the following deal.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH
♠ Q 6 2
♡ Q J 10 4
◇ K 7 5

WEST
♠ J 10 9 7
♡ 9 8 3 2
◇ Q 9 6 4
♣ J

EAST
♠ 8 5 3
♡ 6 5
◇ J 10 8 2

SOUTH
♠ A K 4
♡ A K 7
◇ A 3
♣ A K 9 7 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
3 NT	Pass	6 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠

The bidding was brief and to the point (no pun intended). North added his eight high-card points to the minimum of 25 announced by South, and promptly contracted for the small slam.

When the dummy came into view, South perceived that he had 11 top tricks: three spades, four hearts, two diamonds, and two clubs. The twelfth trick, if it were forthcoming, had to be made in the club suit. The prospects appeared bright, since when five of a suit are outstanding, they figure to be divided 3-2 over two thirds of the time.

It was thus South's intention to play the ace and king of clubs, after which he would concede a club trick to the opposition. His remaining clubs would now be high.

After winning the opening lead with the spade king, South laid down the ace of clubs — and noted the fall of West's jack. While it may have been that the jack was a part of the doubleton Q-J or J-10 (or even Q-J-10), declarer appreciated that it could be a singleton. And if he now played the club king, he would go down if the jack were a singleton, since East, in this case, would now have two club winners.

So South changed horses in midstream. At trick three he led a low club, West discarding a heart, with dummy's eight being played. East won this trick with his 10-spot, after which he returned a spade, dummy's queen taking the trick.

The board's remaining club was then led, and East's Q-4 was trapped by declarer's K-9. The slam was thus made without relying on the normal 3-2 division of the five outstanding clubs.

Union Renews Attempt To Organize at Ottawa

By PAUL DUNN

OTTAWA (CP) — The latest union bid to organize employees of the Commons and Senate has failed but the government faces renewed efforts.

The 120,000-member Public Service Alliance of Canada says Commons Speaker Lucien Lamoureux has advised Alliance President Claude Edwards that it is not within the Speaker's "authority to initiate discussions which would make collective bargaining available to the employees of the Senate and the House of Commons." It is up to the government to take action, he says, and it may require approval by Parliament.

The alliance began seeking the right to organize the 1,200 Commons workers and 200 Senate staff about three years ago.

This approach was to former prime minister Lester Pearson and to a joint parliamentary committee pondering proposed legislation setting out bargaining rights for some 200,000 federal employees.

STATUS UNCHANGED

The 200,000 won the right to bargain in early 1967 but the status of parliamentary staff remains unchanged.

The alliance was referred to Speaker Lamoureux who is the official employer of Commons staff.

The alliance recently reported receipt of a letter from the Speaker in which he is quoted as saying: "The situation remains that Parliament itself has decided to exempt its employees from the operation of the Public Service Staff Relations Act."

That is the act that granted federal employees bargaining rights—including the right to strike for most who chose it as their final method of dispute settlement. Most chose binding arbitration.

Mr. Lamoureux, the alliance says, reported he discussed the question with the cabinet committee on internal economy and it "expressed the view that the present situation should not be changed without a specific amendment to the relevant statute."

Undeterred, the alliance now has written Prime Minister Trudeau and Government House Leader Donald C. Macdonald seeking anew the right to organize and bargain for Hill employees.

Their latest letter urges action at the next session of Parliament, scheduled to begin Wednesday, Oct. 22.

NO CONCERN

But the offices of Mr. Trudeau, Mr. Macdonald and that of Treasury Board President C. M. Drury, who reports to Parliament on the staff relations act, indicate little or no concern on the issue.

"We're just not seized of the problem at this time," one spokesman said.

Trevor Gaugh, alliance national executive vice-president, said in an interview his union has been "bounced around on this I don't know how many times."

He hoped this time the alliance would gain "a final decision on the matter."

Some Hill employees are known to have inquired about gaining union status and the alliance is the biggest union in the federal public service.

Yet one senior Hill official, while seeing value in union organization from an efficiency standpoint, says parliamentary employees now receive wages and benefits superior to those paid at equivalent levels in the public srvice.

There is no comparison wage data available since Hill employees don't follow the public service classification structure. However, Hill employees receive more statutory holidays and four weeks vacation in comparison with three in the public service.

There certainly remains the possibility that if the alliance is given a free hand to organize, a majority of employees would vote against certification. Other unions would likely also show interest in any organizing moves, competing with the alliance.

MONTREAL POLICE DISARM BOMB

MONTREAL (CP)—Police Thursday defused a stick of dynamite attached to a detonator found at the rear of a building housing Quebec government offices in the city's downtown area.

The device was discovered against a basement window by a passerby.

Immigration Decreases

LONDON (CP) — Migration from Britain to Canada dropped sharply in 1968 compared with 1967, but Britons still formed the largest single group of migrants going to Canada.

Figures released this week by the Commonwealth Migration Council said the total number of people migrating to Canada from all countries was 183,974 in 1968, a drop of 38,902 or 18 per cent from the preceding year.

Sea Finds Eclipse Moon

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Soviet scientists just back from 55 days at sea with a United States ocean-study expedition said Thursday what the group found is "more important to man than the samples from the moon."

"If I were a capitalist, I would not hesitate to put my last shirt on the ocean," said Dr. Alexander Lisitzin, a noted marine geologist from Moscow's Academy of Sciences.

He and Dr. Valery Krashennikev plan to return to Moscow next week with four large boxes of ocean samples.

Concentrated drilling between Honolulu and Guam produced rocks and sedimentary cores showing tiny micro-organisms in "a perfect state of preservation," Krashennikev said. The submicroscopic animals might provide a history of the processes involved in creation of Earth.

Since rock samples brought back from the moon by the U.S. astronauts showed that planet apparently devoid of life, the Soviet scientists said "this event must be of more importance to man than the samples from tht moon."

Lizitzin told reporters "the commercial ocean can offer to humanity things we cannot even imagine."

"The simple idea of the ocean as a supply of fish is at an end, and a new vista is being opened that can offer man more in more varied ways. The ocean is like a hidden treasure . . ."

City May Pay Centre Cost

Victoria city finance committee will recommend city council pay part of the organizing cost of an attendance centre attached to the juvenile detention home and family court.

The attendance centre would be used by youngsters who, having run afoul of the law, can only at present be sentenced to Brannen Lake.

Only Ald. Tom Christie was opposed to the city sharing in the attendance centre costs, at Thursday's committee meetings.

"Who dreams up these things?" he asked. "We have so many angencies now, they're all over hell's half acre, the kids don't know whether they're on foot or horseback.

"We have social workers, social agencies, Cool-Aid and half a dozen other things. They're springing up all over the place."

Ald. Lily Wilson said the attendance centre would be used by youngsters who would be permitted to live at home after sentencing, but would be forced to attend guidance and work sessions at the proposed centre.

Missile Ace Faces China

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government has named its No. 2 stragetic missiles officer to command its Far Eastern forces facing China.

The appointment of Col.-Gen Vladimir Tolubko, 55, formet first deputy commander of the Soviet strategic missile forces, reflected the growing Kremlin concern over the clashes this year along the Soviet-Chinese border.

The choice of a strategic missiles expert could be an implied warning to Mao Tse-tung that further fighting might not be limited to brief clashes with small-scale weapons.

WHERE DOES YOUR CANDIDATE STAND ON EDUCATION?

Despite its many good features, our school system can and should be improved. Candidates of all parties in all ridings in British Columbia are invited by the B.C. Teachers' Federation to support this policy for BETTER EDUCATION IN B.C.

Every candidate is being sent this ad plus a brochure which fully explains the teachers' policy.* Each candidate will also receive a symbol. The symbol is an apple. A symbol of knowledge. Candidates who support the policy will use the apple symbol in their own messages. Candidates unwilling to use the symbol must be apathetic, undecided or against the policy. If you want better education in B.C., support the candidate who displays the apple in his ads.

BETTER EDUCATION IN B.C.

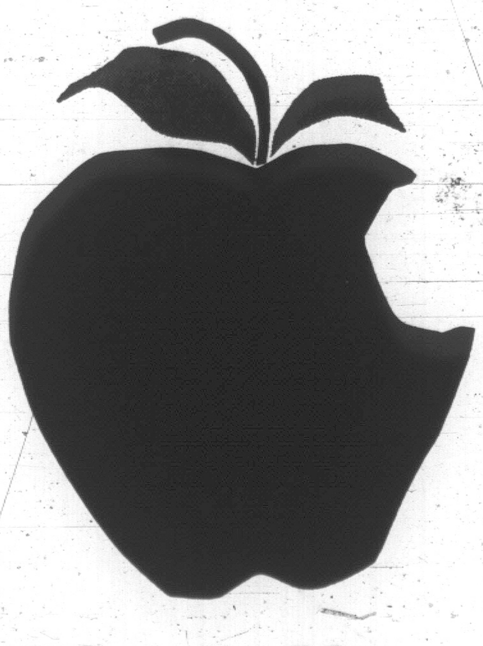
Education is the most challenging issue in this election. On it depends the very quality of our lives, now and in the future.

The teachers of British Columbia are concerned.

- Concerned about the inequities created by the formula for financing education, under which many school districts cannot operate successfully.
- Concerned that not all of your tax dollars for education are being invested wisely or productively.
- Concerned that too many of your children are not being allowed to develop to their full potential.

We must have reforms, and we need them NOW! The finance formula must be revised to make those reforms possible. Enough money must be invested in education to:

1. Put the excitement and sense of adventure back into the learning process by developing new teaching methods and expanding research.
2. Reduce class sizes so that children can learn as individuals.
3. Provide proper accommodation for modern teaching and learning techniques.
4. Provide special attention for children who have learning problems.
5. Make public school kindergartens available in all school districts.
6. Provide each school with a varied supply of learning materials and equipment.
7. Provide gymnasiums, playing fields, and facilities for the fine arts so that students may develop their bodies and their powers of imagination and creativity, as well as their intellects. Schools should be designed and staffed so that they can be used by the whole community.
8. Remove the bottleneck in higher education caused by lack of space and restrictive entrance requirements.



Will your Candidate use this symbol in his ads?

* If you, too, would like a brochure explaining this policy, write the B.C. Teachers' Federation at 2235 Burrard Street, Vancouver.

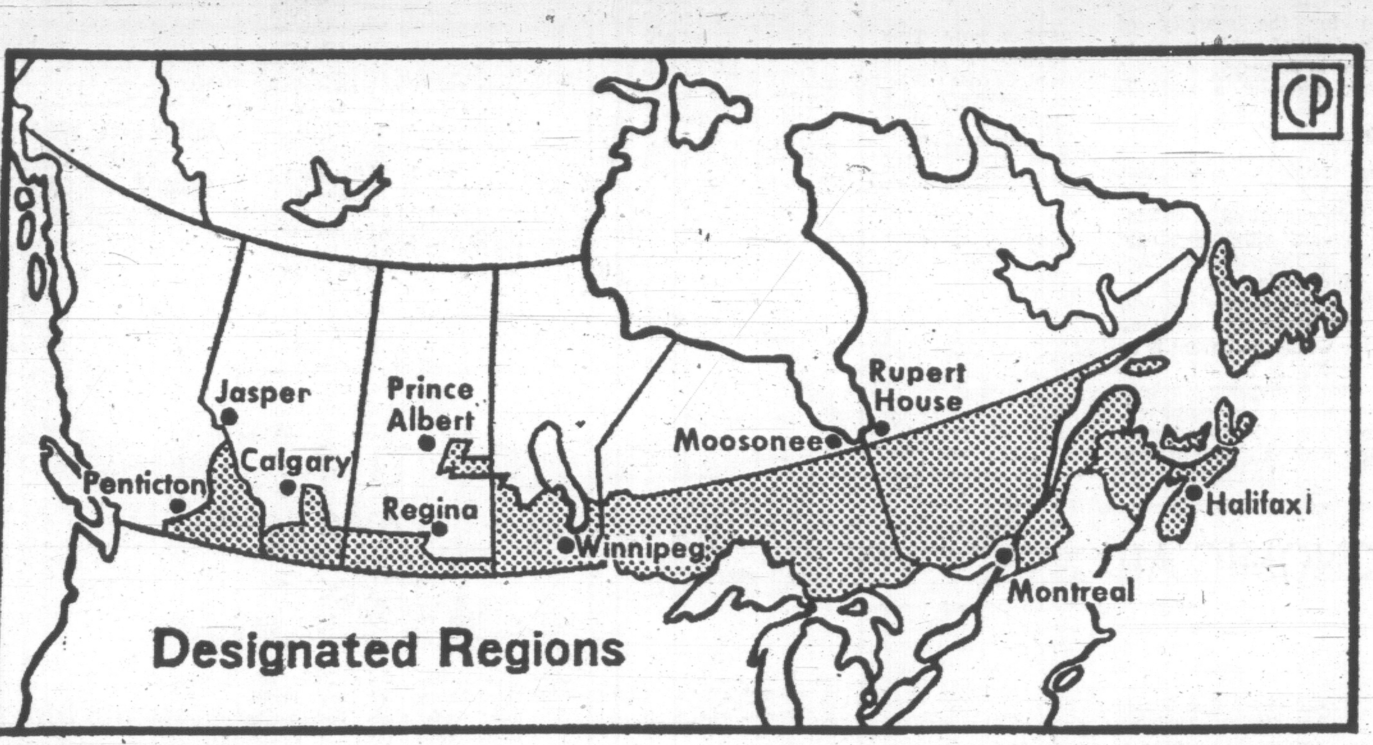
Industry, Cities Facing Tough Water Standards



SPECIAL ATTENTION to the tune of millions can go to developing industry locating in shaded areas of map designated by federal Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand. Under program, incentives for new plants can go as high as $12,000,000, the minister announced Thursday.

Waste Dumping Affected

By JOHN MIKA

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark today released the provincial government's first comprehensive code of minimum water quality standards to protect British Columbia citizens.

In essence, it sets out the degree of "purity" that must be achieved — either by remedial treatment or preventive pollution control — for various water uses such as drinking, swimming and waste dumping.

The standards were to have been issued 11 months ago but Loffmark held them up during an intra-departmental battle over jurisdiction between his pollution control organization under Water Resources Minister Ray Williston.

DELAY NECESSARY

At the time, he said the delay was necessary to give his 25 provincial medical health officers time to evaluate all water standards set by other areas and devise the best system for B.C. because the MHOs would have to enforce the new regulations.

There was no immediate indication of how many communities and industries will have to take early action to bring themselves within the code by improving drinking water quality or reducing pollution through dumping wastes into fresh or salt water courses.

But the standards are tougher than those issued by the Pollution Control Board three years ago which allowed the Greater Victoria sanitary sewerage study to propose dumping of raw sewage through long outfalls into local salt water.

FOUR SETS OF RULES

The code divides water uses into four classes and provides a separate set of standards that must be met in each class across the province. But it would permit exceptions in some cases.

In a press release accompanying the code, Loffmark emphasized that those areas which currently have better water quality than demanded by the minimum standards will not be allowed to relax their efforts.

Those that have worse quality than required will have to make improvements at least to the minimum levels.

"The purpose of the new standards is to secure and maintain such water quality levels in the province, both for drinking waters and surface waters, as will give assured

FRANCE DROPS FRANC VALUE

PARIS — The French government today devalued the franc by 11.1 per cent.

The move was decided at an emergency cabinet meeting called by President Georges Pompidou, who told his ministers "the devaluation constitutes only a base of departure for any financial recovery".

The devaluation has come less than two months after the election of Pompidou as president, succeeding General Charles de Gaulle, who had firmly refused to take the step.

The new gold equivalent of the French franc was set at 0.160 grams of fine gold, down from 0.180. This was the first devaluation since 1958.

The devaluation, which brings the value of the franc down to around 18 Canadian cents, compared with the previous rate of about 21.7 Canadian cents, is expected to place further pressure on West Germany to revalue the mark upwards.

Russians Likely Netting Salmon Says Davis

By PAT DUFOUR

Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said today there is a possibility that the large Russian fleet off Vancouver Island is taking a "considerable amount" of salmon.

Contacted in Vancouver, the minister said he has ordered more intensive studies of aerial pictures taken of the fleet Wednesday.

"We saw large piles of fish, separated in heaps, aboard the Russian vessels. My visual impression was that the largest piles were a brownish grey and were probably hake and dogfish.

"However, we saw considerable piles of silvery fish which could have been either salmon or black Alaska cod."

The minister said he has ordered more intensive studies of the pictures and has also asked for reruns in color in a bid for more positive identification.

He said his suspicions are bolstered by American officials who have managed to board some vessels "to talk to the captains, not to search the catches.

"Some captains have admitted having as many as 50 salmon in a drag, others have said about 10. At the top figures of 50, this amounts to quite a few salmon when you talk in terms of a 1,000 drags."

Russian Secrets Probed

Wednesday's aerials were taken from a Canadian armed forces Argus, based at Comox. Fisheries officials are working closely with armed forces personnal in an effort to probe the secret of the catches aboard the Russian draggers.

Davis said he has also asked for commercial pictures, taken at the same time, to be studied by his department.

He said that he saw "about 36 or 37 large vessels with a few scattered in the distance."

Davis added that most of them were "relatively modern," unlike the two battered side-draggers, the Kouzachin and Gherman Titov, which were intercepted by the fisheries patrol vessel Howay inside the 12-mile fishing boundary.

Wednesday's pictures were the latest in a series ordered by the minister.

"We took some last Friday, and earlier, we used a helicopter. But, to date, we have no positive identification."

Davis said the penalties for foreign vessels found fishing inside the 12-mile limit were no deterrant.

"In my view the penalties are inadequate. That's why we are changing" the Canadian Coastal Fisheries Protection Act.

Patrol Vessels Too Slow

Foreign skippers now found guilty of illegal fishing can be fined up to $5,000 and can have both ship and catch confiscated.

Canadian trollers have complained that the fisheries patrol vessels are too slow to catch the large Russian ships should the chase involve any distance.

The newest fisheries vessel Tanu is capable of 15 knots, the same speed as most of the foreign ships.

Questioned on this, Davis said that Tanu is the most modern fisheries craft in Canada and is equipped for other duties, including researfh, as well as interception.

He added that, in an emergency, surface vessels of the armed forces would be used as part of an over-all watch kept by the maritime command Pacific and the Rescue Co-ordination Centre in Vancouver.

"But," Davis said, "we don't have enough destroyer-escorts to completely patrol the whole area involved."

There are seven based at Esquimalt.

Only Small Area of B.C. Selected for Economic Aid

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has swept through large sections of Canada, from the Atlantic provinces to the British Columbia interior, in its selection of areas eligible for assistance to encourage industrial expansion.

Under a new program approved during the last session of Parliament, federal incentives for new plants in the designated areas can go as high as $12,000,000.

There is a formula providing up to 25 per cent of capital costs, plus up to $5,000 for each job created.

In the case of expanding or modernizing existing plants, the incentive is limited to 20 per cent of capital cost, with a $6,000,000 ceiling.

Announcing the new regions Thursday night, Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand said the plan was designed to promote economic growth in the widest area possible embracing all three Maritime provinces and the entire island of Newfoundland. Labrador is excluded.

The area then sweeps on through a large part of Quebec, along the St. Lawrence North Shore, the Gaspe, into Quebec City, through Trois-Rivieres and Sherbrooke, north to Rouyn-Noranda and Chibougamau.

Montreal and Ottawa are not included in the designated region which sweeps into Northern Ontario, including North Bay, Sudbury, Kapuskasing, the Lakehead, Kenora and Red Lake.

In Manitoba, the whole southern part of the province is included from a line near the centres of Lake Winnipeg and Winnipegosis.

The regions in Saskatchewan have been designated: a section in the northeast from the Manitoba border to such communities as Humboldt, Melfort and Tisdale; a band across the south of the province that includes Estevan, Weyburn, Moose Jaw and Swift Current.

The southern part of Alberta, including Medicine Hat and Lethbridge has also been designated, as has the eastern portion that juts north to Drumheller.

In British Columbia, a triangle in the southeast corner, including the Kootenays, Cranbrook, Golden, Revelstoke, Nelson, Trail and Grand Forks, has been selected.

Mr. Marchand's announcement said the regions — "those where there is a good chance that industrial incentives will help to make employment opportunities more adequate" — will be reviewed in 1972.

The new regions replace the substantially smaller areas that qualified for special economic assistance under the Area Development Agency.

ENDS EXISTENCE

The agency, providing maximum grants of $5,000,000 for industries, ceases to exist in January. Until then, both programs will function together.

Reds Call Bonn Main Peace Enemy

BUCHAREST (CP) — East Germany's ruling Communist party claimed today that West Germany is the principal enemy of peace in Europe.

In a speech to the Romanian Communist party congress, East German party secretary Kurt Tiedke also launched an attack against the Bonn government's East Europe policy, which he said pretends to seek understanding with Communist countries but in reality is aimed at subverting communism.

Tiedke was one of the foreign delegates who spoke at this morning's session of the Romanian party congress, most of which was taken up with domestic issues. His attack on West Germany could be construed as an insult to Romania, which has diplomatic relations with both East and West Germany.

Tiedke stuck to the Soviet line that "Western imperialism" is trying to destroy communism, but his stress was on the danger from West Germany. That country is getting more aggressive in its offensive and also more refined, he said.

ZOND STREAKS TO MOON DATE

MOSCOW (AP)—Less than a month after the United States manned lunar landing, the Soviet Union today launched an unmanned spaceship to the moon.

Zond VII, the new craft, was hurled into a parking orbit around eadth by "a powerful Soviet carrier rocket," then launched toward the moon, Tass said.

Moscow has said the unmanned Zond series are part of Soviet efforts, now lagging behind the United States, to send a man to the moon.

The official Soviet news agency said Zond VII would study "the moon and near-lunar space," but Tass did not indicate if it would attempt a soft landing.

Bennett Will Follow Any Wage Guidelines

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett Thursday supported the federal Prices and Wages Commission's proposal for voluntary wage and price controls, but said Ottawa should set national guidelines.

"They don't have to make it compulsory, but simply say how much increases should be limited to in a given year," said the premier, here to launch the Lower Mainland end of his campaign for the Aug. 27 provincial election.

"You don't need to freeze prices and wages, just control them. The government should show leadership by setting guidelines. Public opinion will take care of it."

Asked who he would suggest as the first volunteer to follow such guidelines, Bennett said: "The world follows men. What people want is leadership."

"We can't give it in this field because we have no jurisdiction as a provincial government, but we will be the first to volunteer and we will co-operate fully."

The premier, who will speak tonight at a Social Credit rally in New Westminster, also commented on statements that a general economic slow-down is coming.

"It is in this period that the Social Credit government's policies will show up to the best advantage. We have been criticized for financing on a surplus basis, but we are now the only government in this position."

Trudeau Has B.C. Date With What's-Her-Name

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau had a tet-a-tete with a redhead within two hours of arriving in Vancouver Thursday.

He took her for a ride on the Grouse Mountain skyride and for dinner at a luxury restaurant atop the mountain.

Mr. Trudeau identified his date later as "Miss Patterson."

However, the stunning redhead turned out to be Margaret Sinclair, 21, daughter of former federal fisheries minister James Sinclair.

Miss Sinclair said she had met the 49-year-old Liberal leader in Tahiti. She said she and the prime minister were "just friends" and that it was the first time they had dined together.

Trudeau was to fly to Abbotsford this afternoon to officially open the three-day air show at the community 50 miles east of Vancouver.

Later tonight, he'll table-hop at a $100-a-plate Liberal fund-raising dinner.

A 20-minute speech he is scheduled to make is described by officials with the prime minister as "significant," but no details have been released.

Meanwhile, Liberal Leader Pat McGeer returned to Vancouver after two weeks on the campaign trail in the B.C. Interior, and claimed his party will win more than the 20 seats he predicted earlier.

He said his tour showed that Liberal organizations in ridings virtually written off two weeks ago are now fighting to win.

"We are going to come back and hit very hard at these swing ridings," he said. "These seats are now so much in the fight I think we are going to win them."

He named Okanagan North, held by minister without portfolio Pat Jordan in the last House, and Shuswap, held by Social Credit's Willis Jefcoat, as two such ridings.

TRUDEAU AND DATE, Margaret Sinclair, daughter of former cabinet minister James Sinclair, step from Grouse Mountain Skylift gondola in North Vancouver Thursday night, shortly after the prime minister arrived for three-day coast visit. Trudeau reportedly was concerned he might be refused admission to mountaintop restaurant because he was wearing no tie. However, he was admitted without question.

Leaders Give Policy

Hospitals

PENTICTON (CP) — Progressive Conservative leader John de Wolf has called for politics to be removed from education, hospital planning and regional development.

He told a news conference here that there is uncertainty in the Okanagan over hospital planning. "The main problem is not the jealousy that is supposed to exist between Penticton, Vernon and Kelowna. It is the lack of provincial leadership."

"There should be intensive consultation with local authorities to devise the best plan. But local politics should be avoided and the final decisions made by Victoria."

Kelowna should be designated one of the six B.C. regional administration centres and Vernon should be the site of the four-year university, he said.

Industry

TERRACE (CP) — NDP leader Tom Berger said here Thursday that the main objective of an NDP government would be to increase the processing of raw materials in the province.

Outlining the first part of an NDP policy to develop secondary industry, Mr. Berger said he would ban the export of logs as long as B.C. mills and millworkers were not working to full capacity.

"We have had unemployment and under-employment because we have not developed a program for processing here. Last winter the provincial government was allowing the export of unmanufactured logs to Japan at a time when many B.C. sawmills were shut down because of a shortage of logs."

Mixed trend with little change was the pattern today on both the Toronto and New York stock exchanges. Trading was moderate. OSF Industries and Seaway were both delayed at the opening but will resume trading Monday. Seaway closed Thursday at 9½, up 1⅛, and OSF closed at 21¼, up ¼. OSF said it intends to make a share-exchange offer to all Seaway shareholders on the basis of one common OSF share and one 10-year warrant for every two common Seaway shares.

AT TORONTO in industrials, Ainco jumped 2⅝ to 14¼, Electrohome 2 to 29 and Falconbridge 1½ to 129½. Levy fell 2 to 28, Distillers Seagrams 1 to 48¾ and Home A 1 to 64½.

Closing prices included Natomas, off 1⅝ at 81; Metromedia, up 1¼ at 20¼; and Pan American Sulphur, up ½ at 15⅝.

AT MONTREAL as all sectors but banks firmed, the market marked up a modest gain in light afternoon trading today. Industrials rose highest.

In banks, Canadienne Nationale rose ⅛ to 11¼ and Toronto-Dominion ¼ to 19 as ⅛-point losses chipped Royal to 19⅜, Montreal to 14 and Nova Scotia to 22. Commerce was unchanged at 19⅛.

Among industrials, Radio Engineering gained 1½ to 26½, Falconbridge 1 point to 129, Canadian Hydrocarbons ⅜ to 18 and Hunter Douglas ½ to 12½.

Freiman lost 2 to 5½, MacKinnon Structural Steel ¾ to 16½, Labatt ¾ to 25¼ and Distillers-Seagrams ½ to 49.

Canadian oils showed small gains although Pacific Pete eased slightly. Canadian Pacific gave up Thursday's two-point gain at 178 and Inco lost one point at 88½.

Banks were firmer and golds showed little change.

AT VANCOUVER light trading and a soft market were the rule in morning trading today.

About 950,000 shares were traded to 11 a.m.

Oils and industrials were down.

In the mines, only Adanac, Magnum and Utica showed gains, each up by 10 cents. Heaviest loser was Brenda Mines, down 50 cents to $10.50. Buttle was down .30 to $5 and Silver Arrow dropped .20 to $3.

MONTREAL (CP) — The Bank of Montreal announced this week the appointment of Hartland M. MacDougall as senior vice-president of its Ontario division in Toronto and Robert J. Kayser as senior vice-president of its Alberta division in Calgary.

MacDougall, who served as senior vice-president of the Alberta division since March, 1968, succeeds Edward A. Royce, recently named chairman of the Ontario Securities Commission.

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybeans futures prices advanced on the Board of Trade today.

Most gains were fractional in moderate to brisk trading.

Corn suffered only brief setback in mid-morning when a private report forecast production at levels higher than expected. Prices quickly bounced back, however, and were fractionally higher near the close.

The forecast estimated corn production at about 4,400,000,000 bushels as against a government projection of 4,280,000,000 issued last month.

Wheat Price Co-operation Aussie Aim

SASKATOON (CP) — Australia and Canada should work together to combat wheat price-cutting by France and other members of the European Common Market, John Graves, assistant Australian government trade commissioner for western Canada, said this week.

Graves was here as part of a follow-up tour of the west after an Australian trade display last June in Vancouver.

"What we're worried about is that the big wheat producers are being beaten in some markets by Europeans who are so heavily subsidized by the government," he said.

"And if Britain joins the Common Market, we might both be cut out from her wheat purchase. Australia would like to work with Canada in this area."

Graves said he could not predict what the Australian government's next action would be in the face of a good wheat crop in that country.

"In our office in Vancouver, wheat is not something we concentrate on, because Canada is not a likely market for it. Our emphasis is on machinery, clothing, textiles and foodstuffs."

He said last year Canada sold twice as much to Australia as it had imported and that the Australian government was hoping to narrow the gap this year.

Panarctic Abandons Exploratory Well

CALGARY (CP) — Panarctic Oils Ltd. has abandoned its Sandy Point exploratory well on northwest Melville Island, the company has announced.

The well was drilled to 6,895 feet but did not encounter any encouraging signs of oil or gas.

It was the first well completed by the company, a consortium formed in 1967 by 20 private companies and the federal government to search for petroleum in the Arctic.

Repair work is continuing at another well on the northwest section of the island which went out of control July 12 and spewed salt water and natural gas for 17 days.

Aleut Finds Questioned By Experts

AMCHITKA ISLAND, Alaska (AP) — California archeologist's announcement he has unearthed remnants on this Aleutian island of a culture perhaps 9,000 years old has been met with skepticism from others in the field.

It appeared today that only extensive laboratory testing will determine the age of the artifacts and settle the dispute.

Roger Desautels of Archeological Research Inc. of Goleta, Calif., reported Wednesday his crew has found animal remains, sea shells, animal bones and other material up to 9,000 years old and "definitely pre-Aleut culture."

Aleuts are natives of this island chain, loosely related to Eskimos on the Alaskan mainland. The finds indicate a "whole culture not associated with the Alaska mainland," Desautels said.

He said the artifacts, found at a depth of six to 10 feet, appeared to be associated with a culture that existed thousands of years ago on the northern Japanese islands.

But while Dr. Richard Daugherty, Washington State University anthropologist, said the find could lend weight to theories of oriental migration across a once-solid mass of glacial ice between Siberia and North America, a third archeologist expressed doubt whether Desautels' find is 9,000 years old.

Dr. William Laughlin, who said he explored the same area only a year ago and found no artifacts older than 3,000 years, said in Madison, Wis., Thursday he "doubts very much" the articles are 9,000 years old.

"I don't think there would be any shells or bones dating back 9,000 years," said Laughlin, who added only tests would show the age of the artifacts.

Desautels said here Wednesday he and his crew, under contract with the Atomic Energy Commission, are hurrying to finish work on half a dozen sites near the location of an underground nuclear test explosion scheduled for early October by the AEC.

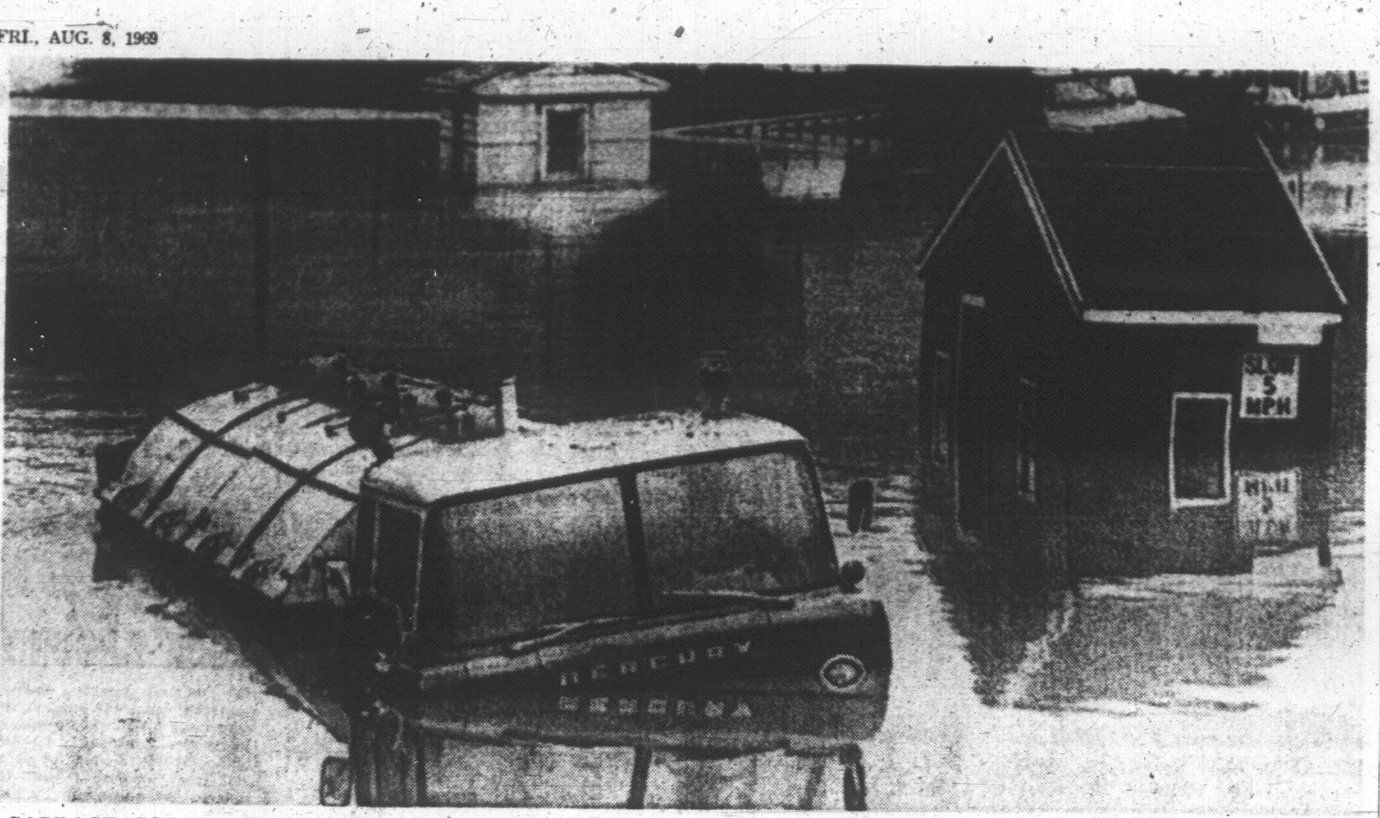
Widow Moves For Million

PORT CHICAGO, Calif. (AP) — An 80-year-old widow who has fought unsuccessfully to remain in this condemned town bitterly accepted more than $1,000,000 in cheques Thursday and prepared to move.

Eunice Van Winkle once owned most of the property in this town of 3,350 population, including a lumber company, a hardware store, theatre and rental units.

The navy condemned the entire town last year to create a two-mile buffer zone around the Concord naval weapons station here for fear of a recurrence of a Second World War explosion which killed 322 persons and caused $40,000,000 in damages.

About 70 per cent of defence department munitions en route to Vietnam pass through Port Chicago.



GARBAGE GOT ITS OWN BACK on these Edmonton trucks when debris blocked storm drains in parking areas just as city was hit by heavy deluge. Water backed up to a depth of 20 feet in spots, and only a dozen of the 60 garbage trucks were able to move. (CP Wirephoto.)

His Highland Laments Funniest Case in Court

VANCOUVER (CP) — The judge said it was one of the funniest cases he's ever tried.

The courtroom spectators clapped when it was over.

And the accused, clad in a kilt and carrying exhibit A — a set of bagpipes — defended himself. He won the case, after explaining that "I wouldn't want to spend a considerable amount of money on a lawyer."

The defendant was Alan Hassan, Scottish-born former "hot line" radio broadcaster, known locally as "the hot Scot." He was charged with disturbing the peace by playing his pipes from the 16th floor balcony of an apartment building.

"It was one of the funniest cases I've had yet," chuckled provincial court Judge David Moffett Thursday in dismissing the charge after a full day of testimony.

"It was a dream case and I think everybody enjoyed themselves, including the defendant."

The judge heard testimony that Hassan started playing his bagpipes daily after being given his eviction notice by the apartment building in which he was living.

He coupled the Highland laments, court was told, with a sign that gave a countdown with the number of days left until he had to vacate the building on Aug. 30.

"It may be funny now but the noise wan't funny then," sighed building superintendent Raoul Blackburn.

Defected to West

BEIRUT (AP) — Frantisek Angust, a third secretary, has disappeared from the Czechoslovak Embassy. Police sources said Wedensday, "We believe he has defected to the West." The embassy told police August, his wife and two sons were found to have deserted their apartment.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A significant decrease in tar content in 51 brands of cigarettes is reported during the last five months, with four other brands recording increases.

The Federal Trade Commission also told the Senate commerce committee that 25 brands showed decreases in nicotine content, 19 showed increases.

The report was based on testing of 118 brands and comparison with statistics announced Feb. 27.

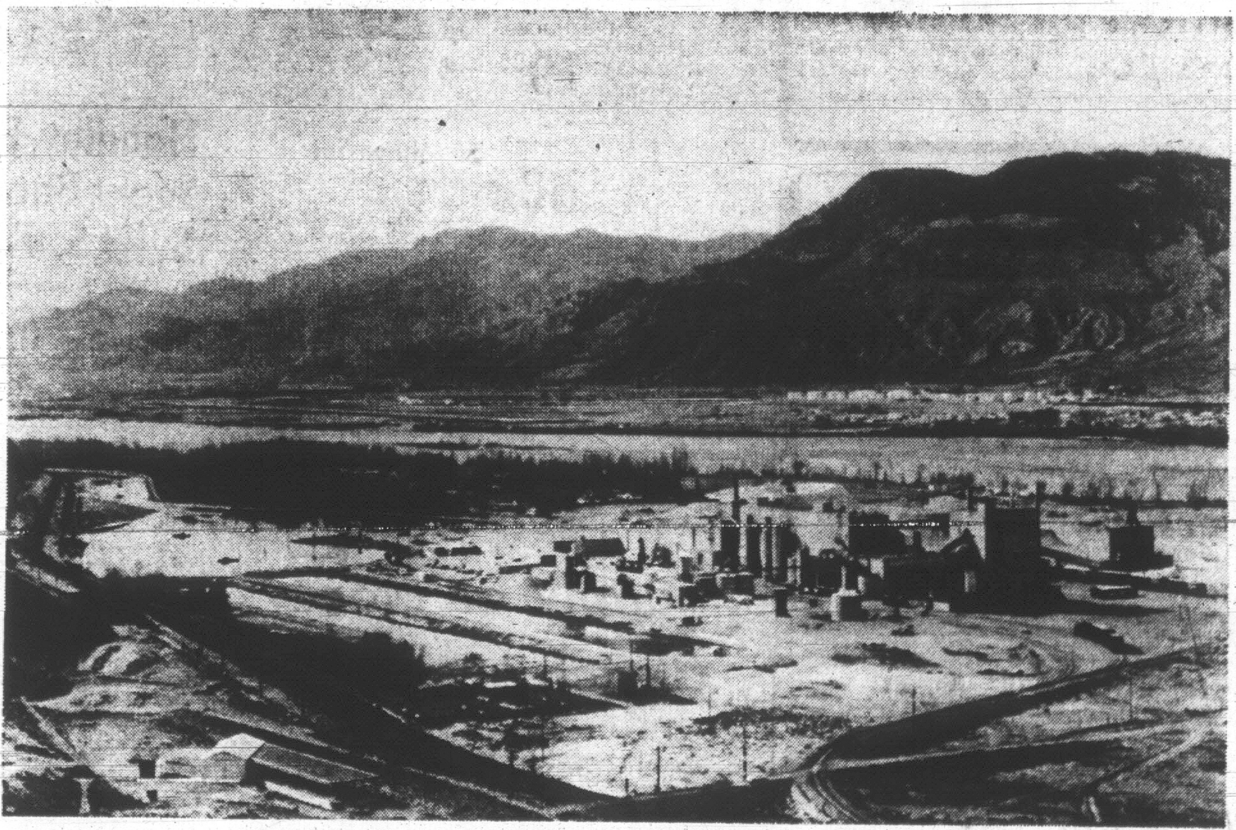
PULP MILL EFFLUENT CONTROL



Pollution Control at Work.

The standards of effluent control set for recently constructed pulp mills under permit in British Columbia are recognized as containing among the highest requirements to be found anywhere. The objectives of these standards are to protect public health, recreational facilities, fisheries and wildlife.
Because these standards are unprecedented in their requirements, they have challenged the ability of manufacturers and engineers to design, construct and maintain unexcelled waste-control facilities. Some efforts have been more successful than others, but it is anticipated that at an early date every pulp mill under permit in British Columbia will meet the high effluent control standards on an uninterrupted basis.
The wealth of information obtained by continuous testing of various waste-control facilities in the past three years is proving to be a valuable asset in making precise assessments of facilities to be installed in future mills and in existing mills which are now being required to update their controls.
In recognition of their responsibilty to the people of this province, management and personnel at pulp mills throughout British Columbia are cooperating in their efforts to meet the Pollution Control Branch's stringent regulations governing effluent control, especially in cases where surveillance has shown a pulp mill's effluent treatment to be insufficient and when the Pollution Control Branch has required immediate remedial action.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, AUGUST 8, 1969 —PAGE 19

The curious eye Russian trawlers being held at Ogden Point pending trial of their captains.

The Tourists Are Coming to the Russians

By PAT DUFOUR

While their skippers awaited a second appearance in provincial court, the crews of Soviet trawlers Gherman Titov and Kouzachin seemed delighted Thursday night at having become Victoria's number one tourist attraction.

The trawler captains, Boris Rolenko and John Morozov, were to appear this afternoon before Judge William Ostler on charges of illegally fishing within Canada's 12-mile limit.

In the three days the Soviet vessels have been in Victoria, their crews have made a dint in the language barrier. When they docked none of them spoke English.

Thursday evening, the duty officer on Gherman Titov was all smiles as he said "Good afternoon" to his visitors. One of the visitors brought him up to date. From then on it was "Good evening."

●

A self-appointed, volunteer "diplomatic corps," mostly new Canadians from Yugoslavia and other parts of Europe, acted as interpreters in the well-worn wardroom.

Ambassador-in-chief appeared to be a bald-headed seaman, sporting one gold earring, who said he was Greek and had served two years in the fisheries patrol vessel Howay as second engineer.

With a flourish he introduced newcomers to the chief officer, who sat smiling, at a table centred with a large enamel pot and a plate of thickly sliced bread.

●

The pot contained what the interpreters described as compote, a drink made from dried fruit cooked in water aboard the ship.

Young women took pictures, and posed for others with their hosts'. Like sailors everywhere, the Russians willingly obliged. They also asked for addresses — to get prints.

While the chief officer and his main ambassador served the compote in thick enamel mugs, others of the crew calmly went on with a game of chess, unperturbed by the stream of visitors jostling their elbows.

One of them asked when the Russians would be leaving.

Bringing out a well-thumbed Russian-English dictionary from a drawer, pungent with the garlic cloves that accompany most of the Russians' meals, the engineer said Friday — perhaps.

In one corner, another of the officers brought out boxes of matches which he handed out as the stream of visitors wended through the wardroom.

In another corner, one of the local interpreters pressed people to stay "and see a Russian movie" while another, gesticulating wildly, tried to rewind a reel of film.

●

After winding madly for 15 minutes, he still wasn't ready and a helper discovered the film was not Russian but Canadian.

Guests, left to tour the rest of the ship. Finally, they disembarked their last glimpse being the chief officer, at the gangway, holding a hydrangea presented him by one of the women.

Walking up the dock they passed a Russian seaman, returning from shore leave toting paper bags jammed with purchases.

Pool Construction To Start in 1970

Aldermen Vote 5-3 In Favor

Construction of Victoria's replacement for the Crystal Garden is expected to start early in 1970.

The $1.6 million swimming complex to be built in Central Park was approved Thursday afternoon by a 5-3 vote at a special council meeting.

But two of the aldermen voting in favor, Ian Stewart and Lily Wilson, said they wanted a firm promise that the parkland taken up would be replaced at some future time.

"Whatever we take we must replace," said Stewart. "Not necessarily in this same area, but in some other part of the city where high-rise apartment dwellers are desperately short of green space."

NEED GREEN SPACE

Wilson's approval of the project followed a similar line.

"We must have green spaces," she said. "I shall support this proposal but I must have the assurance of replacement of the parkland."

Stewart said he failed to see the argument of the critics contending the small soccer pitch to be eliminated by the pool provided a better recreation facility than the proposed pool would.

Ald. Cecil Parrott told council suggestions that money could be sent to save the Crystal were out of place.

"The Crystal can't be saved," he said. "We could put on a new roof, re-plumb and re-wire the building but we would still finish up with an old pool with a new face. The actual pool in the Crystal is sinking in the mud and there isn't anything anyone can do about that."

FAVOR PROJECT

Voting in favor of the project were aldermen Stewart, Parrott, Wilson, Frampton and Olafson. Mayor Hugh Stephen did not vote but is known to support the pool replacement proposal.

Voting against were aldermen Clyde Savage, Tom Christie and Robert Baird.

All three launched a strong rear-guard action to try and force delay and a new location.

Savage said that while the John Di Castri design was "wonderful" the pool as proposed would not begin to serve the needs of the community.

He said he would also like to see some estimate of operating costs before supporting the project.

He was told that operating costs would be less than the costs of the Crystal.

Funds for construction of the pool will come mainly from the T. S. McPherson Estate which, together with interest, now stands at $1.4 million. The balance will come from the tax sale land fund.

$1M WASTED?

Black 'Ignored' Link-Up Pleas

Silent and unco-operative, the provincial government and its local MLAs watched while the City of Victoria built a "million-dollar white elephant."

This was the charge today from Alderman Ian Stewart, Liberal candidate in Victoria in the Aug. 27 provincial election, elaborating on city efforts to obtain provincial co-operation in a Pat Bay Highway link-up with the six-lane Rose Street extension built by the city.

At one point Highways Minister Wesley Black was "begged" to buy land near the Town and Country shopping centre to provide a connection with the $1 million Rose Street extension in keeping with an earlier city-province "technical" agreement on the need for such a link-up, Stewart said.

PARTISAN REACTION

Mayor Hugh Stephen sought help on behalf of the city, from Trade and Industry Minister Waldo Skillings, a Victoria MLA, and was met with a partisan political reaction, Stewart said.

Property needed for the link-up near the Town and Country centre was the subject of Opposition concern about land speculation during the past legislative session.

Stewart said the city is left in "a very awkward position" over the Rose Street extension which now ends behind the Mayfair shopping centre at Tolmie.

"We have a highway that

'NO INKLING'

Black was begged to buy the land for a link-up after it became known that Saanich Council was considering a request to rezone some of the property.

It was pointed out that acquiring the land for a road before construction of high-rise buildings would save $1 million in public funds.

No action resulted from the meeting with Black but "no inkling" of a change in provincial plans away from a Rose-Pat Bay tie-in was given at the time, Stewart said.

Black has been out of touch with his Victoria office for several days and was unavailable for comment today.

Stewart said the attitude of the province and local Socred MLAs made a mockery of the regional government concept, promoted by the government.

'COMPLETE REBUFF'

"This is an area where two people in cabinet positions (Skillings and Works Minister W. N. Chant) could have represented the interests of their city," said Stewart.

The "complete rebuff" of the mayor by Skillings indicated the lack of provincial involvement in local planning — an involvement vital for proper local planning, he said.

Stewart said the technical agreement on the desirablity of a Rose Street extension-Pat Bay hook-up was made during 1962-63 negotiations between the city and the department of highways.

All that remained was that political decisions be made by both levels of government to complete the agreement.

The city subsequently made that decision but the government withheld any announcement of its intentions. It was assumed that provincial highway priorities in other areas of the province were the reason for the delay on the Pat Bay highway program.

Announcement by Premier Bennett last fall that improvements would be made to the existing Pat Bay highway threw city officials into confusion with the province still refusing to make its long-range plans clear.

Work is under way on some of the improvements which will bring the 16-mile highway to four-lane standards except for a 1½-mile stretch near Elk Lake which will be three lanes.

POST SERVICE TO EXPAND

Major changes are in the offing for the Victoria Post Office, including a terminal sorting station in Saanich.

In five years, it is expected that postal operations will have outgrown the main building on Government Street.

It will then be necessary, possibly around 1975, to establish the new terminal to handle all preliminary mail.

The central office will be used for the main city and business routes, wicket and money order business, and boxes. Mail will go to the terminal station for sorting to main and sub-postal stations.

Expansion of subpostal stations is also expected to take place. So far, there are two such stations—at Oak Bay junction and Saanich Road.

New sites likely will include Colwood, Esquimalt, North Shelbourne and Royal Oak.

Postal officials made it clear that some of the plans are only in the preliminary stage, some years away from implementation.

Soaring Voter Numbers Add Campaign Mystery

A whopping increase in elegible voters in the Victoria area has added an element of mystery to the Aug. 27 provincial election.

Official figures show an increase of 23,343 registered voters in the four area ridings since the 1966 election — an increase of almost 25 per cent.

The mystery is expressed in two questions:

Who are the new voters? How will they vote?

In Oak Bay, Saanich and the Islands and Esquimalt, the number of new voters is greater than the margin of victory in the 1966 provincial election. It is slightly less than the margins in Victoria's two-member riding.

MARGINS DWARFED

Even larger increases are reported in north Island ridings, dwarfing victory margins there.

The Greater Victoria constituencies and their increases are:

● Esquimalt, up 35 per cent to 24,117, an increase of 6,716. Victory margin for Socred Herb Bruch in the 1966 election was 2,580.

● Saanich and the Islands, up 29 per cent to 26,021, an increase of 5,914. Victory margin for Socred John Tisdalle was 3,416 in 1966.

● Oak Bay, up 20 per cent to 23,992, an increase of 4,356. (Margin of victory for Liberal Allan Cox in July, 1968 by-election was 3,214. Margin for Liberal Alan Macfarlane in 1966 general election was 3,416.)

● Victoria, up 19 per cent to 41,955, an increase of 6,357. Margin of victory for Socred W. N. Chant was 7,764 and for Socred Waldo Skillings, 6,852 in the two-member riding in 1966.

Registration of voters produced almost 8,000 new voters in Comox and almost 7,000 in Alberni for 50 per cent increases. Both ridings were won by relatively narrow margins by Socreds in 1966.

Nanaimo shows 6,500 new voters, a 43 per cent increase. That riding was won by a handful of votes by Dave Stupich of the NDP in 1966.

Figures are not yet available for Cowichan-Malahat, but a healthy increase is expected in keeping with the experience all over the province. Former NDP leader Robert Strachan won the riding by 1,200 votes out of a total eligible 14,700 in 1966.

The total provincial voting figure is not yet available but will shoot well beyond the level of 875,000 which has remained steady since 1960, the time of the last enumeration. A 25 per cent increase would bring the total close to 1 million.

POPULATION GREW

Part of the big increase in voters is a result of the enumeration carried out by the province this year, but officials said population growth in the past three years should not be underestimated in attempts to account for the thousands of new voters.

Officials stressed that a high-pressure campaign to encourage voters to register and to explain redistributed ridings was carried out in 1966, although there was no enumeration.

Ask the Times

Q. Can you please tell me if there is a crematorium in Victoria and if possible the carge for creamting a body? — J.B.

A. Victoria's crematorium is located at Royal Oak Cemetery. The charge for creamating a body as set by the Public Utilities Commission is $40

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Two Martinis One Too Many To Drive

By DERYK THOMPSON

When new federal legislation affecting drinking drivers comes into effect, a person who takes two martinis with lunch and drives back to work will be breaking the law.

So will the person who has three beers. Or the person who drinks half a bottle of wine with a meal and then drives away.

In May, the House of Commons amended the Criminal Code to make it an offence to have more than a .08 blood-alcohol reading.

City breathalyzer expert Sgt. Richard Ward says a .08 reading is equivalent to four ounces of hard liquor, 2.8 bottles of beer or 11 ounces of wine.

70 EXPERTS

Although the legislation making the breathalyzer tests compulsory for suspected impaired drivers has yet to come into effect, area police forces are prepared to enforce it.

There are four breathalyzer machines in Greater Victoria and nearly 70 trained operators and experts among five police forces.

Justice Minister John Turner has said the amendments will come into effect only after the necessary breath-testing equipment is available everywhere.

CHRISTMAS PRESENT

"We feel we're going to get it as a Christmas present," a spokesman from the Colwood RCMP detachment said today.

Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Colwood have breathalyzers but Esquimalt doesn't.

Chief Earl Sarsiat said today there wasn't much need for his force to buy one since all their prisoners are locked up in the city jail and could be tested on the city machine.

Saanich Deputy Police Chief Bob Peterson said he thinks the new amendments represent forceful legislation.

"But with our experience on the highways I think it's the only answer," he said.

"Persons will be more conscious of their responsibilities in motoring."

NEW SECTIONS

Included in the amendments is repeal of the section of the code dealing with "intoxicated driving" by which the court had to impose a jail sentence even on a first offence.

The charge of impaired driving has been left unchanged in the new Code but two new sections are added.

They make it an offence to drive with a blood-alcohol reading of more than .08 on the breathalyzer and an offence to refuse to give a police officer a breath sample. Both are punishable by fines ranging from $50 to $$1,000, or up to six months in jail or both.

PHYSICAL SYMPTOMS

Now police departments generally press impaired charges following a breath reading of .12 or above. However, suspected drivers must also show physical symptoms of impairment to be convicted.

Breathalyzer readings of .20 or more usually lead to an intoxicated driving charge.

Under the new legislation, the court must find that an accused with a .08 reading or more guilty of "an offence." Conceivably he could also be charged with impaired driving.

Victorians Get First Nod For Housing

The Rose-Blanshard urban renewal scheme area will be officially named Blanshard Court when the 184 new housing units are completed.

And the residents of the "court" will — "all things being equal" — all come from the city of Victoria.

City manager Dennis Young reported that 126 applications already are on file for accommodation in the new housing zone.

"Of these, 14 at least are elderly persons who are known to have resided in the city for many years prior to moving to neighboring municipalities," Young said.

He recommended that for the initial period the B.C. Housing Management Commission, the authority on who gets housing and who doesn't "be asked to give priority to applications from persons residing in the city and in future, where all circumstances are equal, that preference be given to city residents."

The first housing units are expected to be ready for occupancy before year-end.

Arthur Mayse . . .

ONE BLACK WINTER night in the middle thirties, I set out from Campbell River with a Forest Service officer to call on a couple who lived beyond the town.

We hadn't been invited, but my companion assured me that wouldn't matter.

It didn't, as Roderick Haig-Brown and his wife, Ann, made plain.

That was a visit to remember. We talked about books and fishing, and I came away from the farmhouse by the growling Campbell both pleased and impressed.

★

It was several years before I met our host of that pleasant evening again.

Then, one morning of wind and rain, a lean, black-haired man put in at the Vancouver Daily Province newsroom. I didn't recognize him until the copy boy who doubled as receptionist fetched him in among the desks.

It was Haig-Brown, in a drenched raincoat that had seen better years. He carried a corded parcel under his arm.

★

Months earlier, I'd reported in my outdoors column on some hit-or-miss experiments with the floating fly on sea-run cutthroat trout. By letter, Haig-Brown had supplemented my guesswork with useful information. It was not lost on me that he did so with a grace that spared my ignorance.

A busy newsroom is no place to talk fishing, or books. We went down to the restaurant next door for coffee. While we were on our second cup, Haig-Brown freed two handsome books from their brown-paper wrappings.

They were his personal copies of what is still the definitive work on British Columbia game fishing and fishing, "The Western Angler." The publisher had sent them out a week or so earlier. Would I care to read and review the two-volume set?

As well ask a hungry man if he would like an outsize filet mignon. Haig-Brown's Western Angler cost me much lost sleep in the next few nights. It also convinced me that here was a writer who would make a very solid name for himself.

★

Seven years later, he enhanced his reputation with "A River Never Sleeps." That book, a classic now, is my favorite of the many he has written.

The second World War, in which he served overseas with the Canadian Army, was not long past when Haig-Brown added that title to a lengthening list.

Those were busy years, and I can't place the next of our very few meetings with any accuracy.

★

It was in late summer or early fall, on Haig-Brown's turf, and we hadn't meant to stay.

But stay we did, to feast on corn fresh off the stalk, and discuss those two inevitables —books and fishing.

I left with a gift copy of Haig-Brown's latest, which I gulped down with no more delay than need be.

It's called "Saltwater Summer," and as a juvenile with a difference, it more than deserved the Governor-General's Citation it received.

We've met once more since then. Haig-Brown, with more books written, showed me a parabolic fly-rod that set my fingers itching. His status as a conservationist had paced his reputation as an author.

No Canadian has fought so long and so faithfully against spoilage and for a wiser handling of natural resources.

Roderick L. Haig-Brown is still by the Campbell—an honored Canadian, but one not yet listened to as he should be.

★

Last night I made a random choice from the shelf where his Four Seasons books are crowded among others he has written.

It was "Fisherman's Summer," and it read as well as it did on the first go-round.

FRANCE DROPS FRANC VALUE

PARIS — The French government today devalued the franc by 11.1 per cent.

The devaluation has come less than two months after the election of President Pompidou, succeeding General Charles de Gaulle, who had firmly refused to take the step.

The new gold equivalent of the French franc was set at 0.160 grams of fine gold, down from 0.180. This was the first devaluation since 1958.

The devaluation, which brings the value of the franc down to around 18 Canadian cents, compared with the previous rate of about 21.7 Canadian cents, is expected to place further pressure on West Germany to revalue the mark upwards.

In response to the news, the gold index at the Toronto Stock Exchange soared 29.2 points. The New York exchanges had closed before the announcement came. Details on Page 8.

Russians Likely Netting Salmon Says Davis

By PAT DUFOUR

Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said today there is a possibility that the large Russian fleet off Vancouver Island is taking a "considerable amount" of salmon.

Contacted in Vancouver, the minister said he has ordered more intensive studies of aerial pictures taken of the fleet Wednesday.

"We saw large piles of fish, separated in heaps, aboard the Russian vessels. My visual impression was that the largest piles were a brownish grey and were probably hake and dogfish.

"However, we saw considerable piles of silvery fish which could have been either salmon or black Alaska cod."

The minister said he has ordered more intensive studies of the pictures and has also asked for reruns in color in a bid for more positive identification.

He said his suspicions are bolstered by American officials who have managed to board some vessels "to talk to the captains, not to search the catches.

"Some captains have admitted having as many as 50 salmon in a drag, others have said about 10. At the top figures of 50, this amounts to quite a few salmon when you talk in terms of a 1,000 drags."

Russian Secrets Probed

Wednesday's aerials were taken from a Canadian armed forces Argus, based at Comox. Fisheries officials are working closely with armed forces personnal in an effort to probe the secret of the catches aboard the Russian draggers.

Davis said he has also asked for commercial pictures, taken at the same time, to be studied by his department.

He said that he saw "about 36 or 37 large vessels with a few scattered in the distance."

Davis added that most of them were "relatively modern," unlike the two battered side-draggers, the Kouzachin and Gherman Titov, which were intercepted by the fisheries patrol vessel Howay inside the 12-mile fishing boundary.

Wednesday's pictures were the latest in a series ordered by the minister.

"We took some last Friday, and earlier, we used a helicopter. But, to date, we have no positive identification."

Davis said the penalties for foreign vessels found fishing inside the 12-mile limit were no deterrant.

"In my view the penalties are inadequate. That's why we are changing" the Canadian Coastal Fisheries Protection Act.

Patrol Vessels Too Slow

Foreign skippers now found guilty of illegal fishing can be fined up to $5,000 and can have both ship and catch confiscated.

Canadian trollers have complained that the fisheries patrol vessels are too slow to catch the large Russian ships should the chase involve any distance.

The newest fisheries vessel Tanu is capable of 15 knots, the same speed as most of the foreign ships.

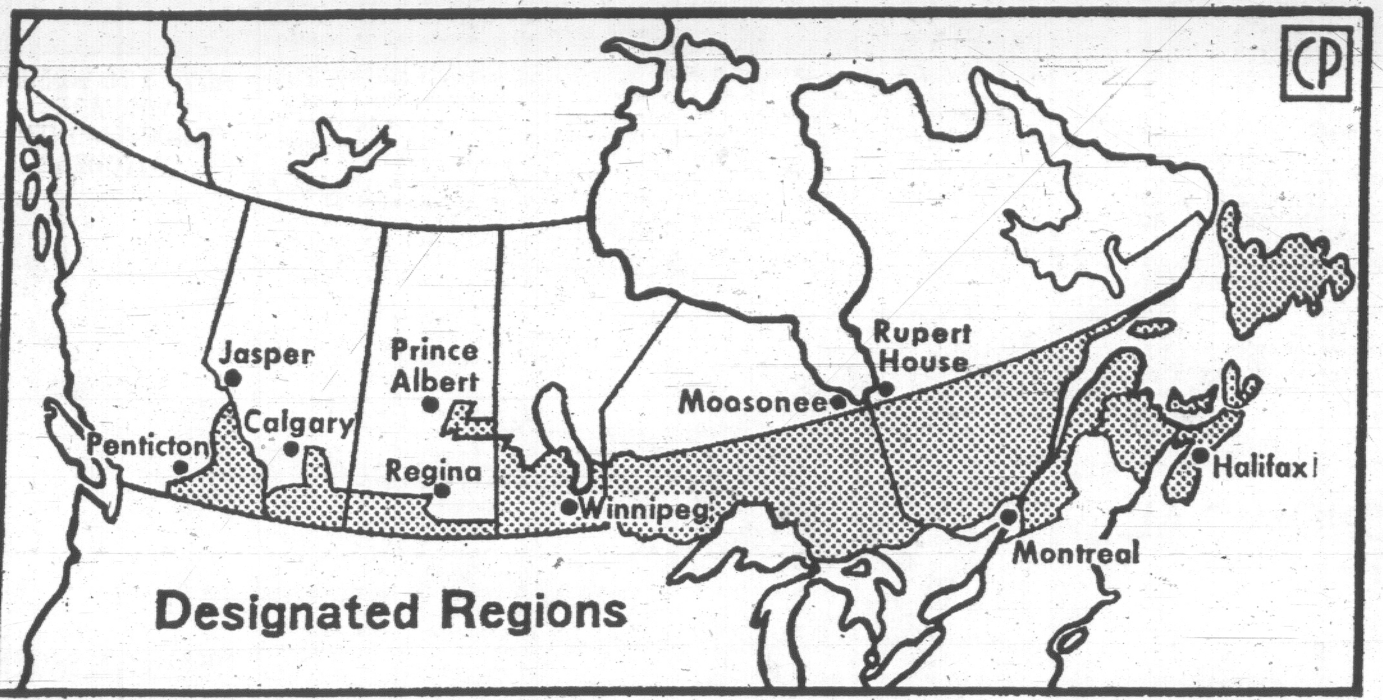
Questioned on this, Davis said that Tanu is the most modern fisheries craft in Canada and is equipped for other duties, including researfh, as well as interception.

He added that, in an emergency, surface vessels of the armed forces would be used as part of an over-all watch kept by the maritime command Pacific and the Rescue Coordination Centre in Vancouver.

"But," Davis said, "we don't have enough destroyer-escorts to completely patrol the whole area involved."

There are seven based at Esquimalt.

Industry, Cities Facing Tough Water Standards



SPECIAL ATTENTION to the tune of millions can go to developing industry locating in shaded areas of map designated by federal Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand. Under program, incentives for new plants can go as high as $12,000,000, the minister announced Thursday.

Waste Dumping Affected

By JOHN MIKA

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark today released the provincial government's first comprehensive code of minimum water quality standards to protect British Columbia citizens.

In essence, it sets out the degree of "purity" that must be achieved — either by remedial treatment or preventive pollution control — for various water uses such as drinking, swimming and waste dumping.

The standards were to have been issued 11 months ago but Loffmark held them up during an intra-departmental battle over jurisdiction between his health department and the pollution control organization under Water Resources Minister Ray Williston.

DELAY NECESSARY

At the time, he said the delay was necessary to give his 25 provincial medical health officers time to evaluate all water standards set by other areas and devise the best system for B.C. because the MHOs would have to enforce the new regulations.

There was no immediate indication of how many communities and industries will have to take early action to bring themselves within the code by improving drinking water quality or reducing pollution through dumping wastes into fresh or salt water courses.

But the standards are tougher than those issued by the Pollution Control Board three years ago which allowed the Greater Victoria sanitary sewerage study to propose dumping of raw sewage through long outfalls into local salt water.

FOUR SETS OF RULES

The code divides water uses into four classes and provides a separate set of standards that must be met in each class across the province. But it would permit exceptions in some cases.

In a press release accompanying the code, Loffmark emphasized that those areas which currently have better water quality than demanded by the minimum standards will not be allowed to relax their efforts.

Those that have worse quality than required will have to make improvements at least to the minimum levels.

"The purpose of the new standards is to secure and maintain such water quality levels in the province, both for drinking waters and surface waters, as will give assured

Only Small Area of B.C. Selected for Economic Aid

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has swept through large sections of Canada, from the Atlantic provinces to the British Columbia interior, in its selection of areas eligible for assistance to encourage industrial expansion.

Under a new program approved during the last session of Parliament, federal incentives for new plants in the designated areas can go as high as $12,000,000.

There is a formula providing up to 25 per cent of capital costs, plus up to $5,000 for each job created.

In the case of expanding or modernizing existing plants, the incentive is limited to 20 per cent of capital cost, with a $6,000,000 ceiling.

Announcing the new regions Thursday night, Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand said the plan was designed to promote economic growth in the widest area possible embracing all three Maritime provinces and the entire island of Newfoundland. Labrador is excluded.

The area then sweeps on through a large part of Quebec, along the St. Lawrence North Shore, the Gaspe, into Quebec City, through Trois-Rivieres and Sherbrooke, north to Rouyn-Noranda and Chibougamau.

Montreal and Ottawa are not included in the designated region which sweeps into Northern Ontario, including North Bay, Sudbury, Kapuskasing, the Lakehead, Kenora and Red Lake.

In Manitoba, the whole southern part of the province is included from a line near the centres of Lake Winnipeg and Winnipegosis.

The regions in Saskatchewan have been designated: a section in the northeast from the Manitoba border to such communities as Humboldt, Melfort and Tisdale; a band across the south of the province that includes Estevan, Weyburn, Moose Jaw and Swift Current.

The southern part of Alberta, including Medicine Hat and Lethbridge has also been designated, as has the eastern portion that juts north to Drumheller.

In British Columbia, a triangle in the southeast corner, including the Kootenays, Cranbrook, Golden, Revelstoke, Nelson, Trail and Grand Forks, has been selected.

Mr. Marchand's announcement said the regions — "those where there is a good chance that industrial incentives will help to make employment opportunities more adequate" — will be reviewed in 1972.

The new regions replace the substantially smaller areas that qualified for special economic assistance under the Area Development Agency.

ENDS EXISTENCE

The agency, providing maximum grants of $5,000,000 for industries, ceases to exist in January. Until then, both programs will function together.

HOULE
. . . replaces Emms

TORONTO (CP) — Alan (Buck) Houle, 52, head trouble shooter for Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, today was appointed general manager of Hockey Canada to succeed Hap Emms.

The appointment was announced by Charles Hay of Toronto, Hockey Canada president, about 24 hours after Emms announced his resignation from the organization that operates Canada's national hockey team.

Houle formerly was general manager of the defunct Victoria Maple Leafs' entry in the Western Hockey League.

ZOND STREAKS TO MOON DATE

MOSCOW (AP)—Less than a month after the United States manned lunar landing, the Soviet Union today launched an unmanned spaceship to the moon.

Zond VII, the new craft, was hurled into a parking orbit around earth by "a powerful Soviet carrier rocket," then launched toward the moon, Tass said.

Moscow has said the unmanned Zond series are part of Soviet efforts, now lagging behind the United States, to send a man to the moon.

The official Soviet news agency said Zond VII would study "the moon and near-lunar space," but Tass did not indicate if it would attempt a soft landing.

Bennett Will Follow Any Wage Guidelines

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett Thursday supported the federal Prices and Wages Commission's proposal for voluntary wage and price controls, but said Ottawa should set national guidelines.

"They don't have to make it compulsory, but simply say how much increases should be limited to in a given year," said the premier, here to launch the Lower Mainland end of his campaign for the Aug. 27 provincial election.

"You don't need to freeze prices and wages, just control them. The government should show leadership by setting guidelines. Public opinion will take care of it."

Asked who he would suggest as the first volunteer to follow such guidelines, Bennett said: "The world follows men. What people want is leadership."

"We can't give it in this field because we have no jurisdiction as a provincial government, but we will be the first to volunteer and we will co-operate fully."

The premier, who will speak tonight at a Social Credit rally in New Westminster, also commented on statements that a general economic slowdown is coming.

"It is in this period that the Social Credit government's policies will show up to the best advantage. We have been criticized for financing on a surplus basis, but we are now the only government in this position."

Trudeau Has B.C. Date With What's-Her-Name

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau had a tete-a-tete with a redhead within two hours of arriving in Vancouver Thursday.

He took her for a ride on the Grouse Mountain skyride and for dinner at a luxury restaurant atop the mountain.

Mr. Trudeau identified his date later as "Miss Patterson."

However, the stunning redhead turned out to be Margaret Sinclair, 21, daughter of former federal fisheries minister James Sinclair.

Miss Sinclair said she had met the 49-year-old Liberal leader in Tahiti. She said she and the prime minister were "just friends" and that it was the first time they had dined together.

Trudeau was to fly to Abbotsford this afternoon to officially open the three-day air show at the community 50 miles east of Vancouver.

Later tonight, he'll table-hop at a $100-a-plate Liberal fund-raising dinner.

A 20-minute speech he is scheduled to make is described by officials with the prime minister as "significant," but no details have been released.

Meanwhile, Liberal Leader Pat McGeer returned to Vancouver after two weeks on the campaign trail in the B.C. Interior, and claimed his party will win more than the 20 seats he predicted earlier.

He said his tour showed that Liberal organizations in ridings virtually written off two weeks ago are now fighting to win.

"We are going to come back and hit very hard at these swing ridings," he said. "These seats are now so much in the fight I think we are going to win them."

He named Okanagan North, held by minister without portfolio Pat Jordan in the last House, and Shuswap, held by Social Credit's Willis Jefcoat, as two such ridings.

TRUDEAU AND DATE, Margaret Sinclair, daughter of former cabinet minister James Sinclair, step from Grouse Mountain Skylift gondola in North Vancouver Thursday night, shortly after the prime minister arrived for three-day coast visit. Trudeau reportedly was concerned he might be refused admission to mountaintop restaurant because he was wearing no tie. However, he was admitted without question.

Leaders Give Policy

Hospitals

PENTICTON (CP) — Progressive Conservative leader John de Wolf has called for politics to be removed from education, hospital planning and regional development.

He told a news conference here that there is uncertainty in the Okanagan over hospital planning. "The main problem is not the jealousy that is supposed to exist between Penticton, Vernon and Kelowna. It is the lack of provincial leadership."

"There should be intensive consultation with local authorities to devise the best plan. But local politics should be avoided and the final decisions made by Victoria."

Kelowna should be designated one of the six B.C. regional administration centres and Vernon should be the site of the four-year university, he said.

Industry

TERRACE (CP) — NDP leader Tom Berger said here Thursday that the main objective of an NDP government would be to increase the processing of raw materials in the province.

Outlining the first part of an NDP policy to develop secondary industry, Mr. Berger said he would ban the export of logs as long as B.C. mills and millworkers were not working to full capacity.

"We have had unemployment and under-employment because we have not developed a program for processing here. Last winter the provincial government was allowing the export of unmanufactured logs to Japan at a time when many B.C. sawmills were shut down because of a shortage of logs."

Wheat Price Co-operation Aussie Aim

SASKATOON (CP) — Australia and Canada should work together to combat wheat price-cutting by France and other members of the European Common Market, John Graves, assistant Australian government trade commissioner for western Canada, said this week.

Graves was here as part of a follow-up tour of the west after an Australian trade display last June in Vancouver.

"What we're worried about is that the big wheat producers are being beaten in some markets by Europeans who are so heavily subsidized by the government," he said.

"And if Britain joins the Common Market, we might both be cut out from her wheat purchase. Australia would like to work with Canada in this area."

Graves said he could not predict what the Australian government's next action would be in the face of a good wheat crop in that country.

"In our office in Vancouver, wheat is not something we concentrate on, because Canada is not a likely market for it. Our emphasis is on machinery, clothing, textiles and foodstuffs."

He said last year Canada sold twice as much to Australia as it had imported and that the Australian government was hoping to narrow the gap this year.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Mixed Trend Order of Day

Mixed trend with little change was the pattern today on both the Toronto and New York stock exchanges. Trading was moderate. OSF Industries and Seaway were both delayed at the opening but will resume trading Monday. Seaway closed Thursday at 9½, up 1⅛, and OSF closed at 21¼, up ¼. OSF said it intends to make a share-exchange offer to all Seaway shareholders on the basis of one common OSF share and one 10-year warrant for every two common Seaway shares.

AT TORONTO in industrials, Ainco jumped 2¾ to 14¼, Electrohome 2 to 29 and Falconbridge 1½ to 129½. Levy fell 2 to 28, Distillers Seagrams 1 to 48¾ and Home A 1 to 64½.

Dome Mines jumped 6 to 57, Campbell Red Lake 5⅜ to 25, New Quebec Raglan 1⅛ to 13¼ and Camflo 85 cents to $5.90.

Canadian Homestead was off 1⅛ to 21⅜, Asamera ½ to 26½. Canadian Superior Oil was up ¾ to 37¼.

AT NEW YORK after the close, it was reported that the French government had decided to devalue the franc. Some analysts said the action might have an initial bearish reaction on the market next week.

A 724,700 share block of Goodyear Tire and Rubber traded near the close. Goodyear closed off 1⅛ at 26¾.

Closing prices included Natomas, off 1⅜ at 81; Metromedia, up 1¼ at 20¼; and Pan American Sulphur, up ½ at 15⅞.

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybeans futures prices advanced on the Board of Trade today.

Most gains were fractional in moderate to brisk trading.

Corn suffered only brief setback in mid-morning when a private report forecast production at levels higher than expected. Prices quickly bounced back, however, and were fractionally higher near the close.

The forecast estimated corn production at about 4,400,000,000 bushels as against a government projection of 4,280,000,000 issued last month.

Few Testing Adoption Idea

Only three Victorians have taken advantage of a seven-month-old Family and Children's Service policy to allow single persons over 30 to adopt children.

And only one of the applicants has been approved, Mrs. Bernice Packford of the FCS reported Thursday.

Meanwhile, a child is still being sought for that person, who wants an older child. The child will have to be found through a Vancouver agency, Mrs. Packford said.

She said one reason for the scarcity of applications to adopt was the lack of publicity given to the new scheme, introduced in January.

Some people also think adopting a child is difficult.

•

"Our policy is helping people to adopt, not acting as a prohibitive barrier."

Induction of the new policy marked a radical departure for the Victoria agency although single parent adoption is approved in the Adoption Act and not uncommon among child welfare agencies.

"We want someone who is self-supporting and will take time to look after the child, and someone who will see he is looked after while the parent is at work."

The prospective parent meets adoption workers for a few months before the transaction is completed.

"It takes about four to six months to adopt a child. That isn't even as long a wait as if you have it yourself," she said.

. . . ECONOMIC AID

will apply to manufacturing and processings plants applying for government assistance, Mr. Marchand said.

The incentives will not apply to consumer services, construction, production of energy, merchandizing and transport, or to the primary industries of farming, fishing, logging and mining.

Nor do they apply to the initial processing of resource-based industries such as minerals, oil, gas and wood.

Mr. Marchand specified that the incentives are applicable to such operations as the processing of mineral concentrates in metal production, paper and paperboard production, chemical processes, fish processing, lumber operations and food processing.

The new regulations include:

1. A company qualifying for an incentive will receive a government statement of offer. The offer is to remain open two months and if the company accepts, a date will be set for the start of construction.

2. The minimum equity that the company must invest in the operation will be fixed when the offer is made and will not be changed if additional capital is needed.

3. The minimum equity will be based on 20 per cent of the projected capital cost of a new plant. In cases of expansion or modernization, it will be based on 20 per cent of the estimated capital cost plus book value of existing facilities.

4. There will be no requirement, as has been the case, that equipment for the plant be new.

5. When a plant begins production it will receive 80 per cent of the incentive, instead of 60 per cent as under the present program. The balance will be paid within 3 ½years to a new plant and within 2½ years to an expanded or modernized plant. The balance now is repaid in two years.

Requirements for qualifying for incentives:

1. Investment for a new plant must be at least $60,000; for expansion or modernization, it must total at least $30,000.

2. Applications for assistance must be made before the company has any contractual commitment to the project.

3. The company must give "reasonable opportunities" to Canadian manufacturers to bid on machinery and equipment for the project.

4. A firm starting a new plant must not close down similar operations in a designated region.

5. To qualify for the maximum $12,000,000, a firm must either be new or expanding to produce commodities that could not have been economically produced otherwise.

Pesticide Is Non-Toxic

Scientists at Simon Fraser University's pestology centre are experimenting with a natural pesticide that is both non-toxic and cheap: water.

"The theory is simple," said Dr. Brian Beirne, director of the centre. "You just spray a plant with a heavy stream of water and it knocks off the small insects and they drown on the ground."

He said he thought of the idea after noticing that a heavy rain will often kill pests such as young grasshoppers and caterpillars.

To test the theory student Bill Hudson is at work at the Canada Department of Agriculture research station, Summerland, spraying apple trees with water to wash off mites.

"It appears to be best to use a spray made up of large droplets which will hit as hard as possible instead of a mist," said Dr. Beirne.

He pointed out that the system could be used in conjunction with a normal irrigation system.

"In this way we would be killing two birds with one stone. We would be watering the plants and getting rid of some of the pests at the same time."

. . . WATER STANDARDS

protection for human health and safety," the press release said.

It added that "these standards have been drawn up in a form that will permit amendment and modification as new information becomes available.

"A period of experience and trial will serve to assess their usefulness and will indicate any desirable changes."

The standards incorporate recommendations from the B.C. Pollution Control Board, B.C. health department and the Pacific North West Pollution Control Council but their requirements for drinking waters virtually duplicate those recommended by the federal government's health department last year.

CONTROL POLLUTION

Because the B.C. health department's code will be the only comprehensive guide to water qualities, its standards likely will dictate most water pollution control requirements in the province rather than PCB directives.

The standards list immediate quality requirements and also identify long term objectives.

The four classes of water use are divided into Class A designating drinking water requiring mineral treatment; Class B designating drinking water with sophisticated treatment requirements; Class C identifying bathing, swimming and sports waters; and Class D reserved for sports and commercial shellfish propagation.

48 TESTS

The standards comprise scientific, technical and visual parameters, with the longest list of requirements — four tables of 48 different tests — attached to drinking water quality.

For example: Class A and B requirements state there may be no more than .05 miligrams of arsenic per litre of drinking water of .01 mg-1 of nitrate; no algae at all; inoffensive taste and no warmer than 15 degrees Centigrade (59 F).

The long-term objectives are to require that no detectable amounts of arsenic or nitrate, no algae, no offensive taste and no warmer temperature than 10 degrees Centegrade (50 F) be allowed in B.C. drinking water anywhere.

The tables set out the immediate and eventual requirements in similiar fashion for the whole range of organic and inorganic elements, pesticides, herbicides, radioactive counts and other aspects included in the initial code.

The code says these standards "should be required for all public water works systems at the consumer's tap except where it can be shown to the satisfaction of the minister that:

"(a) It is not feasible to provide a water of the quality required otherwise; and

"(b) The residents or customers are accustomed to the type of water; and

"(c) The limitations of water supply are made known to the prospective users."

RATE OF TESTS

The code also sets out a schedule of the rate of testing that will be used in determining violations of the code.

Class C recreational waters do not distinguish between salt and fresh water beaches.

It confirms the present PCB biological testing level of 1,000 coliforms per 100 millilitres as a maximum permissible level in swimming areas where sewage is dumped.

But this standard has been toughened by adding that "no floating or submerged matter" may be introduced by man into those swimming waters and there must be no visible concentrations of wood fibre, oil sludge, sewage, scum, foam or other wastes interfering with swimming uses.

The code's text adds:

"Waters containing uncontrolled waste discharges above or continguous to these (swimming beach) points of use constitute an objectionable hazard."

It says swimmers could contract diseases in sewage-laden waters and confirms "treatment equivalent to secondary treatment is indicated for wastes discharged to waters in this use category."

In Class D requirements, the code sets the maximum levels for pollutant material or condition that will be allowed when wastes are discharged into bodies of water.

These levels are intended to protect the interests of downstream users of that water.

CHICHESTER-CLARK
. . . talks on troops

N. Ireland Premier In London

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark of Northern Ireland took advantage of the lull in religious rioting in his capital of Belfast and flew here today for talks with the British government expected to cover the use of British troops.

Chichester-Clark met with Home Secretary James Callaghan, the British minister responsible for Northern Ireland's affairs.

Dredging Project Worth $2 Million

OTTAWA (CP) — Vancouver Pile Driving and Contracting Co. Ltd. Has been awarded a $2,889,370 federal contract for dredging the First Narrows channel at Vancouver, the Works Department said today.

The job involves deepening and widening the channel into Vancouver harbor for accommodation of bulk carriers of up to 100,000 tons.

Unionist Supports Price-Wage Curbing

A Victoria labor unionist thinks legislation will be necessary to restrain prices and wages to curb inflation in Canada.

Neil Hindle, business agent for the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers Local 191, was commenting on a suggestion by John Young, chairman of the federal prices and incomes commission, that voluntary restraints be discussed in a national conference.

"People talk about inflation and I just wonder whether this will be the continuing dialogue," Hindle said.

"I think legislation will have to be passed ultimately. There are aggressive people in both trade unions and management and to ask them to restrain themselves voluntarily is like asking for the moon.

"Perhaps there has been too much talk—not enough action," the spokesman said.

Murray Drew, president of Victoria Local 1-118 International Woodworkers of America, welcomed the idea of a national conference—"if they do a proper job without pressure groups, they will come out with some surprising information.

"For example, he said, "British Columbia is a province with a high level of labor organization and a high standard of living. Newfoundland, on the other end of the country and the other end of the scale, has relatively little organization and has a low living standard.."

Gordon Campbell, president of the area council of Public Service Alliance of Canada — composed of federal government employees — also was receptive:

"There is much merit in the council's proposal. The social and political effects of the perpetual drive for ever-increasing prices and profits and incomes needs much wider and more public investigation than it has yet received in this country."

Crux Trial Adjourned

NASSAU (CP) — Canada's courtroom battle to extradite Vancouver lawyer-financier A. G. Duncan Crux from the Bahamas was adjourned today to Oct. 1.

Magristrate John Baily decided on the eight-week break after both sides had made adjournment requests.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

On cold days, when the temperature of the air is lower than your body temperature, your body is constantly losing heat to the air. But in August, when the temperature of the air is high, you get more heat from the air than you can use. If you couldn't lose enough of it another way you would get sick.

So radiation comes to your rescue: Your body loses heat through radiation to cooler surfaces in the vicinity, and it doesn't have to be in contact with those surfaces to do it.

Evaporation is another way of getting rid of heat. It takes over when you body can't lose enough heat through radiation, and it depends on your sweat glands. You sweat and the moisture that comes out of your skin cools the surface of your body.

Actors Aren't Just Puppets

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Is an actor a mere puppet?

Not in the opinion of Burt Lancaster, the film star millionaire who started his career as a $3-a-week circus acrobat.

"Some American actors think acting is unmanly," he said. 'I felt that way myself for years—that I should be doing something else. I don't know. I've found acting is a way to be myself.

"I don't think of myself as an actor in the traditional, conventional sense. Acting has become to me a way of saying what I want to say."

Lancaster, who once aspired to be an opera singer, has been saying pretty much what he wanted to say since the age of three when, while appearing in a church nativity play, he saw a piece of gum on his shoe and startled the audience by exclaiming, "What the hell is that piece of gum doing there?"

Son of a postal clerk, Burt likes to recall the years when he and five brothers and sisters were reared in an east Harlem walkup.

"I came from a family poor in terms of money but not in terms of courage and affection," he said.

"My childhood was a happy one. There was a lot of laughter, joy and love in my family."

LIKES THE UNDERDOG

Those early years, and later years when he worked around the U.S. in menial jobs ranging from boiler stoker to road gang worker, left Lancaster with a strong sympathy for underdogs—the downtrodden and overlooked people of the earth.

"To me life is a commitment," he said. "You have to get involved."

Lancaster, who won an Oscar for Elmer Gantry, likes to make films that carry a powerful social impact. His latest—and 41st—is Castle Keep, a surrealistic war picture detailing the experiences of a group of American soldiers during the Battle of the Bulge in Belgium.

Some years ago, already laden with honors and loot, Burt thought of quitting the industry, trying a new field. But now, still ruggedly trim at 55, he has shelved that idea.

"All I want to do is to go on as long as I can making films that touch people emotionally and express what I feel about life," he said. "You can't just quit because you are ahead."

When he isn't on location abroad, Burt, who shuns all forms of ostentation, lives quietly in Bel Air, Calif. He and his wife, Norma, a former entertainer he met while he was in the army, were divorced in June. They have five children.

Western Film to Show True Side of Indian

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A new look at the Old West will be offered by Arthur Penn, the man who directed Bonnie and Clyde. The movie western may never be the same.

Penn's Bonnie and Clyde proved the most influential film in recent times, helping to popularize startling camera effects and bringing freshness to the ancient cops-and-robbers tale. Now he's at work on Little Big Man, which Stuart Millar is producing for CBS's movie subsidiary, Cinema Centre Films.

"I'm not trying any different techniques with this picture," Penn says. "The story is being told in a rather straightforward manner. I think it would be folly to try to improve on techniques of the western; too many masters have already had a go at it."

The script, written by Calder Willingham from Thomas Berger's novel, is something else again. It is related by the 121-year-old Jack Crabb (Dustin Hoffman) who claims to have been the only white survivor of the Battle of Little Big Horn. His other adventures include being reared by Indians after his capture at 14, hunting buffalo with Bill Cody, witnessing the murder of Wild Bill Hickock and so on.

SHOW INDIAN SIDE

"I don't think of this picture as a western," says Penn. "It's more of a picaresque tale of one man's life on the frontier, told from an ironic point of view.

"One thing this film will do is show the Indian's side in the West. There has been so much nonsense about the Indian in westerns that it's time someone showed how he was wronged by history. Custer's last stand offers a good opportunity."

Intermission Best; Comedy Lauded

NIAGARA - ON - THE-LAKE, Ont. (CP) — Critics disagreed today on the merits of Ferenc Molnar's comedy The Guardsman as presented at the Shaw Festival here.

William Glover of The Associated Press said in his review that the best part of the play were the intermissions.

Herbert Whittaker of the Toronto Globe and Mail said the comedy "makes a very welcome addition to the season here, crowning it, in fact."

Whittaker lauded the performances of Lida Kedrova as the wife who has raised the suspicions of her husband — suspicions only too well founded—and of Paxton Whitehead as the husband.

"This constant display of histrionic talent, which Molnar knew so thoroughly, almost but not quite distracts us from the excellence of Stephen Porter's direction, the beauty of the decor and the vitality of the supporting cast."

The curious eye Russian trawlers being held at Ogden Point pending trial of their captains.

The Tourists Are Coming to the Russians

By PAT DUFOUR

While their skippers awaited a second appearance in provincial court, the crews of Soviet trawlers Gherman Titov and Kouzachin seemed delighted Thursday night at having become Victoria's number one tourist attraction.

The trawler captains, Boris Rolenko and John Morozov, were to appear this afternoon before Judge William Ostler on charges of illegally fishing within Canada's 12-mile limit.

In the three days the Soviet vessels have been in Victoria, their crews have made a dint in the language barrier. When they docked none of them spoke English.

Thursday evening, the duty officer on Gherman Titov was all smiles as he said "Good afternoon" to his visitors. One of the visitors brought him up to date. From then on it was "Good evening."

●

A self-appointed, volunteer "diplomatic corps," mostly new Canadians from Yugoslavia and other parts of Europe, acted as interpreters in the well-worn wardroom.

Ambassador-in-chief appeared to be a bald-headed seaman, sporting one gold earring, who said he was Greek and had served two years in the fisheries patrol vessel Howay as second engineer.

With a flourish he introduced newcomers to the chief officer, who sat smiling, at a table centred with a large enamel pot and a plate of thickly sliced bread.

●

The pot contained what the interpreters described as compote, a drink made from dried fruit cooked in water aboard the ship.

Young women took pictures, and posed for others with their hosts. Like sailors everywhere, the Russians willingly obliged. They also asked for addresses — to get prints.

While the chief officer and his main ambassador served the compote in thick enamel mugs, others of the crew calmly went on with a game of chess, unperturbed by the stream of visitors jostling their elbows.

One of them asked when the Russians would be leaving.

Bringing out a well-thumbed Russian-English dictionary from a drawer, pungent with the garlic cloves that accompany most of the Russians' meals, the engineer said Friday — perhaps.

In one corner, another of the officers brought out boxes of matches which he handed out as the stream of visitors wended through the wardroom.

In another corner, one of the local interpreters pressed people to stay "and see a Russian movie" while another, gesticulating wildly, tried to rewind a reel of film.

●

After winding madly for 15 minutes, he still wasn't ready and a helper discovered the film was not Russian but Canadian.

Guests, left to tour the rest of the ship. Finally, they disembarked their last glimpse being the chief officer, at the gangway, holding a hydrangea presented him by one of the women.

Walking up the dock they passed a Russian seaman, returning from shore leave toting paper bags jammed with purchases.

Pool Construction To Start in 1970

Aldermen Vote 5-3 In Favor

Construction of Victoria's replacement for the Crystal Garden is expected to start early in 1970.

The $1.6 million swimming complex to be built in Central Park was approved Thursday afternoon by a 5-3 vote at a special council meeting.

But two of the aldermen voting in favor, Ian Stewart and Lily Wilson, said they wanted a firm promise that the parkland taken up would be replaced at some future time.

"Whatever we take we must replace," said Stewart. "Not necessarily in this same area, but in some other part of the city where high-rise apartment dwellers are desperately short of green space."

NEED GREEN SPACE

Wilson's approval of the project followed a similar line.

"We must have green spaces," she said. "I shall support this proposal but I must have the assurance of replacement of the parkland."

Stewart said he failed to see the argument of the critics contending the small soccer pitch to be eliminated by the pool provided a better recreation facility than the proposed pool would.

Ald. Cecil Parrott told council suggestions that money could be sent to save the Crystal were out of place.

"The Crystal can't be saved," he said. "We could put on a new roof, re-plumb and re-wire the building but we would still finish up with an old pool with a new face. The actual pool in the Crystal is sinking in the mud and there isn't anything anyone can do about that."

FAVOR PROJECT

Voting in favor of the project were aldermen Stewart, Parrott, Wilson, Frampton and Olafson. Mayor Hugh Stephen did not vote but is known to support the pool replacement proposal.

Voting against were aldermen Clyde Savage, Tom Christie and Robert Baird.

All three launched a strong rear-guard action to try and force delay and a new location.

Savage said that while the John Di Castri design was "wonderful" the pool as proposed would not begin to serve the needs of the community.

He said he would also like to see some estimate of operating costs before supporting the project.

He was told that operating costs would be less than the costs of the Crystal.

Funds for construction of the pool will come mainly from the T. S. McPherson Estate which, together with interest, now stands at $1.4 million. The balance will come from the tax sale land fund.

$1M WASTED?

Black 'Ignored' Link-Up Pleas

Silent and unco-operative, the provincial government and its local MLAs watched while the City of Victoria built a "million-dollar white elephant."

This was the charge today from Alderman Ian Stewart, Liberal candidate in Victoria in the Aug. 27 provincial election, elaborating on city efforts to obtain provincial co-operation in a Pat Bay Highway link-up with the six-lane Rose Street extension built by the city.

At one point Highways Minister Wesley Black was "begged" to buy land near the Town and Country shopping centre to provide a connection with the $1 million Rose Street extension in keeping with an earlier city-province "technical" agreement on the need for such a link-up, Stewart said.

PARTISAN REACTION

Mayor Hugh Stephen sought help on behalf of the city, from Trade and Industry Minister Waldo Skillings, a Victoria MLA, and was met with a partisan political reaction, Stewart said.

Property needed for the link-up near the Town and Country centre was the subject of Opposition concern about land speculation during the past legislative session.

Stewart said the city is left in "a very awkward position" over the Rose Street extension which now ends behind the Mayfair shopping centre at Tolmie.

"We have a highway that simply stops."

'NO INKLING'

Black was begged to buy the land for a link-up after it became known that Saanich Council was considering a request to rezone some of the property.

It was pointed out that acquiring the land for a road before construction of high-rise buildings would save $1 million in public funds.

No action resulted from the meeting with Black but "no inkling" of a change in provincial plans away from a Rose-Pat Bay tie-in was given at the time, Stewart said.

Black has been out of touch with his Victoria office for several days and was unavailable for comment today.

Stewart said the attitude of the province and local Socred MLAs made a mockery of the regional government concept, promoted by the government.

'COMPLETE REBUFF'

"This is an area where two people in cabinet positions (Skillings and Works Minister W. N. Chant) could have represented the interests of their city," said Stewart.

The "complete rebuff" of the mayor by Skillings indicated the lack of provincial involvement in local planning — an involvement vital for proper local planning, he said.

Stewart said the technical agreement on the desirablity of a Rose Street extension-Pat Bay hook-up was made during 1962-63 negotiations between the city and the department of highways.

All that remained was that political decisions be made by both levels of government to complete the agreement.

The city subsequently made that decision but the government withheld any announcement of its intentions. It was assumed that provincial highway priorities in other areas of the province were the reason for the delay on the Pat Bay highway program.

Announcement by Premier Bennett last fall that improvements would be made to the existing Pat Bay highway threw city officials into confusion with the province still refusing to make its long-range plans clear.

Work is under way on some of the improvements which will bring the 16-mile highway to four-lane standards except for a 1½-mile stretch near Elk Lake which will be three lanes.

Soaring Voter Numbers Add Campaign Mystery

A whopping increase in elegible voters in the Victoria area has added an element of mystery to the Aug. 27 provincial election.

Official figures show an increase of 23,343 registered voters in the four area ridings since the 1966 election — an increase of almost 25 per cent.

The mystery is expressed in two questions:

Who are the new voters? How will they vote?

In Oak Bay, Saanich and the Islands and Esquimalt, the number of new voters is greater than the margin of victory in the 1966 provincial election. It is slightly less than the margins in Victoria's two-member riding.

MARGINS DWARFED

Even larger increases are reported in north Island ridings, dwarfing victory margins there.

The Greater Victoria constituencies and their increases are:

● Esquimalt, up 35 per cent to 24,117, an increase of 6,716. Victory margin for Socred Herb Bruch in the 1966 election was 2,580.

● Saanich and the Islands, up 29 per cent to 26,021, an increase of 5,914. Victory margin for Socred John Tisdalle was 3,416 in 1966.

● Oak Bay, up 20 per cent to 23,992, an increase of 4,356. (Margin of victory for Liberal Allan Cox in July, 1968 by-election was 3,214. Margin for Liberal Alan Macfarlane in 1966 general election was 3,416.)

● Victoria, up 19 per cent to 41,955, an increase of 6,357. Margin of victory for Socred W. N. Chant was 7,764 and for Socred Waldo Skillings, 6,852 in the two-member riding in 1966.

Registration of voters produced almost 8,000 new voters in Comox and almost 7,000 in Alberni for 50 per cent increases. Both ridings were won by relatively narrow margins by Socreds in 1966.

Nanaimo shows 6,500 new voters, a 43 per cent increase. That riding was won by a handful of votes by Dave Stupich of the NDP in 1966.

Figures are not yet available for Cowichan-Malahat, but a healthy increase is expected in keeping with the experience all over the province. Former NDP leader Robert Strachan won the riding by 1,200 votes out of a total eligible 14,700 in 1966.

The total provincial voting figure is not yet available but will shoot well beyond the level of 875,000 which has remained steady since 1960, the time of the last enumeration. A 25 per cent increase would bring the total close to one million.

POPULATION GREW

Part of the big increase in voters is a result of the enumeration carried out by the province this year, but officials said population growth in the past three years should not be underestimated in attempts to account for the thousands of new voters.

Officials stressed that a high-pressure campaign to encourage voters to register and to explain redistributed ridings was carried out in 1966, although there was no enumeration.

Ask the Times

Q. Can you please tell me if there is a crematorium in Victoria and if possible the charge for cremating a body?—J.B.

A. Victoria's crematorium is located at Royal Oak Cemetery. The charge for cremating a body as set by the Public Utilities Commission is $40

Two Martinis One Too Many To Drive

By DERYK THOMPSON

When new federal legislation affecting drinking drivers comes into effect, a person who takes two martinis with lunch and drives back to work will be breaking the law.

So will the person who has three beers. Or the person who drinks half a bottle of wine with a meal and then drives away.

In May, the House of Commons amended the Criminal Code to make it an offence to have more than a .08 blood-alcohol reading.

City breathalyzer expert Sgt. Richard Ward says a .08 reading is equivalent to four ounces of hard liquor; 2.8 bottles of beer or 11 ounces of wine.

70 EXPERTS

Although the legislation making the breathalyzer tests compulsory for suspected impaired drivers has yet to come into effect, area police forces are prepared to enforce it.

There are four breathalyzer machines in Greater Victoria and nearly 70 trained operators and experts among five police forces.

Justice Minister John Turner has said the amendments will come into effect only after the necessary breath-testing equipment is available everywhere.

CHRISTMAS PRESENT

"We feel we're going to get it as a Christmas present," a spokesman from the Colwood RCMP detachment said today.

Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Colwood have breathalyzers but Esquimalt doesn't.

Chief Earl Sarsiat said today there wasn't much need for his force to buy one since all their prisoners are locked up in the city jail and could be tested on the city machine.

Saanich Deputy Police Chief Bob Peterson said he thinks the new amendments represent forceful legislation.

"But with our experience on the highways I think it's the only answer," he said.

"Persons will be more conscious of their responsibilities in motoring."

NEW SECTIONS

Included in the amendments is repeal of the section of the code dealing with "intoxicated driving" by which the court had to impose a jail sentence even on a first offence.

The charge of impaired driving has been left unchanged in the new Code but two new sections are added.

They make it an offence to drive with a blood-alcohol reading of more than .08 on the breathalyzer and an offence to refuse to give a police officer a breath sample. Both are punishable by fines ranging from $50 to $1,000, or up to six months in jail or both.

PHYSICAL SYMPTOMS

Now police departments generally press impaired charges following a breath reading of .12 or above. However, suspected drivers must also show physical symptoms of impairment to be convicted.

Breathalyzer readings of .20 or more usually lead to an intoxicated driving charge.

Under the new legislation, the court must find that an accused with a .08 reading or more guilty of "an offence." Conceivably he could also be charged with impaired driving.

Victorians Get First Nod For Housing

The Rose-Blanshard urban renewal scheme area will be officially named Blanshard Court when the 184 new housing units are completed.

And the residents of the "court" will — "all things being equal" — all come from the city of Victoria.

City manager Dennis Young reported that 126 applications already are on file for accommodation in the new housing zone.

"Of these, 14 at least are elderly persons who are known to have resided in the city for many years prior to moving to neighboring municipalities," Young said.

He recommended that for the initial period the B.C. Housing Management Commission, the authority on who gets housing and who doesn't "be asked to give priority to applications from persons residing in the city and in future, where all circumstances are equal, that preference be given to city residents."

The first housing units are expected to be ready for occupancy before year end.

SHIP MOVEMENTS

Camsell en route to Cambridge Bay; Estevan northbound on east coast; Douglas in port; Racer in Johnson Straits patrol area; Ready at Kitsilano; Vancouver on Station Papa; Quadra en route to Station Papa.

POST SERVICE TO EXPAND

Major changes are in the offing for the Victoria Post Office, including a terminal sorting station in Saanich.

In five years, it is expected that postal operations will have outgrown the main building on Government Street.

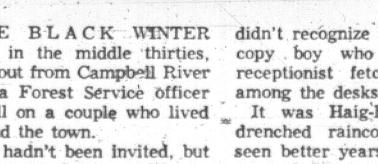
It will then be necessary, possibly around 1975, to establish the new terminal to handle all preliminary mail.

The central office will be used for the main city and business routes, wicket and money order business, and boxes. Mail will go to the terminal station for sorting to main and sub-postal stations.

Expansion of subpostal stations is also expected to take place. So far, there are two such stations—at Oak Bay junction and Saanich Road.

New sites likely will include Colwood, Esquimalt, North Shelbourne and Royal Oak.

Postal officials made it clear that some of the plans are only in the preliminary stage, some years away from implementation.



Arthur Mayse . . .

ONE BLACK WINTER night in the middle thirties, I set out from Campbell River with a Forest Service officer to call on a couple who lived beyond the town.

We hadn't been invited, but my companion assured me that wouldn't matter.

It didn't, as Roderick Haig-Brown and his wife, Ann, made plain.

That was a visit to remember. We talked about books and fishing, and I came away from the farmhouse by the growling Campbell both pleased and impressed.

★

It was several years before I met our host of that pleasant evening again.

Then, one morning of wind and rain, a lean, black-haired man put in at the Vancouver Daily Province newsroom. I didn't recognize him until the copy boy who doubled as receptionist fetched him in among the desks.

It was Haig-Brown, in a drenched raincoat that had seen better years. He carried a corded parcel under his arm.

★

Months earlier, I'd reported in my outdoors column on some hit-or-miss experiments with the floating fly on sea-run cutthroat trout. By letter, Haig-Brown had supplemented my guesswork with useful information. It was not lost on me that he did so with a grace that spared my ignorance.

A busy newsroom is no place to talk fishing, or books. We went down to the restaurant next door for coffee. While we were on our second cup, Haig-Brown freed two handsome books from their brown-paper wrappings.

They were his personal copies of what is still the definitive work on British Columbia game fish and fishing, "The Western Angler." The publisher had sent them out a week or so earlier. Would I care to read and review the two-volume set?

As well ask a hungry man if he would like an outsize filet mignon. Haig-Brown's Western Angler cost me much lost sleep in the next few nights. It also convinced me that here was a writer who would make a very solid name for himself.

★

Seven years later, he enhanced his reputation with "A River Never Sleeps." That book, a classic now, is my favorite of the many he has written.

The second World War, in which he served overseas with the Canadian Army, was not long past when Haig-Brown added that title to a lengthening list.

Those were busy years, and I can't place the next of our very few meetings with any accuracy.

★

It was in late summer or early fall, on Haig-Brown's turf, and we hadn't meant to stay.

But stay we did, to feast on corn fresh off the stalk, and discuss those two inevitables—books and fishing.

I left with a gift copy of Haig-Brown's latest, which I gulped down with no more delay than need be.

It's called "Saltwater Summer," and as a juvenile with a difference, it more than deserved the Governor-General's Citation it received.

We've met once more since then. Haig-Brown, with more books written, showed me a parabolic fly-rod that set my fingers itching. His status as a conservationist had paced his reputation as an author.

No Canadian has fought so long and so faithfully against spoilage and for a wiser handling of natural resources.

Roderick L. Haig-Brown is still by the Campbell—an honored Canadian, but one not yet listened to as he should be.

★

Last night I made a random choice from the shelf where his Four Seasons books are crowded among others he has written.

It was "Fisherman's Summer," and it read as well as it did on the first go-round.
